

EPSTEIN'S BRONZE 'MAKES MARGARET LOOK SCRAWNY'

New Battle of Britain Over 'Guess Who?'

By RICHARD GROWALD

LONDON (UPI) — A bronze likeness of Princess Margaret by the late New York-born sculptor Sir Jacob Epstein today pitted Englishman against Englishman in battle over beauty and the bust.

Not many persons were willing to admit that the Epstein work — completed just before the artist's death last August — was a likeness at all. Those who defended it admitted it might be somewhat "controversial."

Commissioned by a college in North Staffordshire, the bust depicts the princess with a slight smile, her arms slightly raised in front, the sash of a Commander of the Victorian Order draped over her off-the-shoulder gown.

"It makes her look very scrawny—as though she needs a good meal," said one woman who saw pictures of the bust in the London press. It will not make its official public debut until April 29 in the Royal Academy show.

Another lay critic protested: "She is a really charming and beautiful woman, but you would not think so to look at a picture of the bust."

Pierre Jeannerat, sculpture critic of the Daily

Mail, said the work "resembles a badly groomed suburban young woman, her hands roughened at the kitchen sink."

Other newspaper seemed to be in agreement. The Daily Herald captioned its picture: "Guess who?"

Although first majority reaction was that the "likeness" was a dirty trick to play on Margaret just before her wedding to commoner Antony Armstrong-Jones next month, a vocal minority held that art and beauty are not necessarily synonymous.

Campbell Stewart, an official of the University College of North Staffordshire, said, "I think it a most remarkable piece of Epsteiny." He admitted, however, that "an awful lot of people are going to say 'that is not our princess.'"

"It's not a bit like her and does not do her justice," said Len Barber, vice-president of the university board of governors.

Speaking for the bust was Margaret herself. Epstein's widow said shortly after his death that the princess "came to see her likeness the other day and loved it."

Sharp Clash In Commons On Recession

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson accused the government Tuesday of refusing to heed warnings that a serious economic recession may be around the corner.

Finance Minister Fleming retorted that the Liberals are trying to make political hay out of the recession spectre. The Liberal party, he said, "now is a party with a definite recession complex."

It was quite clear that the leader of the opposition "just cannot wait for the next recession to come . . . He has exaggerated unemployment, just as honorable members opposite have been doing this long time, and he has created gloom so thick that he has lost his own way now."

The finance minister said there is a sound basis for confidence in Canada. Inflation had been contained, though vigilance was still necessary. His balanced budget had stimulated renewed confidence.

Mr. Pearson was supporting a Liberal non-confidence motion forecasting an over-all budget deficit and charging the Conservative government with offering no solution to pressing economic problems. Mr. Fleming has budgeted for a small $12,000,000 surplus.

The Liberal motion was defeated 176 to 45, with the massive Conservative majority swamping the combined Liberal-CCF opposition.

'Experts See It Coming This Year'

Mr. Pearson cited a number of economic experts, including Dr. O. J. Firestone of the federal trade department, who he said have forecast an economic recession in the coming months. Some experts, he said, see recession toward the end of this year or early in 1961.

"These expert, objective forecasts do not support the rosy picture painted by the government," he said.

The recessions of 1930-34 and 1937-38 came on the heels of budget surpluses that left the government in a better position to combat their effects. If another recession came this year or next, it would follow three years of huge deficits.

Mr. Pearson said for this reason the government is in a poor position to battle the economic recession forecast by the economists.

Mr. Fleming replied that Mr. Pearson and his followers are wallowing in gloom, digging their own grave with dependency and damaging Canada in the eyes of other nations by distorting the facts to serve partisan purposes.

The Liberal leader spoke on the second to last day of the budget debate. His party's non-confidence motion charged that the government offers no solution to unemployment, rising prices, the high premium on the Canadian dollar and increased pressure on provinces and municipalities to borrow abroad.

He wondered whether the Progressive Conservative administration, in the event of recession, would fall back on a system of unplanned deficits.

The government's position seemed to be "we'll jump off that bridge when we come to it."

'Lost in Gloom of Their Own'

No government need fear deficit financing provided it was planned to achieve a definite purpose. The budget deficits of the last two years did not fit that category.

Mr. Fleming replied the Opposition's contributions to the budget debate in the last seven days clearly showed it has no alternative to offer and, Opposition members "are lost in gloom of their own creation."

All Mr. Pearson had been able to come up with was a statement that he would put into effect the Liberal policies of three years ago. He had talked of Liberal policies but hadn't said what they were.

'Sowing Idea in Minds of Public'

"The Liberal party now has chosen as its tactic the hope of improving its political fortunes either by creating or sowing in the minds of the public the idea that a recession is coming or that a recession has come," Mr. Fleming said.

He warned that some effects of an actual recession can be created by leaving the impression—even though it is false—that actually there is one. The approach to the Canadian economic scene by the Liberals was not "realistic or responsible."

Mr. Fleming recalled that in his 1958 budget speech he forecast a deficit of $640,000,000 and the Liberals immediately began saying Canada would have "a billion-dollar deficit."

If saying that could have done harm to Canada, the Liberals would have said it anyway.

Mr. Pearson Tuesday had given "a harrowing tale of an imminent recession." He had made it clear that the Liberal party "just can't wait for a recession to come."

During his remarks, Mr. Pearson said the budget is "shakily balanced." If Mr. Fleming's forecast increase in the gross national product

IT WORKS! Bomarc Missile Test 'Complete Success'

NEW YORK HERE WE COME

Fast-stepping British sergeants Mervyn Evans, 33, of the army, and Patrick Maloney, 34, of the RAF, didn't break stride for an interview with the press as they headed out of San Francisco Tuesday bound for New York on a trans-continental hike. (AP Wirephoto.)

THEY'RE OFF AND WALKING AT 75 PACES PER MINUTE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—These Britons! They're walking all over the United States.

Two snappy-striding sergeants started it Tuesday, on a 3,032-mile hike from San Francisco to New York.

Today Dr. Barbara Moore, 56, the Russian-born wife of a British sculptor, followed them down the pike at 9.20 a.m., "and I'll pass them, too," she said.

The reporters and photographers who met Mrs. Moore at San Francisco Airport Tuesday night had few doubts that the sturdy vegetarian would do it.

She was indignant that there was no one but reporters and photographers to meet her.

She said the Hotel Corporation of America promised to furnish a truck to accompany her on the transcontinental hike.

"I need the truck to carry my juices and my extra shoes," Dr. Moore said, "and I don't even know where I'm to spend the night."

She was standing next to five cases of juices—fruit, beet, carrot and tomato.

A young woman reporter, Nan Riley of the San Francisco Examiner, invited Dr. Moore to spend the night at her apartment.

"Thank you, young lady. That's very nice," said Dr. Moore in a thick Russian accent. She accepted.

The sergeants were tougher to talk to. Reporters had to jog alongside them as they strode at 75 paces to the minute toward Cordelia, Calif., where they spent the night.

RAF Flight Sgt. Patrick Maloney and army Staff Sgt. Mervyn Evans wore khaki field uniforms and berets as they swung through the California countryside.

They said they hoped to reach New York within 70 days. The record for the stroll, set 34 years ago, is 79 days, 10 hours and 10 minutes.

And how long will it take Dr. Moore? "I'm not certain," she said, "but it'll be faster than those two sergeants."

New U.S. Satellite Boon to Navigation

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States launched a navigation aid satellite into successful orbit today.

The space messenger, a device with highly important military possibilities, was fired from this missile testing center at 4:03 a.m. PST. Then in Washington the navy announced that a tracking station at Las Cruces, N.M., had reported the transit satellite passed over that point at 5:36 a.m. PST in its swing around the earth.

While the rocket engines were still pushing the satellite into the sky, tracking stations in the United States, Newfoundland, England and Germany began reporting strong radio signals from the satellite.

It was the third major American space achievement in little more than a month. On March 11, Pioneer V, carrying man's first interplanetary communication system, winged into orbit about the sun. Tiros I, the weather-eye satellite that photographs clouds, followed.

Officials emphasized that

Pearkes Stops House for News

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bomarc anti-aircraft missile has been fired "completely successful," Defence Minister Pearkes said today in the Commons.

He interrupted regular Commons business to make the announcement.

A few minutes earlier, he had told the Commons that he had no further report on the Bomarc since March 28.

He said later he had no information on the test when he had made this statement.

Commenting on the successful test, Paul Hellyer (L-Toronto-Trinity), former associate defence minister, said the announcement does not increase the Liberal party's confidence in the missile "one iota."

The Liberals consider money spent on the Bomarc-B "makes no sense whatsoever and is a flagrant waste of the taxpayers' money." He urged the government to reconsider its position on the Bomarc and cancel plans to acquire it on the ground that the weapon is of no military value whatever.

Earlier, when asked to comment on a statement of U.S. Senator Dennis Chavez implying that Canada is getting an "inferior weapon" from the U.S. in the Bomarc, Mr. Pearkes said this was a private opinion of the New Mexico Democratic senator not dissimilar to the views expressed by Mr. Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer said he agrees with Senator Chavez, chairman of the U.S. Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Did Mr. Pearkes still have confidence that the Bomarc alone would provide the best defence for Canada?

Mr. Pearkes said he has never claimed that the Bomarc alone would be the best defence for Canada.

170-Mile Flip Down the Gulf

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—The first completely successful launching of the controversial Bomarc-B interceptor missile was made over the Englin Gulf test range today.

The 47-foot missile soared from the Santa Rosa Island launch site and streaked more than 170 miles downrange before landing in the gulf. It was not fired at a target.

A series of seven failures resulted from test launchings of the Bomarc-B at Cape Canaveral and the air force announced March 25 that it was cutting the program in favor of an expansion of the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

The new Bomarc, designated the IM-99B, is an advanced model of the IM-99A now being delivered to the North American Air Defence Command as an area defence weapon against manned enemy bombers and air-breathing missiles.

The new model has a range in excess of 400 miles, about twice that of the Bomarc-A.

The announcement confirmed reported assurance given Prime Minister Macmillan that Britain would be able to buy the planned new weapon promptly.

The assurance, growing out of discussions when Eisenhower and Macmillan met at Camp David, Md., two weeks ago, apparently is behind the British government's decision, announced today to abandon its fixed base Blue Streak, a 2,500-mile range rocket.

ERIC PEUGEOT ... missing

Child, 4, Snatched At Play

PARIS (Reuters)—The distraught son of a French automobile tycoon offered to pay the $98,000 ransom (about $98,000) demanded for the return of his kidnapped four-year-old child—to anyone who could help find the boy.

Roland Peugeot, son of Jean Pierre Peugeot, head of the vast French Peugeot car-making firm, made the offer after two telephone ransom demands Tuesday night and early today.

Peugeot's son Eric was snatched from the playground of a golf course near here Tuesday as he played with his brother, 7, and a girl playmate.

A slim, young man leaped a fence and row of bushes separating the playground from the golf course at St. Cloud, snatched up young Eric, and leaped with him back over the bushes and fence.

The child's playmates and a gardener said the man drove off with the boy in a black car driven by a second man.

The family did not notify the police of the kidnapping until three hours after Eric disappeared because the kidnapper left a note in the sand pile in the playground threatening to kill the youngster if police were told.

Sea Limit Extension Headed for Defeat

GENEVA (CP)—The main committee of the world maritime conference today approved a Canadian-American proposal for extending the world's territorial waters to six miles from the present three-mile limit.

The proposal would give coastal states exclusive fishing rights up to 12 miles offshore, after 1970.

The vote was far short of the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption at a subsequent plenary session.

The committee approved the proposal 43 to 33, with 12 abstentions. The vote automatically places the proposal before a plenary session, but its chances of obtaining a two-thirds majority there appeared slim.

U.K. Scraps Blue Streak Nuclear Defence Rockets

LONDON (CP)—Britain is abandoning her program to build fixed-site rockets capable of delivering nuclear weapons to an aggressor's soil.

Defence Minister Harold Watkinson told the House of Commons today the military is discontinuing development of the Blue Streak, a 2,500-mile-range missile which so far has cost £63,000,000 ($173,000,000).

Watkinson said the money thus far invested in Blue Streak will not be wasted "if it is decided to go ahead with it as a launcher for a space satellite."

It thus appeared possible

SALISBURY, Eng. — Not every Englishman will pull out the stops for Princess Margaret's wedding May 6.

Salisbury magistrates refused an application to extend drinking hours for the occasion.

"We feel this is one of the most frivolous and inconsequential applications to which the bench has ever listened," said Alderman H. E. Cooke.

FORT WILLIAM—Mrs. Margaret Houtful put a dollar bill in an empty bottle for the milkman Tuesday and set the bottle outside. She balanced out the window shortly after, just in time to watch a seagull dip his beak into the bottle and fly off with the money.

BOSTON — Actor Gary Cooper, 58, was under treatment at Massachusetts General Hospital today for a prostate gland condition.

The two-time winner of the Academy Award was expected to undergo surgery when tests are completed. The hospital said he was in satisfactory condition.

SYDNEY, Australia — Film star Gregory Peck bought a colt for 3,400 Australian guineas (about $8,100) at the Sydney yearling sales Tuesday.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Siamese twin girls, joined at the abdomen, were born Tuesday at Buffalo General Hospital They were reported "doing nicely" today in an incubator. Such births occur about once in every 60,000 deliveries, medical authorities said.

Hospital director Dr. Frazer D. Mooney said the birth was normal but about two weeks premature. He said the twins' parents wished to remain unidentified to avoid publicity. Mooney said long study will be needed before any decision is made on whether to separate the infants.

SAN FRANCISCO — Colin Young and Christy Ohman, who met in a beatnik bagel shop, were married Tuesday.

The ceremony was performed in a wind-whipped cypress grove with a killed bagpiper and a far-out guitarist joining in the wedding march.

"We found the piper in the yellow pages," said a friend of the Scots-descended Young. Christy, 18, is a Swedish-descended blonde.

After the ceremony they linked arms and drank goblets of red wine in the Swedish tradition. Then they danced the highland fling to the shrilling of the piper.

False Bomb Threat Breaks Up Sitdown

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A new manoeuvre — the anonymous bomb threat — broke up a Negro sitdown demonstration against segregated lunch counters in a Nashville, Tenn., department store Tuesday.

Police and firemen, acting quickly after claiming to have received a telephone tip that a bomb was in the building, cleared customers and demonstrators from McEllan's, a variety store. No bomb was found.

The sitdown touched off scattered racial incidents which resulted in the arrest of two white persons and five Negroes.

REFUSED SERVICE — Negro college students, for the second consecutive day, took seats at several store lunch counters. None was served.

At McEllan's hundreds of Easter shoppers jammed the area as the Negroes sat down. A taunting crowd of white persons forced them to move on, but not before white youths grabbed anti-segregation signs and punched a Negro demonstrator in separate incidents. A group of 50 white youths beat a Negro who hurled a bottle into the crowd from a second-storey window.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Saanich police court Tuesday:

Joan Ellington, 860 Bardsey, $45 and licence suspension; Charles Richard Layton, 5063 Wesley, $30 and licence suspension; Shana Gate, 104 Crease, $45 and licence suspension, for careless driving.

John Anthony B. Shaw, HMC Dockyard, $25 for driving without a licence.

Garry Wayne Domstad, HMC Dockyard, $25 for allowing another person to use his licence.

Donald R. S. Neuls, 2151 Wenman, $25 for violation of driver's licence restriction.

BINGO, POKER ALSO

Sweep Winnings Safe From Taxes

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA—Those who buy sweepstakes tickets, take a flyer at bingo, win cars in a draw or play poker, can relax — your winnings are safe from the hands of the tax collector.

That was the ruling of tax appeal board member Jacques Panneton today.

He rapped the national revenue department for trying to collect income tax on the $2,275 prize won by an Ottawa grocer three years ago.

The tax appeal board found the money received by Michael Abraham, operator of an independent grocery store affiliated with the Independent Grocers' Alliance, in a 1957 contest operated by IGA was a prize and not taxable income. Mr. Abraham took the money in place of the car originally offered as a prize.

"Should the board decide that a person in a case such as this is taxable on the value of a prize based upon chance or of a lucky break, the government would have to tax sweepstake winners, bingo winners and gamblers who play poker or make casual bets," Mr. Panneton declared.

'Fleming Swims Between Coyné and Churchill'

(From Times News Service)

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA — A graphic word picture of Finance Minister Donald Fleming "swimming in the cold waters between Coyné and Churchill, pulled and pushed by opposing currents" as he attempted to assess the state of the Canadian economy, was painted in the Commons Tuesday.

The word painter was Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson in the budget debate. He noted that during the last few months there had been contradiction — extending even to facts — between Mr. Fleming's views on the economy and those of Trade and Commerce Minister Churchill. There has also been some differences between Mr. Fleming and James E. Coyné, governor of the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Pearson said the finance minister in his speeches, especially his budget address, seemed to be "balanced uneasily between the warnings of Mr. Coyné and the Hosannahs of Mr. Churchill, with one eye on the red light of the governor and the other on the green light of the minister."

The opposition leader added, "In a friendly way I would warn him that it will be difficult to maintain this ambiguous posture. It will require all the political and economic gymnastic ability of the minister of finance."

Mr. Pearson said an example of the contradictions between the two ministers was to be found by comparing a sentence from the finance minister's budget speech on March 31 and one from a speech made by Mr. Churchill on the same general subject on March 21.

H. W. HERRIDGE

UBC Chief 'Went Along' On Rebrin

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons today that President Norman MacKenzie of the University of British Columbia agreed in February to "go along with" the decision of the immigration department in the Rebrin case "without any question."

"He's a jellyfish," said Mr. W. Herridge (CCF, Kootenay West).

Irene Rebrin, Russian-language lecturer at the university has been ordered deported on security grounds.

Mr. Diefenbaker said an immigration department representative he did not identify the official — called on Dr. MacKenzie in February in regard to the case.

Mr. Herridge had asked whether the government would review the case at the request of the university's Faculty Association.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government is "most concerned" to see that no injustice is done. The case has been carefully examined and the government was satisfied the deportation order should not be interfered with.

Harold White (CCF-Vancouver East) asked whether Miss Rebrin has been informed of the substance of the charges against her.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not reply directly.

J. W. Pickersgill (Liberal-Twillingate) asked whether some country is ready to receive Miss Rebrin when she is deported.

"Russia," shouted an unidentified Progressive Conservative.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he thinks there is a country ready to admit her.

The prime minister said the country he has in mind is not a Communist state.

LAST BASES TO BE BUILT

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Bases now being completed in the northern tier of states probably will be the last United States Air Force bases for manned aircraft built, Col. Thomas M. McGehee said on Tuesday.

Col. McGehee, commander of the Grand Forks Air Defense Sector, gave facts and figures on defence at a civilian briefing session.

word for this government," he said.

Mr. Martin also said that Canada's bilingualism and her dual culture represent the greatest defence against the danger of this country being engulfed by the United States.

Speaking in French Mr. Martin congratulated Finance Minister Fleming for continuing his practice of using Canada's two official languages during his budget speech.

"We are in danger of being completely engulfed by our giant friend south of the border."

"In my opinion, our greatest defence against this possible calamity lies in our bilingualism and our dual culture."

Pay Your Taxes, Take Your Choice

The finance minister was reported in Hansard on March 31 (his budget speech) as saying: "Since 1950... the rate of increase in our net foreign indebtedness has exceeded the growth in national output."

"But the minister of trade and commerce as reported in Hansard on March 21 said that the rate of economic expansion had surpassed the rate of increase in Canadian foreign indebtedness."

"Which minister is right?" asked Mr. Pearson. "You pay your taxes and you take your choice."

The opposition leader said the difference between the finance minister in his budget speech and the views of the

'Losing Friendly Newspapers'

The Diefenbaker government has lost the support of many newspapers which were friendly to it when it was first elected, said Murdo Martin (CCF-Timmins).

He said the principle reasons for discontent with the Conservative government were its handling of unemployment, defence, veterans' affairs, agriculture and housing.

The government's reluctance to speak out on racial discrimination in South Africa, he said, "no doubt is interpreted by the black people in South Africa as an indication that the prime minister is on the side of the government there."

INTELLIGENCE REPORTS MISLED GOVERNMENT

They Were So Wrong About the Arrow

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Military testimony before the United States Congress indicates that the Canadian chiefs of staff gave the government an incorrect or incomplete intelligence estimate last year on usefulness of the Arrow interceptor.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons Feb. 23, 1959, that the supersonic Arrow was cancelled because the chiefs of staff, "on the basis of the best information they can secure," determined that it didn't make sense to continue expenditure on it.

Sources of Canadian intelligence on Soviet military activity are not disclosed but they are presumably American.

Mr. Diefenbaker maintained on Jan. 18 this year that the Arrow decision was still the right one because the "day of manned bombers was about to be over."

The opposite picture has been given the U.S. House of Representatives defence appropriations subcommittee by Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of the U.S. Air Force.

In testimony recently released and just made available here, Gen. White said:

"We have plenty of information that their Russian manned aircraft are continuing to be exercised and manoeuvred at a very high rate, in fact, at an increased tempo."

"According to our intelligence, they are continuing production at a reduced rate of their heavy bombers. We also have intelligence that they are developing new bombers."

"Well, now, is there a future for the manned fighter interceptor?"

"I would say definitely, very definitely."

"I still foresee a requirement... for a long-range fighter interceptor for the simple reason that the air-launched missile is here."

"We have it in the Hound Dog. The enemy is developing similar missiles, and it means that the aircraft, the incoming, air-breathing aircraft with its missile, can launch its load long distances from the target."

"That means you must be able to reach it, reach the vehicle before the missile is launched."

"Even the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile won't do it. So I foresee a long-range interceptor, a manned aircraft."

Again, at another point, Gen. White testified:

"We must be able to counter the threat of missiles launched from enemy bomber aircraft. Long-range interceptor aircraft are the most effective weapons for this purpose. They would be able to attack and destroy the bombers before they launched their missiles."

Gen. White said Russia has about 1,200 long-range heavy and medium bombers, including jet bombers comparable to the U.S. Air Force's B-47 and B-52.

"The need for a manned interceptor still exists and likely will exist for a long time to come," Gen. White said.

Only the manned interceptor could identify unknowns in the air defence system. Only the manned interceptor could meet the threat of the bomber-launched air-to-surface missile. Gen. White said the American F-108 long-range interceptor was cancelled last year because of a squeeze on funds.

This is said in some quarters to be the reason the Arrow was cancelled though Defence Minister Pearkes has denied this in the Commons.

He said the main reasons for cancellation were the "decreasing threat" of bombers and "lessening need" of interceptors.

'Fleming Swims Between Coyne and Churchill'

(From Times News Service)

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA — A graphic word picture of Finance Minister Donald Fleming "swimming in the cold waters between Coyne and Churchill, pulled and pushed by opposing currents" as he attempted to assess the state of the Canadian economy, was painted in the Commons Tuesday.

The word painter was Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson in the budget debate. He noted that during the last few months there had been contradiction — extending even to facts — between Mr. Fleming's views on the economy and those of Trade and Commerce Minister Churchill. There has also been some differences between Mr. Fleming and James E. Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Pearson said the finance minister in his speeches, especially his budget address, seemed to be "balanced uneasily between the warnings of Mr. Coyne and the reassurances of Mr. Churchill, with one eye on the red light of the governor and the other on the green light of the minister."

The opposition leader added, "in a friendly way I would warn him that it will be difficult to maintain this ambiguous posture. It will require all the political and economic gymnastic ability of the minister of finance."

Mr. Pearson said an example of the contradictions between the two ministers was to be found by comparing a sentence from the finance minister's budget speech on March 31 and one from a speech made by Mr. Churchill on the same general subject on March 21.

Pay Your Taxes, Take Your Choice

The finance minister was reported in Hansard on March 31 (his budget speech) as saying: "Since 1950... the rate of increase in our net foreign indebtedness has exceeded the growth in national output."

"But the minister of trade and commerce as reported in Hansard on March 21 said that the rate of economic expansion had surpassed the rate of increase in Canadian foreign indebtedness."

"Which minister is right?" asked Mr. Pearson. "You pay your taxes and you take your choice."

The opposition leader said the difference between the finance minister in his budget speech and the views of the

'Losing Friendly Newspapers'

The Diefenbaker government has lost the support of many newspapers which were friendly to it when it was first elected, said Murdoch Martin (CCF-Timmins).

He said the principle reasons for discontent with the Conservative government were its handling of unemployment, defence, veterans' affairs, agriculture and housing.

The government's reluctance to speak out on racial discrimination issue in South Africa, he said "no doubt is interpreted by the black people in South Africa as an indication that the prime minister is on the side of the government there."

"Read through the newspapers from coast to coast and you will find scarcely a kind word for this government," he said.

Mr. Martin also said that Canada's bilingualism and her dual culture represent the greatest defence against the danger of this country being engulfed by the United States. Speaking in French Mr. Martin urged the government to continue its practice of using Canada's two official languages during its budget speech.

"We are in danger of being completely engulfed by our giant friend south of the border. In my opinion, our greatest defence against this possible calamity lies in our bilingualism and our dual culture."

Job Applicants Total 834,990

There were 834,990 unemployed job applicants registered with National Employment Service offices across the country as of March 31, Labor Minister Starr informed Paul Martin (L. Essex East), who commented that the figure given by the minister represented an increase of 53,400 over registrations at the corresponding date last year.

UBC Chief 'Went Along' On Rebrin

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons today that President Norman MacKenzie of the University of British Columbia agreed in February to "go along with" the decision of the immigration department in the Rebrin case "without any question."

"He's a jellyfish," said H. W. Herridge (CCF, Kootenay West).

Rebrin, Russian language lecturer at the university, has been ordered deported on security grounds.

Mr. Diefenbaker said an immigration department representative he did not identify the official called on Dr. MacKenzie in February in regard to the case.

Mr. Herridge had asked whether the government would review the case at the request of the university's Faculty Association.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government is "most concerned" to see that no injustice is done. The case has been carefully examined and the government was satisfied the deportation order should not be interfered with.

Harold Winch (CCF Vancouver East) asked whether Miss Rebrin has been informed of the substance of the charges against her.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not reply directly.

J. W. Pickersgill (L. Bonaville-Twillingate) asked whether some country is ready to receive Miss Rebrin when she is deported.

"Russia," shouted an unidentified Progressive Conservative.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he thinks there is a country ready to admit her.

The prime minister said the country he has in mind is not a Communist state.

Col. McGehee, commander of the Grand Forks air defence sector, gave facts and figures on defence at a civilian briefing session.

Carried Away Tons

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Police say a man they arrested Tuesday carried away two tons of brass bearings from his job with the New Haven railroad over a period of a year. David Thomas, 41, was charged with 16 counts of theft. Each bearing weighs about 30 pounds, and Thomas took 4,000 pounds of them to sell to junk dealers for 16 cents a pound, police said.

INTELLIGENCE REPORTS MISLED GOVERNMENT

They Were So Wrong About the Arrow

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Military testimony before the United States Congress indicates that the Canadian chiefs of staff gave the government an incorrect or incomplete intelligence estimate last year on usefulness of the Arrow interceptor.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons Feb. 23, 1959, that the supersonic Arrow was cancelled because the chiefs of staff, "on the basis of the best information they can secure," determined that it didn't make sense to continue expenditure on it.

Sources of Canadian intelligence on Soviet military activity are not disclosed but they are presumably American. Mr. Diefenbaker maintained on Jan. 18 this year that the Arrow decision was still the right one because the "day of manned bombers was about to be over."

The opposite picture has been given the U.S. House of Representatives defence appropriations subcommittee by Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of the U.S. Air Force.

In testimony recently released and just made available here, Gen. White said: "We have plenty of information that their Russian manned aircraft are continuing to be exercised and manoeuvred at a very high rate, in fact, at an increased tempo."

"According to our intelligence, they are continuing production at a reduced rate of their heavy bombers. We also have intelligence that they are developing new bombers."

"Well, now, is there a future for the manned fighter interceptor?"

"I would say definitely, very definitely."

"I still foresee a requirement for a long-range fighter interceptor for the simple reason that the air-launched missile is here."

"We have it in the Hound Dog. The enemy is developing similar missiles, and it means that the aircraft, the incoming air-breathing aircraft with its missile, can launch its load long distances from the target."

"That means you must be able to reach it, reach the vehicle before the missile is launched."

"Even the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile won't do it. So I foresee a long-range interceptor, a manned aircraft."

Again, at another point, Gen. White testified: "We must be able to counter the threat of missiles launched from enemy bomber aircraft. Long-range interceptor aircraft are the most effective weapons for this purpose. They would be able to attack and destroy the bombers before they launched their missiles."

Gen. White said Russia has about 1,200 long-range heavy and medium bombers, including jet bombers comparable to the U.S. Air Force's B-47 and B-52.

"The need for a manned interceptor still exists and likely will exist for a long time to come," Gen. White said.

Only the manned interceptor could identify unknowns in the air defence system. Only the manned interceptor could meet the threat of the bomber-launched air-to-surface missile.

Gen. White said the American F-108 long-range interceptor was cancelled last year because of a squeeze on funds. This is said in some quarters to be the reason the Arrow was cancelled though Defence Minister Pearson has denied this in the Commons. He said the main reasons for cancellation were the "decreasing threat" of bombers and "lessening need" of interceptors.

The Sudden Conversion

MR. BENNETT IS AT GREAT pains to prove that he always wished to bring European refugees into British Columbia, but he does not succeed.

His correspondence with the federal Government, now published, shows that he refused at the start to have anything to do with the national refugee plan.

He said the original Canadian quota of 100 refugee families was too small to be of any use. Therefore he would not accept British Columbia's share of them. This, as Mr. Howard Green has said, was merely an "alibi" to avoid any action.

The people of British Columbia were quick to protest when other provinces welcomed their quotas of refugees (most of whom are now in good health and supporting themselves) while this province rejected the whole program.

Mr. Bennett's sensitive political ear quickly detected the public's resentment and he is trying to remove it by showing that he favored a large refugee scheme in the first place.

Perhaps he did, but by refusing to participate in a small, experimental scheme he discouraged by his actual policy the very scheme which he advocated in words. The anti failed to work with the public.

Besides demanding the admission of more refugees to Canada and promising at last to take British Columbia's share, Mr. Bennett now proposes large gifts of food by this province to the hungry peoples of the world.

His project merits the fullest consideration and Mr. Bennett credit for advocating it. But before we embark on these gifts we should understand exactly what we are doing.

In the first place, the food to be bought from British Columbia farmers and shipped abroad must be paid for by the provincial Government, with taxpayers' money. So far as we know, the Legislature has voted no money for this purpose. Without such a vote, the provincial Government has no legal right to spend a dollar.

It is to be assumed, therefore, that Mr. Bennett will seek appropriate legislation, before he goes ahead. If he has long had in mind the plight of the poor nations, as he says, why didn't he submit his plans of charity to the Legislature when it was meeting recently? Why this sudden afterthought when he is being criticized for refusing to sponsor a few refugees?

We hope, however, that Mr. Bennett will fully explore his latest project and bring it before the Legislature at its next session in concrete form. The Legislature must know, first, what the food gifts are going to cost the taxpayer and, second, how they are to be managed.

The recent experience of the Manitoba Government may offer Mr. Bennett some guidance. It announced with a flourish that it intended to start a little Colombo Plan of its own and finance, among other things, a technical school in some needy Asiatic country. Then it discovered that it had no constitutional power to tax its people for any expenditures outside Manitoba.

Whether this limitation would apply to Mr. Bennett's plans is not clear, but the question deserves full investigation.

It is obvious anyway that any nation's foreign aid can best be conducted by its national government which alone has control of foreign affairs.

It is also obvious to many Canadians that this nation is not doing enough about foreign aid by way of food gifts or otherwise.

We believe the federal Government would find wide support among a generous people if it increased its small contribution to the Colombo Plan or expanded foreign aid outside it.

The proposed Manitoba policy may fail on constitutional grounds and Mr. Bennett is still a long way from launching his food gifts, but both plans may usefully serve to remind Ottawa that at least a minority of Canadians understand the struggle of the world and are ready to face its costs. They have not been faced in Canada yet.

FIVE HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE

By B. A. TOBIN

Out of the Belfry Into the Hair

THESE are the days in which science is probing ever deeper into nature's secrets. In the laboratory, on the test range, in the cyclotron, trained men are digging into the atom, into the cell, into time, into space, into the fabric of life itself. Sometimes advances are made through painstaking individual study, sometimes through collaboration and teamwork; sometimes through bursts of genius, sometimes through sheer luck. But each gain of new information spells another step of progress; slowly the frontier of learning is pushed back to give man ever greater knowledge, greater power, greater control of his environment.

To this glittering diadem of scientific endeavor has lately been added another jewel; another gem of ascertained fact has taken its place with nuclear fission, orbiting rockets, the cathode ray and the discovery of insulin.

It has been empirically determined that bats do not become entangled in women's hair.

This, of course, has burst like a bombshell in the scientific world. It had been taken as common knowledge—as Aristotle's physics and Copernicus' astronomy were accepted without question for a thousand years—that bats become hopelessly entangled in women's long hair whenever the two come into contact. It was a natural fact, part of the inexorable law of nature and not to be questioned.

But it was questioned. And by none other than the Earl of Cranbrook.

The story is told that Galileo dropped a large iron ball and a small one simultaneously from the leaning tower of Pisa to prove what had not before been believed—that the heavier would not fall more quickly than the lighter.

It is with a somewhat similar impact that the Earl of Cranbrook's recent experiment is revealed in a Reuters news dispatch, proof positive that even today there are new frontiers of science, new areas of learning upon which light may be shone.

Co-Operation

The Earl, with the acquiescence and indeed the assistance of his wife, persuaded five women with long hair—three blondes and two brunettes—to submit to the carefully controlled experiment.

With their spirits bolstered by a few timely drinks of spirit-boistering beverage, the ladies, in separate and individual tests, permitted the Earl to place a bat upon their hair.

While the nobleman watched closely with the trained eye of the scientist and made hurried notes of each phase of the ensuing events, the bats, it is reported, "walked about and then carefully climbed to the top of the head and took wing."

And to cap his experiment, the scientist reports that "there was never any danger, as it is supposed, of their becoming entangled."

The world of laymen will take fresh courage from this, to say nothing of the world of long-haired women and quite a few male pianists and violinists.

Interpretation

It is easy to picture the scene: the woman in the chair, tense or smiling according to her temperament and the authority of her host's wine-cellar; the keen-eyed scientist placing the bat on the luxuriant tresses which soon—who knows—may hold it hopelessly enmeshed; the creature's peripatetic progress over the strands and tendrils, blonde or brunette as the case may be; the triumphant ascent to the top of the head, and the eventual unentangled take-off.

Wherever else the bats may have been, they were not in the hair.

What Rembrandt could have done with a scene like that, rivaling his famous study of the physicians' heads! What spirits of Leonardo, Leewerhoek, Newton and Pasteur—to say nothing of Courvoisier or Mumm—may have hovered around that dedicated group as the experiment was carried to its successful conclusion.

Truly, we are ever on the threshold of great things, and we may confidently expect this recent spectacular breakthrough to be followed by further advances of a like nature.

The triumph is at once an inspiration and a challenge. There must be no faltering now. Lead on, and we will follow!

Arms Plan Needs Police

The Guardian (Manchester)

FRANCE'S second nuclear test has underlined the need for disarmament; and at the same time the lack of progress at the disarmament conference at Geneva has underlined the difficulties in its way.

The disarmament conference opened in a comparatively hopeful atmosphere. Since then it has been bogged down in procedural wrangling; and now it has reached the stage of exchanging insults.

Yet the participants at the conference cannot be wholly blamed for this: the gulf between the East and West cannot be bridged by diplomacy alone, however delicate.

The Russians are reluctant to accept enough effective control to satisfy the West, for it would rob them of their most precious military asset, secrecy. At the same time the West can scarcely be expected to put its head into the lion's mouth without making sure the teeth are drawn. Hence the dispute over an international police force.

For the West, an international police force is an essential part of a complete disarmament plan. How can a disarmed world be secure unless there is an international authority to keep the peace and to prevent clandestine rearmament? But the Russians fear to accept an effective international police force for the very good reason that it would be under the control of their opponents (unless it were subject to the veto—in which case it would be useless).

Outer Space

The same suspicions are evident in the row over the use of outer space. The Americans want to ban the use of outer space for military purposes while it is still relatively easy to devise control measures for such a ban. The Russians are naturally reluctant to do so since at the moment they are ahead in the use of outer space for military purposes.

The Russians are said to be willing to agree to a ban on the use of outer space in return for an end to military bases overseas—but that would mean the end of NATO's main strength.

Yet the French explosion has reminded the world (if the world needed any reminder) that some form of disarmament is becoming more urgent.

It is true that the Geneva conference on nuclear tests has moved a long way forward, and that if it reaches an agreement to ban tests it will become more difficult even for countries not represented at the conference to continue the nuclear arms race. But a ban on tests would not in itself prevent the spread of weapons, even if it prevented the continuation of tests.

It would still be possible for a nuclear Power to give nuclear weapons to its allies. This is probably the most urgent aspect of disarmament—yet at the same time it may turn out to be the easiest to agree upon.

The main reason for the slow progress of the present disarmament conference—and the main reason for the breakdown of previous disarmament conferences—is that Russia is afraid to agree to a sufficient degree of control and inspection on her own territory. But she might agree to it in Central Europe.

If the West were prepared in return for equivalent concessions to accept a zone of arms control in Central Europe and agree not to supply its allies in the area with nuclear weapons, the achievement of complete disarmament would still be a long way off; but the world would be a somewhat less alarming place than it is now.

When Rights Are Trampled

AS IN EVERY STATE WHERE human rights are trampled, the right of the press in South Africa is being restricted.

The newspapers of that country are not under direct censorship, but they must publish with one eye on a law which could find them guilty of inciting opposition to the Government. Almost any factual account of South African police action in recent days could be construed as inciting the public to rebellion, since that must be the reaction of any normal reader.

More directly, a "Publications and Entertainments" Bill has been introduced into Parliament at Cape Town which would put newspapers, books, periodicals and films under control. A Government-appointed publications board would have to give approval so that "undesirable" material could be eliminated. Newspapers would come directly under the attorney-general.

Since "undesirable" is defined in the bill as "anything prejudicially affecting the safety of the state or likely to do so; disturbing peace and order; prejudicing the general welfare..." and so on, it is obvious that nothing the Government does not like will ever see print.

The cry of all oppressive Governments is that the "safety of the state" must be preserved. This has been demonstrated in Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy, Stalin's Russia and many other lands. And the "safety of the state"—to be preserved against its own people—connotes anything that may threaten the regime in power.

It is now apparent that South Africa intends to impose censorship of the dispatches being sent to the world by correspondents of foreign newspapers. It appears that stories of police raids, beatings, whippings and other atrocities are finding their way back to South Africa and giving some of the population a new view of what is going on. There is no need for correspondents to publicize exaggerations and lies, says the Government; all the information necessary can be obtained from the Government publicity offices.

Thus dictatorship continues to run its course, using suppression of the news to try to hide its actions.

On Again, Off Again

THE BROUHAHA WHICH followed the recent cancellation of Mr. Lester Pearson's appearance on a National Hockey League telecast has given the Liberal leader, as he says, more publicity than if he had been seen. It has also drawn national attention to a very questionable fumble by the CBC and raised again the question: How much political interference is there in the operations of Canada's radio and television networks?

The CBC says the advertising agency which handles public relations for the sponsor of the coast-to-coast hockey broadcast cancelled the arranged between-periods interview with Mr. Pearson. The Government, through Revenue Minister Nowlan, says the agency made the suggestion and later withdrew it. But nobody has said why the agency acted thus. The plain implication is that it called off the interview because the CBC quietly turned thumbs down. Here is more than a suspicion of discrimination. The incident is all the more odd because only a few weeks ago Transport Minister Hees appeared on a similar program under similar circumstances and was seen and heard throughout Canada. This was "different," explains Mr. William DuMagne, public relations director of the CBC. Why?

This is the second incident in recent times for which political interference in the CBC seems to provide the only reasonable explanation. Last year CBC producers in Montreal and Toronto struck in protest against the sudden banning of a program of comment on Parliament. It was generally believed that Mr. Diefenbaker had been the source of pressure which resulted in the program's removal.

Now this instance of "Government spokesman off" raises further serious doubts about the CBC.

There should never be cause for doubts concerning a national organization with such an important function to perform. Is it that the Government is too strong, or the CBC management too weak?

Protests Raises

Police and firemen for Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich have been given 11 per cent further increase by a so-called conciliation board from Vancouver.

This brings a first-class policeman, including fringe benefits, to $7,300 a year. How utterly ridiculous can we get?

Two years ago I wrote to the press stating that if the police were to get the same percentages of increases as they had received during the previous 10 years they would end up with (after 40 years of working life of a five-day, 40-hour week) with $3,600 a month including an enormous pension.

How can our federal, provincial or municipal governments or in fact anything continue to function with such outright foolishness?

Thanks Supporters

May I use the medium of your paper on behalf of the Victoria Y's Men's Club to thank all the people of Victoria who have supported our organization in the past year. To all of you who supported our nut sale project, the John Guzewski lectures and the Don Cossack Singers, also to the many companies who donated material and help, go our grateful thanks.

Our special thanks to the members of the Victoria Flying Club for the wonderful way in which they entertained our young lads who were winners in the nut sale project.

Affluence

As he so often does in matters that do not fit his own views in economics, Mr. Hutchison begs the question in giving us his slant on Kenneth Galbraith's "The Affluent Society."

He says that Galbraith's suggested economic remedies cannot apply in Canada because ours is not an affluent society. Undoubtedly Mr. Hutchison adopts this attitude because he shares Mr. Coyne's concern over Canada's balance of payments, and also because Canada's affluence is dependent upon her ability to export.

But surely the fact that our economy is somewhat more precariously balanced than is that of the U.S.A. does not mean that we are not rich!

The fact is that we do have the second highest standard of living in the world and therefore we are an affluent society by Mr. Galbraith's definition. His suggestions fit Canada almost as well as they fit the U.S.A. And I sincerely hope Mr. Hutchison's pessimistic outlook doesn't foot anyone into thinking otherwise.

I hope a great many Canadians will read this interesting and challenging book for themselves, and then decide whether or not the author's ideas have validity for Canada.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Scholars at Play

Driving past Oak Bay High School the other morning it saddened me to see the playing field full of large young men in shorts playing football while their contemporaries in Russia and Germany were studying in their classrooms.

It is little wonder the university authorities bewail the ignorance of each new high school crop entering the university. The school days are so few (about 175 a year) and the school days so short, the scholar can ill afford to play games in school hours.

SPECTATOR.

'Easy Pickings'

It is natural at this time of the year that the taxpayer should be concerned about the result of the city's budget and mill rate for 1960.

It is very disturbing to note the generous increases being allowed to city employees, particularly firemen and policemen. No one questions the right of an individual to a fair wage but the basis of settlement by arbitration boards escapes understanding when an employee after four years of being trained on job commands a salary considerably in excess of teachers or university graduates who must invest a considerable amount of time and money in their training.

Evidently this much abused word "parity" has a very elastic interpretation or arbitration boards are just going through the motions.

Unfortunately property holders are helpless against this onslaught and are unable to influence this trend as the powers of the council under the Municipal Act are very specific.

As long as they know the taxpayer has no choice or protection there will be no tendency to refuse unreasonable wage increases (and stay in office). A taxpayer cannot object to a tax increase, if he does, he loses his property by default if he refuses to pay the taxes assessed on his property. Democracy sometimes moves in mysterious ways and equality does not always exist in practice.

Not only must some way be found to lighten the load on the taxpayer, but also the idea must be dispelled that taxpayers are "easy pickings" for repeated wage increases. The burden on our older citizens particularly with limited incomes must border on the tragic.

Lights Out

Regarding the street standard lights, some city officials say they aren't bright enough. Driving through town (Douglas Street) on Saturday, I counted lights out, beginning at Victoria Press, going south. Practically every standard had a light out on either side of the street. Some standards had even four lights out on two rather dark corners. If these lights were all burning it certainly would keep brighter streets.

Capitalists All

The exhibition at the University of Victoria recently would cause one to wonder just who was the most brainwashed, the speaker or the audience. The speaker for Canada's young "Communists" seems to think there are millions of peasants in Russia when in reality peasantry there is practically extinct. They have been converted into mechanized farmers, some of whom are now rouble millionaires.

The discussion in the university auditorium was a reflection of the economic rivalry between two capitalist powers and had nothing at all to do with Socialism or Communism.

of such inferior size and quality that they are difficult to associate with the original variety.

In gardens where the lifting and dividing of the flowering perennials is not regularly done the plants gradually deteriorate.

As the years pass, the plants produce more and more growths which become progressively more untidy and of such inferior size and quality that they are difficult to associate with the original variety.

Such plants are often discovered when an established garden is taken over, which may be too late in the season for lifting and dividing. They also develop in a well-kept garden when sickness or pressure of business prevents attention being given at the proper time.

Whatever the reason, there is a stop-gap procedure which could well be stated as a job for this Easter weekend, and that is to lessen the number of growths the plants will produce by removing them before they attain too great a size.

Record-Long Session Ends In Ontario; Back in Fall

By The Canadian Press
The Ontario legislature was prorogued Tuesday. The other three sitting houses — Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island — are expected to follow suit this week.

Only the Newfoundland House remains to sit after Easter. It is expected to open its 1960 session April 20. In many provinces the 1960 legislature will be remembered mainly for their lengthy — and sometimes wordy — sittings.

Ontario's session prorogued on its 56th day. It was a record for the province and apparently the longest session of any of the nine legislatures to meet so far this year.

The Quebec House opened earliest, Nov. 18, and sat through one of its longest sessions although observers said it apparently didn't set a record. It was prorogued March 18 after about 50 sitting days.

In Alberta, the House sat a total of 43 days, for the longest session since 1935 when the Social Credit party came to power.

FALL SESSIONS

Both Alberta and Ontario will likely meet again this fall. Ontario Premier Frost has called a second 1960 session for about Nov. 20 and said except for a Christmas recess it will sit into 1961. It will be the first time Ontario has had two sessions in one year.

Mr. Frost also dispelled any hope for long summer vacations for at least some of Ontario's 98 members by setting up six select committees. He said would sit until fall. They will examine such questions as government board, and commissions, land expropriation legislation, cost of medical drugs, crop insurance, automobile insurance and the operation of legislature procedure.

In addition, Ontario has three royal commissions now sitting and two government-appointed public committees named in 1959 will continue to sit during the summer.

ELECTION PLANS

There may be three provincial elections this year. Quebec and Saskatchewan are expected to announce election dates soon. In New Brunswick speculation there will be a vote this summer.

Among the Houses already closed, here is the record of the estimated number of days they sat: Quebec, 50; Ontario, 56; Manitoba, 50; Saskatchewan, 41; Alberta, 43; and British Columbia, 37.

The three Maritimes Houses, expected to prorogue this week, all opened between Feb. 18 and March 1.

Follow-Up Planned On Tourist Essays

Victoria Chamber of Commerce officials today promised a concerted effort will be made to further the development of winning tourist attraction suggestions submitted in the Tourist Appreciation Week adult essay competition.

Contestants have been invited to submit essays on tourist attractions for Victoria which would parallel the Kelowna Regatta, the Penticton Peach Festival and Williams Lake Stampede for interest and attention.

A TAW committee spokesman said he will ask the Tourist Trade Group to recommend a committee be set up before entries close so that it can go into action when winning essays are announced in Tourist Appreciation Week, May 23 to 28.

THEY WON'T DIE

"We don't intend to permit the winning essay suggestions to go unheeded," the spokesman said. "If they can be developed it is our job to look into the matter fully."

For each 25 cents button purchased, wearers will have a chance for a free air trip for two anywhere in Canada or to Honolulu. Second and third prizes will be free trips for two to San Francisco and Seattle.

The Chamber office has already received a considerable number of entries in the Greater Victoria high schools essay and poster contests. Awaiting the winners are prizes totalling $105.

Probe Promised Into Purchases By Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost Monday announced a royal commission to investigate Labor Minister Daley's purchase of a former Niagara parks commission property in 1948.

Two hours earlier the legislature's committee on privileges and election cleared Mr. Daley, chairman of the commission, of any collusion or improper conduct in buying the property.

The committee, however had to vote on an amendment by Liberal Leader Winter meyer, which said the land transaction might be considered indiscreet by the general public because Mr. Daley is a public official. The amendment was defeated 5 to 3.

CALGARY (CP) — A hospital official said Tuesday Calgary's hospital bed shortage is so bad that new-born babies are sleeping in dresser drawers.

INCOME TAX TIPS

(Twelfth in a Series)
By GORDON A. GREEN

Form T-1 General is the larger of the two types of income tax returns for use by individual taxpayers.

Most wage-earners file on T-1-Short, but the larger form must, as stated on page one of the form, be used by individuals in business as proprietors or partners, as well as farmers and fishermen. It is also to be used by those receiving professional fees, commissions or rents, by taxpayers whose investment income is over $2,500 and by those claiming foreign tax credits or capital cost allowances.

Details as to what financial statements must be filed with form T-1 General are given at the top of page 4 of that form. Persons entitled to compute income on the "cash method" must file a profit and loss statement.

Persons whose business includes the buying and selling of merchandise are not entitled to use this method. These people and others using the "cash method" must file a balance sheet as well as a profit and loss statement.

Many business men and women may not be aware of all the deductions allowed in calculating net income for tax purposes. Some of these deductions are not indicated specifically on the tax return form, and yet are allowable by provisions of the Income Tax Act or by regulations issued under that act.

Income from business property is defined in the Income Tax Act as being the profit therefrom for the year, subject to "other provisions" in the act. Thus the calculations of the profit is the first step. This is an accounting problem. After the profit is computed, however, a knowledge of the other provisions in the act is necessary to calculate correctly the net income for tax purposes.

It is impossible to go into all the aspects of accounting for business income and expenses. For guidance on these problems it would be advisable for you to consult someone who has made a study of this work.

Woman's Warning Cry Saves Men in Twister

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—Caught most residents of a Sunnyside Baptist pastor, three persons died and 32 west Texas village in church Tuesday night and all but swept the place off the map.

But for a woman's warning cry seconds before the twister struck, the toll probably would have been much greater in the crossroads community of Sunnyside.

Mrs. C. M. Rogers, wife of Nearly 40 men at a meeting in her husband's church scrambled for two storm cellars close by. Most of them made it. Several were too late.

"The men had to put up their arms and hold up the rafters," said Muri Rogers, 10, son of the minister, in describing how they kept the roof on one shelter from collapsing on 30-odd persons.

"We sure thought the roof was going to fall in," related the youngster, whose mother clutched him in her arms until the twister passed on.

Sunnyside residents emerged to find the farming community shattered. The writhing storm levelled their church, store, grain elevator, cotton gin and four or five homes. All the half-dozen other houses lost their roofs.

The dead and injured were strewn amid rubble piled up five feet high in an area 100 feet square.

Since the tornado swooped in past several farm homes, it was considered possible that other dead might be found today.

Thriving on to the northeast the twister jumped over the city of Amarillo, about 70 miles distant. Another tornado dipped into the edge of the town of Friona, about 30 miles north of Sunnyside, and a third bounced through a farm near Muleshoe, about 30 miles southwest of the shattered village.

The Friona twister rolled a 50-foot house trailer 200 feet, trapping Mrs. Marie Carroll in the wreckage. She suffered a severe back injury. Half the size of pearls pounded the farm country around, denting cars and breaking windows.

Czechoslovakia put three new television stations into operation in 1959, bringing the total to 12.

WEST WANTS EAST GERMAN ELECTIONS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany reached "complete agreement" today on a plan challenging Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to permit completely free elections in Communist East Germany.

proved as far wrong as his prediction last year, the expected $12,000,000 budget surplus would quickly be converted to a deficit.

The government had not done anything "really effective" to reduce mass unemployment. It had taken a "meteorological approach" to unemployment, hoping that it "will go with the snow."

He accused Mr. Fleming of misrepresenting facts when he said in the budget speech that the rise in unemployment was partly attributable to an "unusual increase in the size of Canada's labor force."

Mr. Pearson said statistical tables included in Mr. Fleming's own budget speech show that the increase was, in fact, "unusually low."

Last year, after the present government had produced another budgetary deficit, the Liberal opposition had been accused of "indulging in gloom."

Mr. Pearson said some of the "liberal predictions on the economy" turned out to be not pessimistic enough in the light of events.

SENTENCE COMMUTED

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Glen Pedersen, 40, of Grand Centre, Alta., convicted of the strangulation murder of 43-year-old Patricia Scullion.

The complete cost of the original missile program of Prime Minister Macmillan's government would have been between £500,000,000 and £600,000,000, he said. The government felt that only the United States and Russia have the economic and military resources for an independent rocket program.

Watkinson explained why the far-reaching decision was taken to prune the program: "Vulnerability of missiles launched from static sites and the practicability of launching missiles of considerable range from mobile platforms have now been established."

This clearly referred to the Soviet Union's recent rocket-firing achievements. Moscow said a Soviet missile was fired within 1.5 miles of a target in the Pacific from a launcher about 6,500 nautical miles away.

Watkinson was quickly involved in heated exchanges with the opposition members as well. At one stage, amid scenes of confusion, shouts and noise, the proceedings of the Commons were brought to a standstill.

Conservative member F. W. Fayer-Jones said the government's decision was "climatic." He said it "put in pawn to the United States British scientific progress in the exploration of outer space for the next 25 to 30 years."

Labor's defence spokesman, George Brown, said the announcement climaxed "a most incredible chapter of obstinacy." He called for an immediate investigation into the entire affair.

Liberal Leader Joe Grimond backed the demand for an investigation to determine "whether the waste" of £65,000,000 in development funds was justified.

At Ottawa officials said scrapping of the Blue Streak has no direct application to the Canadian defence picture because Canada has no ballistic missiles and does not intend to acquire them.

However, the British decision demonstrated the vulnerability of ground-based missiles such as the Bomarc anti-aircraft weapon which Canada is scheduled to get late next year.

Dutch Church Scored In S. Africa Racial Issue

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—The Dutch Reformed Church today faced demands that it take a stand against segregation as the South African government mapped plans to make the country less dependent on Negro labor.

Meanwhile, Norman Phillips, foreign editor of the Toronto Star, who was freed Tuesday after having been jailed since last Saturday when a cable office employee sent his story to government officials instead of filing it, was preparing to leave the country.

Released after undergoing questioning and spending three nights on the concrete floor of a jail because his story was deemed "violently prejudiced", the Canadian reporter was ordered out of South Africa.

CHURCH QUARREL

Leaders of the Dutch Reformed Church, to which many Afrikaner members of the government belong, are considering criticisms by Most Rev. Joost de Blank, Anglican archbishop of Capetown, who said Monday that unless the Dutch Reformed Church repudiates compulsory racial segregation, other Christian churches should refuse to be associated with it in any council or federation.

Reports indicated that most of the country was quiet today.

Police, who raided 10 Negro townships and made 100 arrests in a "cleanup" drive Tuesday, said tension appeared to have abated.

VERWOERD IMPROVES

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, shot in the face in an assassination attempt Saturday, continued to make gradual progress. Reports said his only physical impairment is expected to be slight deafness in the right ear.

Two bullets lodged in his neck were only skin deep and could be removed under local anaesthetic, the reports said.

There was no further news today on the whereabouts of David Pratt, wealthy white farmer who is alleged to have shot Verwoerd. Even his lawyer had not been told where he was Tuesday. Under emergency regulations he could be held for the duration of the state of emergency without being arraigned.

Interior Minister Tom Naudé white settlers, and urged white farmers to do without importation of Negro labor from policies to encourage more nearby countries.

BUT CANCER GROUP MEMBERSHIP TOO LOW

'Interest Rate' Runs High

The re-elected president of the Victoria unit of Canadian Cancer Society appealed at its annual meeting Tuesday for more volunteer helpers.

Mrs. P. E. Corby told the meeting that although interest in work of the unit is great, actual membership is low.

She praised those volunteers who have assisted with the welfare work of the unit, driving cancer patients to and from Jubilee Hospital cancer clinic, for example.

Vice-president Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, Jubilee medical superintendent, told members that funds collected this year would help staff B.C. cancer research unit, now under construction at University of British Columbia.

A total of $625,000 is pledged toward this unit by the B.C. branch of the cancer society, to which the local campaign contributes.

HALF TO RESEARCH

Almost half of the moneys donated by the public are used for research financing, he said. Last year $117,000 was given by the provincial campaign.

Locally, well in excess of $2,000 was spent on welfare, secretary Miss Margaret Bradley told members.

Dr. H. M. Edmison was elected a vice-president; directors are Dr. F. G. Stuart, K. W. L. Scace, Dugald Gillespie, G. A. Hebdon, Mrs. Dorothy Watson, Miss Elizabeth Riddell, Col. J. Q. Gillan, W. C. Roberts, Frank Mulliner and Seth Halton.

ask Andy HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

In these something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive primer? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to be asked in the future. Andy will receive weekly prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) or the second question a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (U.S. edition). Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Ronnie Bernhardt, age 11, of Lyons, N.Y., for his question:

What are X-rays?

Our world, and perhaps the whole universe, teems with various kinds of energy which exist in the form of waves. These energy waves could be compared to the ripples when you toss a pebble into a pond. However, most of these energy waves are invisible to our eyes because they are so small and they travel so fast.

One form of wave energy brings up our radio and television signals. The receiving sets change it into things we can see and hear. Sunlight is another form of wave energy. Other extremely short waves of energy carry messages from the Pioneer V satellite which is now busy orbiting the sun. Our modern world is full of gadgets for translating these waves of energy into sights and sounds which we can see and hear.

The story of X-ray is the story of still another form of wave energy. This form of energy was discovered in the year 1895 by Wilhelm Roentgen of Germany. Light energy, of course, does not pierce a solid object - which is why we cannot see our bones. The energy discovered by Roentgen does pass through solid objects - at least to some degree. It passes through flesh, but not through bones.

In no time at all, this discovery was put to good use in the world of medicine. Roentgen's rays were used to take a peek inside the human body. What's more, they were used to take pictures of the bones inside the living body. The rays are turned on, pass through the body and strike a photographic plate on the other side. Bones, which are denser than flesh, absorb more of the rays, leaving dark areas on the photographic plate.

Roentgen named his discovery X-rays because he did not know what they were. Officially this amazing form of energy is called Roentgen rays in honor of the discoverer.

Short Wave Length Secret

X-rays penetrate further than ordinary light because they travel on shorter wave lengths. Their short, pulsing waves can wriggle through and around atoms with great ease. We can step them up to even shorter wave lengths. Those of fairly short wave lengths are called soft X-rays and soft X-rays are used in medicine.

Hard X-rays are also used to study crystal formations. Here a picture is taken of the waves which bounce off each crystal surface. The result is a design as dainty as a doily. Each substance has its own crystal formation and an X-ray picture of this structure is as reliable as a fingerprint.

Fire Claims Three

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - Three persons died Tuesday in a fire that mushroomed through a two-story frame house. Two members of the family survived. A father saved his 2-year-old daughter by dropping her out of a second-floor window of the burning home.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

MIAMI BEACH—Elvis Presley's TV price just went up from $125,000 to $150,000 an appearance—and you can only have him for that, says his manager Col. Tom Parker, loftily, "providing we're available."

"I don't think I'm being unreasonable asking $150,000 for Elvis," claimed the Colonel, a very realistic middle-aged farm boy from Madison, Tenn.

He's sure that Frank Sinatra's May 12 TV show with Elvis, Sammy Davis, Peter Lawford, Joey Bishop and Nancy Sinatra will set rating records—and figured he ought to raise Elvis' record-high fee to another record-high fee now. Elvis got the $125,000 for doing two songs on his own and a duet with Sinatra.

"Why, Elvis has got a new gold record already and it's only been out 10 days," boomed the Colonel.

It was so new that the Colonel's forgotten its name. Turned out it's "Fame and Fortune," and the Colonel said it would be the 25th gold record Elvis'll hang in his playroom—which has a bar where no booze—only soft stuff is served.

I asked the Colonel whether Elvis might do hotel appearances.

"I doubt it," replied the Colonel instantly. "Why, they'd have to sell the hotel to pay us."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

Abbe Lane (who lost a close friend in the recent airline crash) delayed her next cafe dates so she can travel by train instead of flying.

Maurice (Doberman) Gosfield and Herbie Faye are teaming up as a night-club comedy duo.

Ed Sullivan cancelled his talent-scouting trip to Greece.

Gary Crosby's dating busy singer Betty George (with the Milton Berle troupe) in Las Vegas.

Actress Diane Varsi, who quit H-wood for Bennington, Vt., will have a visitor—actor Mark-Damon, who dated her in L.A. ... Paulette Goddard, touring in "Laura," gets $4,000 a week plus chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce in Chicago.

Marion Brando inquired about the screen rights to the B-way hit, "Tenth Man." ... Frank Parker (formerly of the Godfrey TV'er) will do a songs-and-comedy act at the cafes.

Keely Smith'll take a Paris vacation while husband Louis Prima keeps busy working in Las Vegas. ... Comic Pinky Lee walked angrily off a EARL'S FEARS: Tony Petito defines a mouse: "Something a woman's afraid of—till she marries one."

TO-AY'S BEST LAUGH: Some people will gamble on anything. Now they're beginning to save money on the chance that some day it'll be worth something.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The trouble with reading the classics (complains Sylvia Miller) is that the people in 'em talk like books.

"All I know about a woman's age," says Bob Hope, "is what my daddy told me: If she looks old, she's old. If she looks young, she's young. If she looks back, follow her." That's earl, brother.

Pleads Not Guilty

(From Duncan Bureau)

George Highmoor, Cowichan Bay, injured driver of a car involved in a two-car accident on the Trans-Canada Highway at the old Koksilah Road, April 2, pleaded not guilty in Duncan police court, Monday, to a charge of careless driving.

Magistrate A. C. Sutton remanded the case to May 31 to enable Mrs. Highmoor, still in King's Daughters' Hospital with injuries, to be called as a defence witness. A further remand may be needed.

Driver of the second car, Miss Marian Levine, Nanaimo, is still in hospital with injuries to her leg and head.

Mr. Highmoor will be represented in court by Lance Heard, Duncan barrister.

All-Time High

(From Duncan Bureau)

Enrollment of 4-H members on South Vancouver Island has reached an all-time high of 325.

The result will be two general field days in the Cowichan area this year instead of one.

On May 28 Cowichan-Cowichan Hill 4-H Council will arrange a field day on Cowichan Exhibition grounds with all members north of the Malahat and south of Nanaimo, being welcomed.

On June 25 the Malahat South 4-H Council will host all their members at a field day at Saanichton.

Ken Jameson, district agriculturalist at Duncan, will supervise both events.

Ganges Boxers Win

GANGES—Two of the four members of Salt Spring Island Boxing Club who attended the Silver Gloves tournament in Surrey on the weekend won their divisions.

Morris Akerman was victorious in the 80-pound class, and Don Morrison Jr. in the 90-pound division. Runners up were Danny Akerman, 60 pounds, and John Campbell, 118 pounds.

They were accompanied by Bob Akerman, Gavin Reynolds, and Don Morrison.

Judge Denies Divorce When 'Deal' Bared

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris Monday denied a divorce decree because the married couple and alleged co-respondent had made a deal, but the judge added that he hopes the case will be taken to Court of Appeal.

Mr. Justice Norris refused a decree to Arvid Johnson, 50, a logger and fisherman, married for 20 years to Margaret Irene Johnson. Alleged co-respondent is bachelor fisherman Norman Arnet of Cape Mudge.

Mr. Justice Norris said that to grant a decree would be to put the court's seal of approval to divorce by consent or the result of bargaining.

But he said that because of conflicting legal decisions on collusion across Canada he hopes the case will be taken to Court of Appeal.

The judge said that the three adults involved in this case signed an agreement last May which made the divorce collusive.

WEAKENED

He said there was no direct evidence of adultery and the force of what there was had been weakened by the collusive agreement.

"While one may abhor the hypocrisy which at present tends to becloud the administration of justice in divorce matters," he said, "a judge will be alert against anything which would prevent the courts from giving the dissolution of the marriage vows the closest scrutiny—anything which in the long run will encourage the present trend in which persons who have vowed to live together as long as they both shall live, seek to change their spouses as they would change articles of apparel and so often forget the ability to forgive is a gift beyond price."

Two Survive
Plane Flip

PORT WASHINGTON—

Two Vancouver men, pilot John Morgan and passenger James Cameron, escaped unhurt from a Cessna 140 float plane at 10 a.m. Tuesday when it flipped over while taxiing near Otter Bay, North Pender Island.

They made their way to shore to notify Walter Cunliffe, storekeeper here, who, in turn, informed RCMP at Ganges, who attended with the police patrol vessel Sidney.

Police put a towline on the capsized plane, property of Vancouver Aero Club, and set it ashore at Shingle Bay. They were assisted by Darrel Georgeson of Mayne Island in his boat Sophia.

PORT ALBERNI GIRL, CHEMAINUS MAN

Two More Islanders Hit by Polio

Two new cases of polio on Vancouver Island have raised the B.C. total number this year to 35; Dr. G. F. Amyot, deputy provincial health officer, reported Tuesday.

A 16-year-old girl at Port Alberni and a 38-year-old man at Chemainus are the latest polio victims. The only other island victim of polio this year was Tony Gardner of Happy Valley who was stricken last week.

"It is too early yet to forecast whether British Columbia is heading into another bad polio year," Dr. Amyot said. "It may be the cases we have had so far are a carry-over from last year's heavy incidence of polio."

Dr. Amyot said April is early in the year for polio to strike (it usually occurs in hot weather), but this has happened previously following a severe polio year.

None of the latest three victims have received Salk vaccine.

A report on polio cases in 1959 and their relationship to Salk vaccine is to be issued by the health department soon.

Scout Hall Offer

An offer will be made to Saanich council by Prospect Lake and District Community Association to lease and renovate a house now being used as a community centre and Boy Scouts' meeting place.

Council is ready to have the building torn down since it feels cost of proper renovations would be too high.

10-Min. Delay Costs $350

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Operating one of the world's sleekest, largest, quickest jet aircraft ought to make an airline company feel pretty proud.

"It does," Al Carlson was saying in Victoria this week. Mr. Carlson is a public relations officer for Trans-Canada Air Lines, the owner of the sleekest, largest, fastest, aircraft, the DC8.

Put into Trans-Canada service last week, the DC8 made a liar—or at least a poor prophet—out of TCA's flight schedule director. Holding a moist finger in the wind he had calculated the DC8 would require four hours for the Vancouver-Toronto voyage. The DC8 has since been spanning the 2,755 miles in just under three and a half hours.

Fast?

"Went to Calgary the other day in 54 minutes," said Mr. Carlson. "Our average ground speed was 667 miles per hour."

Mr. Carlson had a story about Calgary.

Telling it he turned a little pale.

"We taxied to the end of the runway and were waiting for the tower to send us off. In the distance... must have been four miles away... I saw a speck in the sky. We sat there and sat there while the speck made a long, slow approach and finally sat down, taking most of the runway to do it."

He shook his head.

"I don't want to get involved in an argument with the Calgary tower. But while we waited for that little private plane to come in we had been burning 800 gallons of fuel a minute. In 10 minutes that flight added $350 to our flight costs... or the equivalent of a ticket between Montreal and London."

Apart from delays, takeoffs by the DC8 involve an unusual technique.

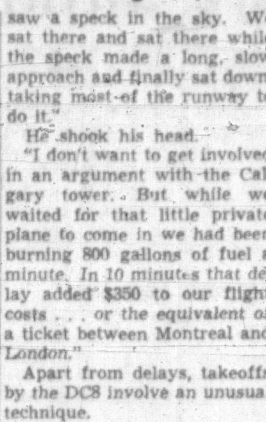

DIFFERENT SPEEDS

"In most aircraft," Mr. Carlson explained, "pilots take off by the book. That is, the book says the aircraft has such and such a runway speed, a certain nose-up speed and the final lift."

"That's not the way it works with the DC8. Each takeoff can be done at different speeds. The third pilot feeds information on wind and weather together with other factors into a built-in computing machine. He punches a few buttons and out comes a card telling the required speeds for the three phases."

Public reaction to the DC8 has been good, he said. Better than expected.

"We've had nearly 100 per cent capacity in our first class section. Over 60 per cent capacity in tourist."

ODD LOTS... T. A. Menzies, Fidelity Life Insurance, Courtenay, and D. R. Mulholland, CLU, Confederation Life, Victoria, are among a select group of 15 life underwriters from western Canada attending a two-day conference of chairmen of the Life Underwriters' Association training course this week at Regina.

More than 2,000 students are engaged in the two-year, LUATC courses aimed at increasing their professional competence.

Four top speakers are scheduled to mount the podium at the 43rd general conference of the Pacific Northwest Trade Association in Vancouver May 9-10. They are: Dr. H. W. Dittman, commercial secretary, German Embassy, Washington, D.C.; Major-General George H. Olmstead, president, International Bank of Washington, D.C.; T. B. G. Niagara Gas Files New Application

OTTAWA (CP)—Niagara Gas Transmission Company filed a new natural gas export application with the National Energy Board Tuesday and a date will be set shortly for a hearing.

Niagara Gas, subsidiary of Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto, was the only one of five applicants unsuccessfully seeking an export licence earlier this year. The board ruled that its export price wasn't high enough for one thing.

Milling Firms Merger Planned

MONTREAL (CP)—Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd. has offered to purchase the 15,000 outstanding seven-per cent cumulative shares of Lake of the Woods Milling Co. Ltd. at $130 a share.

Ogilvie bought out the common stock of the Montreal company in 1954.

Arthur Atkins, president of Ogilvie, said the acquisition will facilitate further integration and the eventual complete merger of the operation of the two companies.

The quarterly dividend of $1.75 payable on the preferred shares June 1 to shareholders of record May 20 will be paid by Ogilvie to those who sell their stock on the record date to compensate for the loss of dividend.

Increased Earnings For Marshall Wells

WINNIPEG (CP)—Marshall Wells of Canada Ltd. today reported 1959 net earnings after provision for income taxes of $830,910, compared with $813,690 in 1958.

The western hardware firm said that after deducting preferred stock dividends of $94,387, net earnings were equivalent to 67 cents a share of 1,097,715 shares compared with 66 cents a share on 1,082,225 shares a year earlier.

Bank Rate Up

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada interest rate rose to 3.83 per cent this week from 3.49 last week with the sale of $115,000,000 in 92-day government treasury bills.

Coin Discount Headaches

By The Canadian Press

The decision of Canadian banks to discount United States coins is posing a problem to many businesses and public transit systems across the country.

In Vancouver, the British Columbia Electric Company, which operates a transit system, estimates it will absorb a $3,000 weekly exchange loss from the coins.

In Calgary, Harold Arscott, the assistant city treasurer, said that because of the large number of Americans living in the area it is feared the city's parking meters will be flooded with the coins.

In Toronto, the Toronto Transit Commission and many restaurants have refused to accept American silver. The crackdown on the coins started in full force last week when Canadian banks announced they would discount the coins at a rate 2 per cent higher than the prevailing daily rate for paper money. The discount was to apply on U.S. silver in amounts of a dollar or more.

COINS 25 PER CENT U.S.

Bankers had become concerned over the influx of the coins in Canada after they estimated that 25 per cent of the coins carried around in the average Canadian's pockets were of U.S. origin.

In Vancouver, the B.C. Telephone Company, estimating that $30,000 of its monthly $120,000 take from pay telephones is in U.S. coins, said: "We'll just have to live with it." The company said that eliminating U.S. silver from pay phones would require considerable modification.

SOME WON'T BOTHER

In Saskatchewan, Bob Slarcy, manager of the Moose Jaw Transit System, said the transit line has stopped discounting the coins.

"We started some time ago to charge on 50-cent pieces but during the first day we ran into a snag. One of our drivers asked a lady for four cents exchange on a 50-cent piece and while she was looking for the four cents, he put a quarter, two dimes and a nickel on the tray. When they both looked at the change, it so happened it was all American. That stopped that."

In Winnipeg, many large stores still are accepting the coins up to $1 at par. The Greater Winnipeg Transit System also accepts the coins but it says it is watching closely to make sure it does not suffer a heavy loss.

LETTER OF THE LAW

In Peterborough, Ont., a merchant who recently paid a $6.87 electrical bill received a letter from the commission complaining that 25 cents of the amount had been paid in U.S. silver.

The letter said a two-cent discount would be added to the merchant's next bill. But it cost the commission four cents to mail the letter.

Bell Telephone Company officials have not taken any steps against using the coins in pay booths but in company cafeterias in Montreal notices went up that no U.S. coins will be accepted.

The company said it has been using for years U.S. coins collected from pay telephones for settlements with U.S. telephone companies concerning long-distance calls.

"We ship the coins down literally in bulk," a company spokesman said.

In Quebec City, neither stores nor transit lines are discounting the coins. Most stores keep the coins in circulation, making change in American coin.

U.K. PLANE FIRM FORECLOSES

Capital Airlines Owes $33.8 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — A British airplane manufacturer has started foreclosure proceedings against Capital Airlines, which owes the company $33,842,000 for a fleet of Viscount airliners.

An instalment of $11,981,000 from the American line is overdue, the British firm, Vickers-Armstrong Ltd., said Tuesday. Another instalment of $14,158,589 will fall due within a year.

Theoretically Vickers-Armstrong could put Capital out of business by seizing the Viscounts. But lawyers quoted Maj. Gen. Sir Charles Dunphrie, chairman of the British company, as saying: "Vickers is taking this action with extreme reluctance. We recognize the position which Capital occupies as a major trunk carrier and the public interest in its continued operation and would, of course, be willing to co-operate in a sound plan which makes adequate provision for the notes and for the solution of Capital's financial problem."

Capital, fifth largest airline in the United States, recently asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for a $12,949,000 yearly air mail subsidy. The board turned it down pending a full hearing.

Based in Washington, the airline operates 1,000 route-miles serving 77 cities on the Eastern and midwest States.

Capital and Trans-Canada

Air Lines were the first in North America to put the four-engine turbo-prop Viscounts into service. Eventually Capital bought 60 at a total cost of $67,000,000. It gave promissory notes to Vickers for the unpaid balance.

Park Royal 'Twin' Set For Eaton's

A $6,000,000 department store and shopping centre development — a "twin" for the Park Royal project — will be built in West Vancouver, it was announced jointly Tuesday by T. Eaton Co. of Canada and Park Royal Shopping Centre Ltd.

First phase of the development will see a 120,000-square-foot, two-storey department store for Eaton's. Provision will be made for expansion to 180,000 square feet by addition of a third storey.

Besides the department store the centre will include a bank, large food market, restaurant, drug store, variety store, service, apparel and other establishments with floor space of 110,000 square feet.

42 ACRES

The entire project will be built on 42 acres of the Capilano Indian Reserve south of the present Park Royal centre on Marine Drive.

When completed Park Royal will become the first two-department store shopping centre in B.C.

C. B. K. Van Norman, architect for the existing Park Royal development, will be in the same role for Eaton's.

Consultants are John Graham & Co. of Seattle, Toronto and New York. E. W. Richardson of West Vancouver is consulting engineer.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

The fast ball appeared to be trimmed with a blurred halo of mist, but it followed its own course with a tormenting anarchy, like a homing pigeon afflicted with amnesia. The curve ball turned from its ordained route with a sinking abruptness, like an orbicular fowl ducking from a hawk's dive. The quick swerve carried it out of the strike zone.

The batters waited with a frightened patience, and Sam Jones generally put them on with a base on balls. The pitcher is a manual laborer, but the good ones have the exquisite skills of an artisan who works with small tools at a task requiring precision and accuracy. Despite his natural talent, Jones was similar to a man trying to write the Lord's Prayer on the head of a pin with a trowel.

The defect of wildness mutilated his talent and Jones drifted from Cleveland to the Cardinals, from the Cubs to the Giants, where last year he finally tamed his stuff and, at 35, became the most spectacular pitcher in the league. The delayed importance of Jones is verified because he was selected to pitch the first game in the Giants' new park in San Francisco.

The figures down in the book do not describe his worth to the Giants last year. He won 21 and lost 15, but he appointed himself the guardian of all games in jeopardy and loped down to the bullpen in his clumsy big man's way if the Giants had a chance and the starting pitcher was faltering. In organized baseball since '36, Jones had never before performed as a savior, because his stuff was unreliable and a relief pitcher must throw strikes.

Even in the years when Jones was missing, his speed intimidated the batters. For a guy who has a pleasant manner when the game is done, Jones has a reputation for meanness. Once, on a bus coming from an All-Star game, I eavesdropped as Hank Aaron complained about Jones to Willie Mays and Ernie Banks.

"Sam knocks you down," said Aaron, "and then challenges you to go under the stands and fight while you're laying on the ground."

"Go with him," said Banks, "Sam ain't going to fight. He just likes to talk."

But Aaron rejected the suggestion because Jones still addresses him with a cruel humor. Standing on the top step of the dugout, Jones shouts frightening messages to the greatest hitter in the National League.

"Hey, Hank," he yells, "where do you want your get-well card sent?"

It is now all behind Jones, who won the opening game Tuesday for the Giants, allowing the Cardinals only three hits.

"The difference is this club," Jones said last week. "Good defence and more runs. Even when a club makes two or three runs off you, you got a chance."

The cure was simple. Jones believes that Freddy Hutchinson, who managed the Cardinals then, gave him control. "It's just keeping my head on the batter," the pitcher explained. "I had a big wind-up and turned my head away from the hitter. I lost sight of him. Hutchinson cut down my wind-up. I tried two or three different motions before I got the curve over. Hutchinson made me concentrate."

At Jones' advanced age, pitchers have a tendency to guard their diminishing stamina.

"All season Sam would come to me on the bench," said Bill Rigney, who manages the Giants, "and say he was ready if I wanted him."

The pitcher doesn't dramatize it, but his reason for his selfishness is beautiful if you understand the traditions of the sport.

"We had a chance," he said. "I wanted to win." And Sam Jones had been a long time losing.

Boxer On Brink Of Death

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—University of Wisconsin boxer Charlie Mohr slept on the brink of death from a spreading brain injury Tuesday.

And while family and friends kept a vigil at university hospital for the 22-year-old former National Collegiate middleweight champion, a wave of controversy began to rumble across the hushed campus.

Wisconsin was the first Big Ten school to undertake big time college boxing in 1933 and for the past several years has been the only member of the western conference to retain it as an inter-collegiate sport.

There had been a brief note of improvement in Mohr's condition, but it remained "very critical" after 48 hours of unconsciousness. Hundreds of students joined Mohr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mohr and his two sisters at the hospital Tuesday.

Mohr collapsed Saturday night, 10 minutes after he lost his 165-pound crown to Stu Bartell of Brooklyn, N.Y., carrying the colors of San Jose State in the NCAA championships.

NOT MADE PUBLIC The final moments of the bout roused controversy. A University of Wisconsin motion picture photographer recorded the fight, but athletic director Ivan Williamson refused to make any of the pictures public.

A newsman who saw prints said, however, that a sequence showed Bartell aiming and delivering a blow to Mohr's head seconds before the bout was stopped.

Bartell, interviewed at his Brooklyn home, said he didn't think one of his punches landed on his head. "I connected to the chin and he looked glassy-eyed," he said.

Dr. John H. Flynn, boxing team physician and head of the student health centre, said that Mohr had been examined in the department of psychiatry recently, and observed that surgeons had reported a condition may have existed which made Mohr's blood vessels "more than normally susceptible to injury."

East Hoop Brass Pulling Fast One?

KELOWNA (CP)—British Columbia basketball officials suspect "some of the East's phoney baloney" is involved in a statement Tuesday that Kelowna's Teddy Bears didn't really win the Canadian Senior B women's basketball championship after all.

Teddy Bears defeated Toronto Shamrocks in straight games here last weekend in a best-of-three series billed as the Canadian Senior B championship.

Tuesday, Fred Bibby of Toronto, a member of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association's national executive and registrar for men's and women's leagues, said the Kelowna series was "only an exhibition."

Bibby said the B.C. girls aren't registered among those who compete for the Canadian title and the Canadian finals are to be held in St. Lambert, Que., April 22-23 between Toronto Shamrocks and St. Lambert.

Luke Moyle of Vancouver, president of the B.C. Amateur Basketball Association, said "It sounds like some of the East's phoney baloney again. Evidently they didn't think Kelowna would beat Toronto."

HE'LL FIGHT ANYBODY ELSE

DETROIT (UPI)—Henry Hank, 25-year-old middleweight contender, would like to fight anyone in the 160-pound division except Sugar Ray Robinson.

"I wouldn't want to fight Sugar Ray because he's too good for me," Hank said. "You can get hurt when you're too old. And of six straight fights, four by knockout, is ranked No. 3 by the NBA."

The hard-punching Detroit boxer, who can't buy a fight in his home town, said he thinks he can kyo over light heavy can kyo any middleweight in the world, including National Boxing Association champion Gene Fullmer.

"I'll keep knocking them out until I'm ranked No. 1," he said.

He's last start was a six-round loss to light heavy-weight contender Sixto Rod

Vancouver Carries Streak To Victoria Ice Tonight

Canucks 2, Cougars 1

By DOUG PEDEN

VANCOUVER—Danny Belisle is obviously a fellow who likes to have the last word, a habit which isn't calculated to win him any friends in Victoria hockey circles.

The 22-year-old native of South Porcupine, Ont., was patrolling right wing for Vancouver Canucks, has scored Vancouver's last goal in each of the last three games of the Western Hockey League final against Victoria Cougars.

Canucks have won all three and thus will be packing a 3-2 lead when the sixth game of the best-of-five series for the President's Cup goes on stage at Victoria's Memorial Arena tonight.

The story of the playoff is proof that Danny's late raffles are becoming a success pattern for the Canucks.

In the first game he merely fired the first goal and the Canucks lost that one when Doug Anderson drilled an overtime tally for the Cats. Belisle was silent in the second tussle and that one went to the Cats by a 4-2 count.

Danny started getting in the last word and the Canucks started on the comeback trail when his goal with 77 seconds remaining in the third game produced a 3-2 Vancouver victory. He also wound up the scoring at Victoria last Saturday, but nobody paid much attention because the league champions were rolling along with a healthy lead and eventually finished with a resounding 6-2 triumph.

But all the 5,900 fans that packed Vancouver's Forum Tuesday night climbed out of their seats to watch Belisle when he broke loose midway in the third period and punched in the goal that gave the Canucks a cliff-hanging 2-1 victory and the series lead for the first time.

Puck Bounced for Forum Favorites

It was a heartbreaking loss for the Cats, who rebounded from Saturday's upset effort with one of their best games of the season. Hustling all the way, they had a slight territorial edge and a couple of times appeared to have the rugged Canucks on the run.

But, in a game that was so close that it was evident it would be decided by one break, the puck bounced right for the Forum favorites.

Clearing after a face-off in their end, the Canucks got the puck across the blue line to Dale Anderson. The husky defenseman hammered a cross-rink pass that seemed destined to carom into the Victoria zone. Instead, the puck bounced off the boards at an unexpected angle in mid-air and both Belisle and Victoria defenseman Jack Bionda rushed for it.

Danny won the race and had a clear run at the Victoria goal and skated right in on goalie Marcel Pelletier before getting his shot away. It was partially blocked, but the rubber slid under Pelletier's pads and into the net to snap a 1-1 deadlock.

That was it for the Cats, although they gave their arch-rivals a few big scares in the remaining 10 minutes. The Canucks protected the lead with leech-like checking and almost made it 3-1 when Pelletier was lifted for a sixth minute and Ray Cyr just missed a 60-foot chance at the open net.

Colin Kilburn shoved the Canucks out in front before the game was two minutes old, getting a surprise goal during a scramble when he bounced the puck high off a Pelletier arm and happily watched it flop into the goal.

Demoralized for a couple of minutes by the quick tally, the Cats bounced back and finally evened the count at 2-2 at the second period when Art Jones neatly turned a pass from Paul Masnick behind goalie Hank Bassen.

Kilburn Trio Set Scoring Pace

Full of skate and determination, the Cougars played their best hockey in the middle portion of the second session and in the opening stages of the third. In a game that was filled with spectacular end-to-end rushes and was undoubtedly the best of the series, it took some outstanding work by Vancouver rearguards and Bassen to hold the Cats to one goal.

Canucks, ever dangerous on their dashes, also ran into sturdy defending and Pelletier came up with several sparkling moves as he made 28 saves. Bassen was credited with 24 stops.

Despite the blistering pace and some crunching checks, referee Scotty Morrison doled out only two minor penalties, two to each club.

Filling out of the Forum, the Cats were still confident. "We'll beat them tomorrow night, and we'll win the series," was a favorite prediction.

"It's a shame that we lost after playing that well," said manager-coach Hal Laycoe. "I thought our boys really ground it out. It's too bad that when the break came it had to go to them."

"That line," added Hal, "killed Edmonton in the semifinal and now it's killing us."

The "line" is the unit of Kilburn, Ray Cyr and Belisle, which is setting the pace in playoff scoring. The unit has accounted for 13 goals and 20 assists in nine playoff games, including six goals against the Cats.

The Cougars will be trying to stop that trio and the Canucks when they go back to work at 8:30 tonight in the Memorial Arena.

Did Apartheid Label Send Ed to Reserves?

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP)—South African soccer star Eddie Stuart claimed Tuesday the apartheid controversy had cost him his place in the Wolverhampton Wanderers team.

"I am getting letters and phone calls almost daily, insulting me because I am South African," said the right-back from Johannesburg.

Stuart had an ambition to be the first South African to lead a team in the cup final at London's Wembley Stadium May 7. He captained the Wolves for a spell earlier in the season.

Wolverhampton has reached the cup final but Stuart has lost his place and is playing in the reserves.

Piggot Wants To Move

VANCOUVER—Jim Piggott, owner of Victoria Cougars, said here Tuesday night that he will definitely apply for permission to shift his Western Hockey League franchise to Los Angeles.

Returning from Los Angeles, where the Cougars and Vancouver Canucks played two games of their best-of-nine WHL final, Piggott said a franchise shift would not necessarily mean Victoria would be without a team next year.

The Saskatoon contractor, who bought the Cougar franchise last September, will submit an application to move to Los Angeles at a league directors' meeting at Calgary May 12-13.

"I can make the move to Los Angeles," he said. "I intend to do so."

Aces, defending Canadian champions, couldn't match strides with Merchants—a carry-over of the nine-time champion Vancouver Eilers—at any time in the series. They dropped the opening game 45-27 and trailed Tuesday's match 18-11, 30-21 and 39-25 at the quarters.

Veteran Shirley Topley, a court wizard both ways for Vancouver, led the attack with 19 points.

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE HELPS BREAK DOWN FATS IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fats actually breaks them down. It is established fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fats are broken down and form a smooth, easy-digesting fluid.

In your digestive tract, liver bile helps break down the same way. Many of the foods you eat reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty solids. Your golden liver bile helps break down these fats, so you can eat more complete digestion.

Soccer Festival For Young Aces

There'll be booting a plenty at Royal Athletic Park Friday and Saturday.

Soccer starts of tomorrow will be on display at the Caladonia Avenue enclosure during the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association's annual two-day minor soccer jamboree, in which a total of 21 matches are scheduled.

Starting at 9 a.m., two pitches will be in use on both days as the youngsters take part in 11 matches on Friday and another nine on Saturday. Seniors take over in Saturday's final tussle at 2:15 for the annual grudge battle for the Tony Hope Memorial Trophy.

Although excitement and enthusiasm can be expected in all the tussles between the little booters, it is expected that Saturday's spotlight will be focused squarely on the Hope Trophy argument between the two teams.

Colwood League Busy With Plans For Ball Season

About 30 teams are expected to register in the Colwood and District Softball League to-night as the 1960 season rapidly draws nearer.

Boys between 10 and 18 years are asked to appear at 6 p.m. at the View Royal Fire hall for registration.

All team coaches and managers will also meet there next Tuesday at 8 p.m. to finalize league plans.

Al Beasley of View Royal is president; C. Morgan of Cordova Bay is vice-president; and Mrs. M. Butler of Sooke, secretary.

Manager Walt Alston still has that World Series magic and Los Angeles Dodgers still have that uncanny knack of doing things the hard way.

That was the big story Tuesday night when the Dodgers climaxed one of the greatest opening days in National League history with an uphill 3-2, 11-inning victory over the Chicago Cubs.

A record night game crowd for the league, 67,550 turned out in massive Los Angeles Coliseum and was treated to a sensational game in which:

- Don Drysdale, 1959 strike-out king, fanned 14 Cubs and allowed only seven hits over the 11 innings.

• The "cliff-hanger" Dodgers rallied from an early 2-0 deficit, brought about with the help of ex-teammate Don Zimmer's homer, to tie the score in the fifth inning and carry the game into extra innings.

• Alston, who twice got pinch-hit homers from Chuck Essegian in the 1959 World Series, called on the rugged utility outfielder with two out in the last of the 11th, and got the game-winning homer from him.

THIRD STRAIGHT
The huge crowd accorded the ex-Stanford football player a thunderous ovation. It was the third straight homer for Essegian as a pinch-hitter, dating back to the '59 series.

The attendance broke the old National League single-game night crowd of 67,037 set by the Dodgers against Milwaukee at the Coliseum last Aug. 8 and rounded out a day during which the four National League openers drew a total of 179,782 fans.

San Francisco Giants dedicated their new $15-million Candlestick Park and beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 before 42,269 fans; Milwaukee Braves shaded the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 before 39,838; and Cincinnati Reds romped over Philadelphia Phillies 9-4, before 30,075 in the daylight openers. American League openers are scheduled for April 18 and April 19.

SAD SAM WINS
Vice-President Richard Nixon was among the capacity throng at San Francisco as Sam Jones hurled a three-hitter and Orlando Cepeda drove in all three Giant runs with a triple and a single. Jones fanned three and walked only one, yielding the St. Louis run on a homer by ex-Giant Leon Wagner.

Charlie Dressen made a victorious debut as manager of the Braves when Joe Adcock blasted a two-run eighth-inning homer off Pittsburgh relief ace Roy Face, who didn't lose his first game of the 1959 season until Sept. 11.

Roy McMillan and rookie Tony Gonzalez hit homers as the Reds spoiled Robin Roberts' 11th consecutive opening-day appearance with a nine-hit attack. Roberts was rocked for seven hits and eight earned runs in 4 1/3 innings.

LOS ANGELES—Jim McCarver, 215, Los Angeles, knocked out Eddie Jackson 197, Los Angeles.

FRESNO, Calif.—Glen Plonagan, 143, St. Paul and Javelina Kid, 144, Manila, drew 10.

It's a New Way To Be in Photos

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP)—Champion Gene Fulmer, challenger Joe Giardello, of Philadelphia, won't have to worry about a long or short count in their middleweight title fight here April 20.

If either is knocked to the canvas, an electronic machine will be used to do the counting.

It's known as an electronic knockdown timekeeper; a machine which lights up showing the number of seconds a fighter has been down. This will be the first time such a machine has been used in a championship scrap.

The device is mounted on the ring and operates like a basketball scoreboard, flashing seconds on a large board.

The machine automatically takes a photograph of the KO'd fighter when the count reaches 10.

Use of the device has been approved by the Montana Boxing Commission.

same weight as a good-sized muskie, and built for easy handling—in or out of the water!

This sensational new Scott is the greatest outboard ever built for fishermen. It's a revolutionary new design that can be tucked into a corner of your car trunk and carried to the boat by a ten-year-old!

In fact, it's the only motor of this power that fits in the trunk of a small car. For extra convenience and protection, there's a handsome carrying case available.

CUTS THROUGH WEEDS! This new twin-cylinder Scott is a fisherman's delight. Fast-starting and dependable, it cuts through weeds like a lawnmower. Newly designed prop blades are back-swept to toss weeds aside, shear through the rest.

When you're after the big ones in deep water, this new Scott throttles down to less than a mile an hour without sputtering, for hours of quiet trolling. And the big remote gas tank is the safest possible; it's non-pressurized.

REAL CONTROLS! Scott's front-mounted gear shift puts real control at your fingertips... Forward, Reverse, and Neutral. You don't cut your motor to change direction, you never have to start in gear. If you fish right through the rain, Scott's exclusive Bail-a-matic keeps your boat dry—bails up to 300 gallons an hour!

COMPACT! Ten inches shorter than older motors of the same power and as much as 20 pounds lighter, this new Scott is also the quietest you ever heard. It's right in the Scott tradition—every Scott outboard is jam-packed with engineering breakthroughs that made outboard history, every one of them, from the peppy little 3.6 to the mighty 60-horse Flying Scott.

Now at your Scott dealers, this terrific new 7 1/2 proves all over again that for everything in outboard motoring—

GAGLARDI IN OTTAWA FOR HIGHWAY TALKS

OTTAWA (CP)—Highways Minister Gagliardi of British Columbia conferred with Federal Works Minister Walker today on the request of the B.C. government for a start on a second trans-Canada highway.

Mr. Walker is understood to have reiterated the federal government's stand against starting a new highway until the one now under construction is more nearly completed.

B.C. still has considerable portions of the present road to complete.

Mr. Gagliardi's proposal is said to have included a request for federal aid on stretches of road through Vancouver, including bridges.

Father Charged With Murdering Baby Daughter

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER — Frederick Hurren, 24, of Vancouver, Tuesday night was charged with murder in the death of his seven-month-old daughter April 5.

The infant, Carol Ann Hurren, died in hospital after being taken unconscious from its home. Earlier Tuesday a coroner's jury classified the death as homicide.

The jury was also told that the infant twice suffered a broken leg last fall and burns in February.

Dr. T. R. Harmon, city pathologist, said death was caused by a brain injury brought about by pressure within the skull of a blow to the head. The body also bore bruises on the face and jaw, legs and lower abdomen and scrapes behind the ear and neck.

TRIED TO BURN SCHOOL

BURNABY—Vandals made an unsuccessful attempt to burn down a Burnaby school early Tuesday. Principal J. G. Edwards said he found smouldering papers piled in a Grade 2 classroom. Papers had been torn and hurled through all six classrooms and obscenities scrawled on the blackboards.

VANCOUVER—Paul Stolling, 29, and his family were rudely awakened Tuesday to find their house seven feet lower and the floors tilted up to 33 degrees.

A strong wind picked up the home at Crescent Beach, 30 miles south of here, and lifted it off the foundations. The family car, parked in the basement, was crushed underneath.

"I thought I was dreaming," said Stolling's wife, Ruth.

The couple and their two children, aged seven and four, were uninjured.

Barely a dish was broken and the television, range and refrigerator were undamaged.

5 HURT IN TRUCK

KAMLOOPS — Five members of the Chu Chua Indian band were taken to Kamloops Hospital Tuesday night after their light pickup truck went over a bank on the North Thompson Highway near Louis Creek, 30 miles north of here.

Two of the injured were released after treatment and the others were reported in "serious condition." Their names were not released.

VANDALS USE ACID

VANCOUVER—A new form of malicious damage has broken out in the Renfrew district of the city. Five persons reported to police that acid had been thrown on their vehicles and had peeled the paint off hoods and trunks. Total damage is estimated at $300.

DROWNED IN LOADER

VANCOUVER — Eugene Hoyt, 45, was drowned Tuesday at the mouth of Lynn Creek when thrown into the frigid water when a front-end loader he was operating stalled and slid over a 20-foot bank.

HALF-TRUTHS

VANCOUVER—City medical authorities have termed claims by two British Columbia members of parliament of improper allocation of hospital beds "half-truths" and the result of misunderstandings.

Dr. D. W. Moffat, president of the Vancouver Medical Association, said the basic problem faced by city doctors is not the allocation of beds but the critical shortage of beds.

Conservative John Payne, MP for Coast Capilano, and Harold Winch, CCF member for Vancouver East, said in Ottawa Tuesday that some hospitals are letting a group of staff doctors control admissions of patients.

BLOOD FLOWED FREE, FREELY

More than 250 pints of blood were donated during a five-hour clinic at Red Cross House Tuesday.

"It was a highly successful day," an official said, "and we hope all our clinics will get this kind of support."

A clinic is being held at HMC Dockyard today and there will be another at Work Point Barracks Thursday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Cadboro Bay Sewer Link 'Too Costly'

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton Tuesday described as "impractical" a proposal that the Cadboro Bay area be connected with the Oak Bay sewage system.

The proposal was made by the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association as an alternative to installing a separate sewage system for the area.

The reeve told a public works committee the cost of connecting with Oak Bay sewage system would be prohibitive under provincial health department regulations.

Health officials have said that in order to connect to the Oak Bay network the municipality must build a primary treatment plant and might have to increase the size of the trunk lines.

"Cost of constructing a treatment plant would run to at least $200,000," the reeve said. And the cost of enlarging trunk lines would be fantastic.

The reeve felt the only solution to the Cadboro Bay sewage problem is for residents to install their own sewage system under terms of a money bylaw.

Residents last year defeated a money bylaw for construction of a sewage system in the area.

He Just Can't Say No--- At Least Not Positively

By ARTHUR EDSON

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson still won't say yes—and he won't say no—at least not no, positively—to this simple question:

Are you or aren't you interested in having the Democrats nominate you for president again this July?

Stevenson has been back in the United States for only three days after nine weeks in South America. Already he has held half a dozen press conferences and has been buttonholed by a score of reporters anxious for the story behind the story.

In all these that have come to light he consistently has answered:

He doesn't plan to lift a finger to gain the nomination. He neither seeks nor expects to be his party's choice for the third straight time.

But in a speech Tuesday

ADLAI STEVENSON
... he prepared.

As one reporter put it: "If this isn't the speech of a candidate, what is it?"

But if Stevenson expects no political miracles, he also acts like a man who would like to be ready in case one should come along.

U.S. LAGGING

Repeatedly he stressed this note: That the U.S. is losing out to the Communists of Russia and China, and that the Eisenhower administration is responding with slogans rather than action.

"Our leaders tell us in effect," he said, "that if we can just balance the budget and produce more consumer goods, the Soviet challenge will somehow disappear."

"This is dangerous. It is impossible to spend years travelling around the world, as I have, without a disquieting awareness of the thrust and purpose of Soviet society."

ROYAL VISIT FOR CANADA

OTTAWA (CP)—The king and queen of Nepal will pay an official visit to Ottawa May 27 and 28, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Tuesday. The announcement said King Mahendra Bir Bikram Shah Deva and Queen Ratna Rajya Lakshmi Shah will also pay a private visit to Montreal. The royal couple will stay at Government House as the guests of Governor-General Vanier and Mme. Vanier.

TEN-YEAR-OLD HOSTAGE UNHARMED

Teen Desperado Gassed Out

PULASKI, Va. (AP)—The 30-hour stand of a teen-age desperado ended Tuesday night when police dragged him shrieking from the home where he had held his young sister-in-law hostage.

The plucky 10-year-old girl—"I wasn't scared"—was unharmed.

A barrage of tear gas shells flushed Harless Hardin Jackie Jennings from the trim brick bungalow of his in-laws at 10:30 p.m.

Jennings came out firing wildly but ineffectually with a shotgun, pushing Barbara Butts out the door ahead of him.

"Duck, Barbara," officers called an instant before they snatched her aside. Then Jennings, an 18-year-old unemployed mill hand who is six feet tall but weighs 124 pounds, was overpowered, knocked down and pulled screaming down the walk to a state police car that whisked him to a mental hospital.

Barbara showed no signs of injuries and seemed unruffled by her ordeal that began at 4:15 p.m. Monday.

That was when Jennings, who had served time in industrial schools, grabbed her after escaping from police as he was being taken to jail for unauthorized use of his father-in-law's car.

Barbara said she had not been terrorized—that Jackie never hurt her.

Her eyes were red and puffy, although "I shut my eyes tight" when the tear gas was lobbed into her parents' home. She said Jennings gave her plenty to eat, mostly hot dogs and toasted cheese sandwiches.

The long siege—punctuated by Jennings' changeable moods which found him calling to and joking with acquaintances in the crowd one minute and firing wildly at police the next—reached a climax after he balked at a second offer of psychiatric treatment made by a mental hospital director.

Then police opened up with tear gas shells.

Control of Manitoba Firm Crux of Sugar Combine Case

WINNIPEG (CP)—Chief Justice E. K. Williams suggested in Queen's Bench Court Monday that the crown's case in a sugar combines trial must be built around evidence that the two accused companies gained control of the Manitoba Sugar Co.

British Columbia Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. and B.C. Sugar Refinery Ltd. are charged with forming a combine between June 1, 1954, and July 13, 1959, by acquiring control of the Manitoba firm.

Chief Justice Williams' comments on the crown's case came as he questioned prosecutor Frank Meighen, representing the federal government, about his arguments.

Referring to Mr. Meighen's statements regarding an alleged marketing agreement between British Columbia Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. and the three major eastern Canadian refining firms, the chief justice said:

"We are now dealing with a period prior to the dates of the indictment—the combines investigation Act has been on the statute books since 1923—am I entitled to infer that what happened before the acquisition of the Manitoba Sugar Co. was not within the scope of the combines investigation Act?"

Emphasizing that he was "not making a ruling or expressing an opinion," Chief Justice Williams said that what was done by the B.C. companies before the existence of the Manitoba Sugar Co. did not seem to meet with the disapproval of anyone.

Mr. Meighen agreed that the crown's case was based on the acquisition of stock in the Manitoba Sugar Co.

Earlier he argued that voluminous prosecution evidence presented in an earlier session of the trial had shown that during the years 1950 to 1955, the Manitoba company had been "a real thorn in the flesh" of the British Columbia company.

Special Offer! VEGETABLE HANDBOOK!

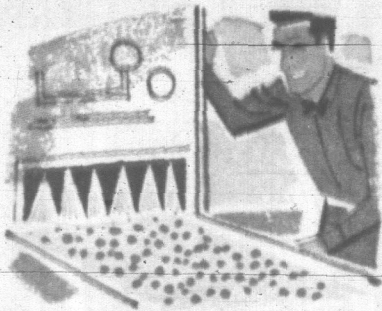

You've never seen a book quite like "Western Ways with fresh vegetables and melons"! Tells how to buy, store, prepare and serve over 30 different kinds of vegetables and melons! More than 40 garnish, relish and salad ideas—even some for children! Includes salad dressing recipes, lunchbox suggestions, nutritional information. With 64 pages (many in full color!) it's a book you'll use and enjoy every day. And it's yours for only 10¢ and SnoBoy's picture from any SnoBoy vegetable package!

Why there is no Vegetable like a SNOBOY.

Speed counts at picking time. SnoBoy celery for instance, must be at the absolute peak of flavour before SnoBoy inspectors say "pick." But once that time arrives, it's harvested in a hurry... to make sure all that famous SnoBoy "picked-for-flavour" quality reaches your table.

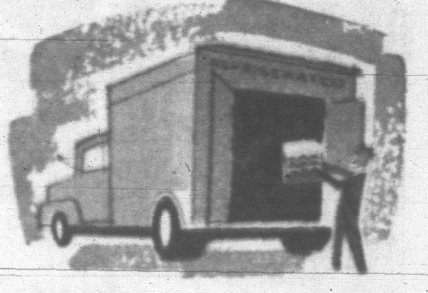

Speed counts in cooling. SnoBoy radishes are brush-scrubbed, then speedily ice-water cooled the minute they arrive fresh from the fields. It's this fast washing and cooling that keeps SnoBoy radishes fresh... full of color... and crackling crisp.

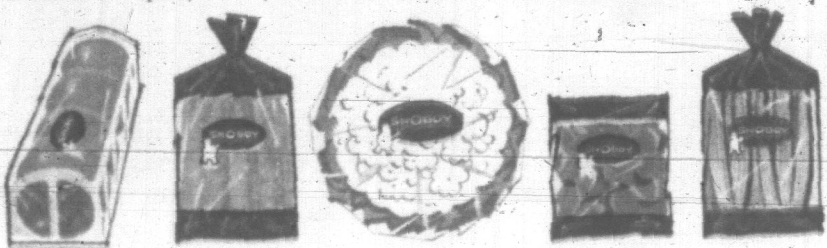

Speed counts in trimming. Vegetables, like this cauliflower, are hand-selected, then expertly hand-trimmed... no waste with SnoBoy! Not a moment is lost, no flavour escapes. For vegetables which are sized and graded, the same rule of thumb: do it fast!

Speed counts in packaging. SnoBoy doesn't waste a second in packaging. Directly after washing and ice-water cooling, carrots—like other SnoBoy vegetables—are hand-packed... to be delivered to your store in perfect condition—fresh, crisp, flavourful!

Speed counts in shipping. SnoBoy tomatoes, like all SnoBoy vegetables, are shipped in refrigerated trucks or railroad cars the same day they're picked. From field to store, speed makes the important SnoBoy difference in flavour... freshness... and crispness.

ALL IN BRAIN

Hunger Pangs Just Chemistry?

CHICAGO (AP) — Don't blame your stomach if you keep raiding the refrigerator for between-meal snacks. It could be that a chemical is stimulating a hunger centre in your brain.

A scientist reported Tuesday that overfed rats, when certain brain areas are stimulated with electricity or chemicals, have been driven to eat an additional entire day's ration of food in one hour.

Dr. N. E. Miller of Yale University gave this report on his research to the federation of American societies for experimental biology.

GORGED THEMSELVES
The experimental rats gorged themselves with food after tiny electrodes were implanted in their skulls and electrical current was passed through an area of the hypothalamus.

In another experiment, rats were trained to press a lever which delivered food to them. When satiated on food, they did not press the lever. But when a few-millionths of an ampere of current were sent through the proper brain region, they started pressing the lever.

The studies ultimately could lead to the production of drugs that could stimulate or repress appetite.

MUST ADOPT NEW DIET—Truck driver Frank Sherman and his wife, Bernice, were denied permission in Reseda, Calif., court to adopt Janet, eight months. It was charged that they were too overweight. By slimming down to a "healthy" poundage they may have another chance to win the girl who they have raised since birth. The couple is shown with Janice and Debbie, four, another adopted child.

CATASTROPHE AVERTED AS GAS CARS WRECKED

PEROTE, Mexico (AP)—Fifteen tank cars loaded with gasoline overturned Tuesday in a collision with a locomotive at Totolco Village near here. Three trainmen were injured and several houses burned down in the resulting fire.

Railway officials said a catastrophe was averted by villagers and soldiers from a nearby army unit who hooked up a locomotive to pull the damaged cars away from the flaming gasoline that spread over the ground.

Earlier incorrect reports from the scene 150 miles from Mexico City said an explosion had occurred and many were feared dead.

New Drive Starts To Ban Raw Milk

Christie Pt. Subdivision Plan Also Opposed by Health Board

Victoria-Esquimalt Health Board Tuesday opened up old controversies to battle old enemies—raw milk and discharge of sewage effluent into Portage Inlet.

WITH ONE POLL

Victorians Lead Way In Voting

Voting percentages in three B.C. centres with multiple polling stations were lower than the civic election turnout at Victoria's single station in the past two years.

City clerk Frank Hunter, who was instructed to make a survey of voting to help finance committee decide whether the city should have multiple stations, reported Tuesday that Victoria's system was ahead so far.

55.78 PER CENT

Last year when there was a mayoralty race and fluoridation referendum, 55.78 per cent of the voters cast ballots. In 1958 when there was a $1,000,000 off-street parking bylaw but no mayoralty ballot, the turnout was 50.78 per cent.

Comparative turnouts in Vancouver, North Vancouver and West Vancouver, all using multiple polling stations, were respectively: 31.7 and 24.33 and 19 and 40 and 22.1 per cent.

Nanaimo, with a single station, reached a 56 per cent turnout last year and 54 per cent in 1958.

The board ordered chief sanitary inspector E. S. Gropp to draft a bylaw aimed at banning sales of unpasteurized milk in the two municipalities.

Board members made it clear they would recommend the bylaw to municipal councils although they expected heavy opposition.

Formal opposition was voted against a new plan by Woodland Estates for subdividing Christie Point. The board previously helped block a subdivision because septic tanks instead of sewers would service the lots fronting on Portage Inlet.

NO GUARANTEE

The new plan would drain the effluent through filter beds but Medical Health Officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy and Mr. Gropp both said they saw no guarantee that pollution would be avoided by the plan.

Board members were unanimous that they would oppose any subdivision of the point if sewers were not provided because Esquimalt and Saanich residents had been forced to install expensive sewers to protect the Gorge.

Mr. Gropp also warned the board that later this year he would make representations to city council to prohibit renting of substandard basement suites.

TOUGH

"It's a very tough problem and we'll have to move carefully," he said. "In some instances its going to mean a terrific loss of revenue for some people—uprooting for others."

He said one of the chief problems was low ceilings. Municipal regulations required a seven-foot five-inch ceiling but some as low as six feet and two inches had been found.

In a municipal committee was asked to consider feasibility of extending the board's rodent and pest control program to the whole Greater Victoria area if Saanich and Oak Bay agreed to share the cost.

10,000-to-1 Odds Claimed In Bonus Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—A shopper has one chance in 10,000 of winning $1,000 in a bonus card scheme operated by a B.C. supermarket, court evidence showed Tuesday.

The odds were disclosed in police court in a statement of facts accepted by the crown and Shop-Easy Stores (B.C.) Ltd. as the supermarket, general manager Wilbur Shearman and 12 store managers went on trial on a total of 28 lottery charges.

The statement showed that for every 10,000 of the cards put into circulation, prize money totalling $18,893 was allotted.

Under the scheme, which went into operation in December, any customer can ask for a card and have the value of goods he purchases punched on it. When the customer has made purchases totalling $100, a black patch is lifted from the card showing a question and the amount of money to be won if it is answered correctly.

These were some of the questions on the first series of cards distributed:

Name the great transportation system that spans the world.

Name the last Canadian province to join confederation. Name the capital of Canada. Magistrate Gordon-Scott reserved his decision on the case until April 26.

Group Named To Organize Appeal Panel

A special committee was set up Monday to organize a review board for screening charitable appeals.

Bernard van Aggelen was appointed chairman of the steering committee by Community Chest directors.

The review board was proposed by a Chest committee which surveyed public reaction to the multiplicity of appeals.

"The whole scheme will depend on voluntary participation and co-operation by the agencies in giving the public the facts," said Mr. van Aggelen.

"The citizens of Greater Victoria will give freely to any worthy cause, but with so many appeals many are asking if it is all necessary. To answer that and other questions objectively will be the responsibility of this committee."

Frigidaire has 4 "Frost Proof" refrigerator-freezers for 1960!

In old-fashioned freezer compartments, you get frost-bound foods and ice trays. You have to chip away at ice; wipe puddles off the floor.

In a Frigidaire Frost-Proof no frost is formed at all! No chipping. No scraping. No frosty freezer walls. No messy puddles on the floor.

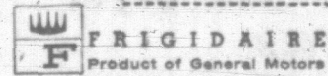

New! Guaranteed* foodkeeping without frost!

Why settle for just automatic defrosting? Frigidaire's guaranteed Frost-Proof system means no frost at all! None in the freezer section. None in the refrigerator section. So there's no defrosting ever. Frost is actually stepped before it can start. And you can get this amazing Frost-Proof system in 4 new models—with the freezer compartment at the top or at the bottom. See the complete line of Frigidaire Refrigerators and Refrigerator-Freezers soon.

New! The sculptured beauty of the new Sheer Look for 1960!

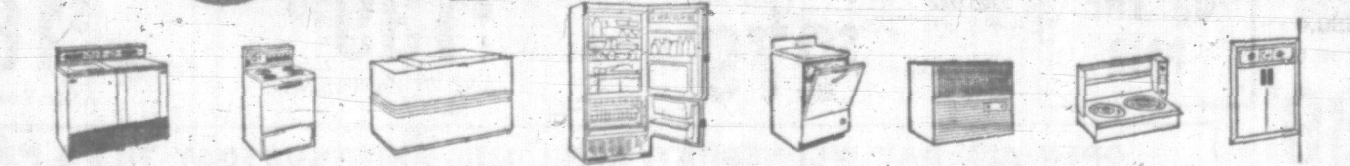

This year, the Sheer Look is lovelier than ever, with gently flowing, sculptured lines and regal touches of lacy filigree. Inside and out, everywhere you look, is a continuous flowing design. Any kitchen looks "custom-planned" with the sculptured look in appliances by Frigidaire!

*The exclusive FROST-PROOF system prevents the build-up of frost inside the Frigidaire FROST-PROOF Refrigerator-Freezer. Without any cost to owner or user, at any time within one year from date of delivery, Frigidaire will make all necessary adjustments to the FROST-PROOF Refrigerator-Freezer to prevent accumulation of frost.

VETERAN COAL BURNER FIRST FOR SEAWAY

MONTREAL (CP) — A hefty, coal-burning Canadian laker sat quietly in Montreal harbor Tuesday—at the head of a list of some 25 ships awaiting Friday's scheduled opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The freighter is the 633-foot Lemoyne, a rugged veteran of the inland grain trade and, in her heyday, holder of a string of world records for cargo tonnage.

The Lemoyne, built in 1926 as one of the biggest bulk carriers of her time, officially opened the Welland Canal in 1931—sailing sleekly through a ribbon across the canal that was built to by-pass thundering Niagara Falls.

Now, 30 years later, the Lemoyne, flashing the red, white and black funnel colors of Canada Steamship Lines, will almost certainly be the first freighter to sail through the seaway as it starts its second year of operation.

40 COMMITTEES

Labor Pressing CCF Campaign

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says organized labor in B.C. is throwing its full weight behind the CCF in the next provincial election.

The newspaper says union constituency committees have already been formed in 40 ridings and committees in the remaining 12 are expected to be constituted within the next two months.

These committees will work closely with the CCF in an

Bob Baird Wins For Best Speech

Annual awards of Thunderbird Toastmaster Club 396 were presented this week.

Best speech award for the area went to Bob Baird, with Bill Young runner-up. Second best speaker for the club was Bill Scott; most improved speaker, John Fraser; and best evaluator, Bob Travis.

Term merit shield for the member contributing most to the benefit of the club during the year went to Eric Gomer, who is serving as president for the present year.

Other officers are: first vice-president, Bob Jobbins; second vice-president, Frank Beamish; secretary, Jim Marshall; treasurer, Harold Ker; and sergeant-at-arms, John Fraser.

election expected to be called sometime this year and in the long range provide a solid nucleus on which the proposed new party, made up of the CCF and labor, can be based.

Labor leaders believe the committees will greatly strengthen the electioneering machinery of the CCF.

The newspaper says some officials predict the CCF will be in better shape than ever before to fight an election.

The committees have undertaken an intensive voters' enumeration program and to date 27,000 registration cards have been returned to the offices of the 130,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor.

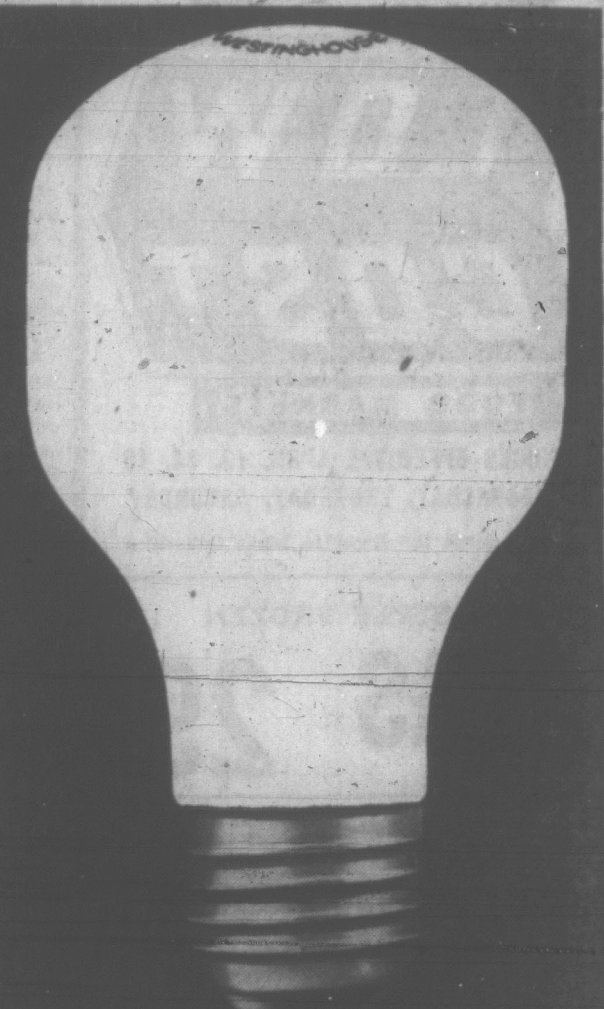

The Federation claims thousands are being denied a vote because they are not on voters' lists and blames the government for failure to undertake a complete enumeration.

2 Die in Sewer

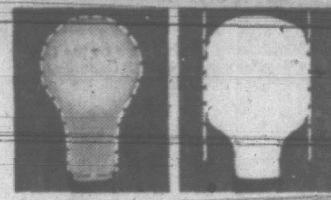

FREMONT, Calif. (AP) —

Two men died Monday after being trapped in sewage sludge and poisoned air in a 48-inch pipe. The victims, John Nito and F. Dewanis, were cleaning sludge from the feeder line into a filtration plant. Thirty volunteer workers pulled the men out but they died as firemen attempted to revive them.

HOUD DOG PROVES 'BITE'

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE
Fla. — A Strategic Air Command B-52G jet bomber flew over the North Pole with two Hound Dog missiles, then returned and fired one over the Cape Canaveral Atlantic test range after 10,800-mile non-stop flight.

The air force said Tuesday the successful launching exceeded the 22-hour flight. The missile flew several hundred miles on a preset course, including evasive action. It landed down-range in the Atlantic.

SAC officials expressed satisfaction at the demonstration of long-range striking power.

Curly-Haired Wild Ponies Being Tamed

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP)—
A band of horses liberally covered from ear to hoof with curls is yielding a new breed of horse—the Pendletonian.

C. A. (Buz) Wolf said Sunday he first noticed the curly animals 15 years ago running wild in the remote Blue Mountains of eastern Oregon.

Wolf said he and a neighbor,
Virgil Bronson, then started going regularly into the mountains to keep track of the wild ponies.

They separated out from the rest of the band the bad ones and those lacking curls. Eventually they caught a stallion and a couple of mares.

Now they have started breeding these curly horses and have perfected it to where a curly mare and a curly stallion yield a curly foal every time.

SMALL BUILD

The animals are about the size of a large Shetland.

They are covered with about one-inch of curly hair the year around.

Wolf said the animals are a crossbreed from thoroughbred,
Apalosa and cayuse.

The cayuse or mustang is the old Indian pony, a sturdy animal that has been wild in this area for centuries.

Wolf said the Pendletonian is easy to train and handle.

His lawyer, he said, told him that to get the name copyrighted he should wait until he has a large herd and starts selling them.

"It just started out as a hobby," he said of his horse raising venture, "but it looks like it's going to wind up a business."

SHINGLE SHUFFLER SORTS THEM OUT

Millworker mops up and sorts out undamaged shingles after early-morning fire at Smith Cedar

MONTÉ ROBERTS

For many generations, Victoria has been able to look smugly across the Gulf of Georgia, and pity Vancouver for its oft-recurring waves of crime.

True, Victoria has not been entirely free from law-breaking. The occasional pedestrian crosses against a red light. Yours truly is apprehended parking in Fiddler's Green. A dog wanders unattended in Oak Bay. A litterbug drops a candy wrapper in Thetis Lake Park. A bank or two, is robbed of a few thousand dollars.

Nothing serious, though, nothing up to the shady standards of that City over on the mainland.

Thus, as I said, Victoria has been rather smug over the question of crime. But no longer.

As witness this news item: "Shrubbery valued at $40 was pulled up and stolen at the weekend from a new fountain garden planted by the provincial public works department at the rear of the legislative buildings."

City police were told that four heather plants and five Oriental cedars were missing this morning.

Citizens of Victoria, be aware of the peril in your midst.

This kind of dastardly crime must be stamped out before it is truly started.

There is no lower form of thief than the man who steals another man's Oriental cedars.

As for a pilferer of heather plants, there is no opprobrium strong enough to describe him.

If, in this city of gardens, a man cannot be sure his pelonias are safe from attack, we may as well all pack up and move to Vancouver.

I say it is time to form a citizens' committee and call out the vigilantes.

If the police force cannot protect our heather plants and our Oriental cedars, it is time drastic steps were taken.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

University of Victoria building fund campaign chairman R. B. Wilson said at least $1,800,000 should be in the kitty by the end of May if volunteers come forward to help the residential canvass.

He said there was a "desperate" need for canvassers to give an hour of their time April 25 or 26 for the door-to-door drive.

Volunteers should phone EV 5-3455 or EV 3-5079.

Test firings of Bofors and rockets will be carried out from Christopher Point, Metchoin, by RCN units for the next two weeks. Starting today, firings will take place between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. until April 29.

Danger area for shipping is 5,000 yards seaward of the point.

Annual banquet of the CPR Veterans' Association will be held at 5 p.m. next Tuesday in the Crystal Garden. Reservations are being taken by G. F. Simmonds at EV 5-7525.

Victoria Day parade salute will be taken by Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross, Greater Victoria Celebrations Association was told Tuesday night.

Billets are needed for about 150 high school students from Vancouver and the U.S. who will march in drill teams and bands entered in the May 23 parade.

Victorians willing to offer overnight accommodation to the visitors should phone EV 2-3912 or EV 3-6109.

Frank Ewer, 18, of 3035 Earl Grey, was fined $20 when he pleaded guilty in Saanich police court Tuesday to having beer in his possession. When checked by police, Ewer said he found the beer in roadside grass.

Victoria city council spent $8,163,963 during the 1959 calendar year, an annual financial statement revealed today.

That left $43,434 of 1959 revenues to be added to the current year's revenue.

The surplus was reduced considerably from the $126,139 that had been carried over from 1958.

Ronald Kolinski, 18, of 527 Hillside, was sentenced in city police court today to three months in jail for uttering what the court referred to as "about as bad a forgery as one could find."

The youth tendered a city welfare cheque (originally made out to him for $66) clumsily raised to $360 as payment for a car at a second hand lot.

R. A. Sanderson, president of the British Columbia Cancer Foundation, announces the appointment of Sister Superior Mary Ann Celesta of St. Joseph's Hospital as a member of the advisory committee to Victoria Cancer Clinic.

Other members of the committee are George Masters, secretary; Dr. Gordon H. Grant, Dr. H. M. Edmison, E. R. Rickinson, A. E. Walters and Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, chairman.

A 75-year-old Chinese survived a 15-20-foot fall down a garbage-filled chute onto a scow loading at the city garbage wharf shortly after 11 a.m. today.

Police took Woo Song, New Jubilee Hotel, 575 Johnson, to Jubilee Hospital for a checkup — he suffered only bruises — then drove him home.

The man had been looking for useable items when he tumbled into the hole where trucks dump refuse and was carried in a wave of garbage onto the scow below.

Mill Closed Week After Kiln Blaze

Fire that whipped through a drying kiln containing 5,000 bundles of shingles shut down Smith Cedar Products Ltd., 651 Harbor, early today.

Firemen battled the hard-to-get-at blaze seven and a half hours, preventing fire from spreading beyond the roofs of adjoining kilns on either side. Some wore masks in the heavy smoke.

It was thought the fire may have started from over-heating and once underway in the heart of the kiln resisted both automatic sprinkler system and efforts of firemen until a quantity of the shingles could be removed.

It was estimated the plant would be shut for about a week while repairs to the kiln are made.

The fire was reported at 12:32 and fire trucks stayed on the scene until 8 a.m.

A clean-up crew today pulled remaining bundles of shingles out of the kiln, sorting them for salvage.

Most of the centre kiln roof will be replaced where flames broke through. Laminated walls were heavily charred and the rails on which shingle flats are rolled in and out of the kiln will need repair.

There was no interior damage to the other kilns, nor the shingles they contained.

Five motorists were hurt in traffic accidents in Victoria Tuesday and one was faced in city court today with careless driving and two charges of driving while under suspension.

The accused, Robert J. A. Thomson, 23, of 1767 Bay, was treated at Jubilee Hospital for a mild concussion and released with Albert Davidson, 45, of 2643 Fifth, who was treated for a wrist injury and bruises.

Davidson had to jump on top of the car from which he was alighting to avoid collision with an oncoming auto involved in a three-car crash at Hillside and Quadra at 8:40 p.m.

Police identified Thomson as driver of a westbound car in collision with a car, property of Morrison Motors, that was parked just east of Quadra, in turn in collision with a car property of Walter Mothersole, 821 Burdett, parked ahead of it.

There was heavy damage to all vehicles.

Thomson was remanded for plea to Tuesday and bail was set at $250.

Jack Unwin, 727 Front, refused medical attention for a bump on the head after the car in which he was a passenger was in collision with a steel stanchion protruding from a manhole cover at Johnson and Government at 11:05 p.m.

Driver of the car was identified as Orland Ziegler, 1417 Douglas.

Robert Maboe, 42, of 1760 Kisher, was released from Jubilee Hospital after treatment for scalp cuts received when his car was in collision with an auto driven by Dolores Cass, 1938 Trans-Canada Highway, on Johnson, near Vancouver.

The museum has recently been enlarged, and new exhibits added.

The B.C. Maritime Museum, on Esquimalt Road at Signal Hill, will be open each day of the Easter weekend holiday.

The curator, Lt. Cmdr. Ernie Cassels, announced today.

Doors will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Good Friday, Saturday, Easter Sunday, and Monday.

HEAVY HOLIDAY WEEKEND TRAVEL EXPECTED

Easter Bonnet May Be Rain Hat

By DON INGHAM

The coming holiday weekend will be one for ducks rather than peacocks, according to visiting weatherman Jack Kermod.

A weather disturbance will pass over the city tonight in a flurry of wind, rain and clouds, and will be followed by sunny periods Thursday. Temperatures will range between 38 and 52 degrees.

SERIES OF STORMS

"The outlook for the weekend is for much the same type of weather," Mr. Kermod said. "There is a series of weather disturbances to the west that likely will hit us, and they will mean a few days of moderate temperatures, showers, wind and some sunny periods."

The holiday will start at 3 p.m. Thursday when all Greater Victoria school children will begin their 10-day Easter vacation.

MANY FLIGHTS

At the same time Trans-Canada Air Lines will start five days of feverish activity, during which it expects to carry 7,700 passengers in and out of Victoria.

They will be transported on 276 flights. Usual number is 17 round trips per day between here, Vancouver and Seattle. All available equipment and crews will be at work to handle the heavy traffic.

A four-day holiday weekend is in store for most civil servants, to include Good Friday, Saturday, Easter Sunday and Easter Monday.

Postmen will make a delivery Monday, banks will be open Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m., and the Public Library and liquor stores will be closed both Friday and Monday.

CROSS PILGRIMAGE

One of the outstanding events of the weekend will be the Pacific Cross Pilgrimage, which started today at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Nanaimo, and will finish Sunday morning at St. Andrew's Cathedral here.

Sponsored by the Victoria Newman Alumni Association, it will see men of each Roman Catholic parish carrying the cross in relays, with overnight stops at Ladysmith, Duncan and the Malahat.

Unlike the pilgrimage of last year, no group will march the whole distance. The men of one parish will hand the cross on to men of the next, until it reaches Victoria.

The provincial government will provide an initial grant of $50,000, then match dollar-for-dollar public donations to a total of $475,000 to help feed the hungry people of the world.

The premier said the program would raise a total of $1,000,000, to be administered by a committee under chairmanship of Health Minister Martin.

Establishment of the committee was announced last Friday, but no financial details were given at that time.

The premier told a press conference in Vancouver the committee initially also will include Welfare Minister Wesley Black and Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, former United Nations technical assistance chief and now chairman of the B.C. Power Commission. Others may be added later.

Mr. Bennett said the first use of the funds will be made through the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. B.C. food products will be used where feasible, but there will be no restrictions making this compulsory.

"This should only be a start," the premier said, adding that it has nothing to do with the federal government's bringing in of refugees from Europe.

Mr. Bennett said B.C. has advised the federal government it will assume its fair share of the costs involved in the program that brought 100 families of tuberculosis-infected refugees to Canada from European camps earlier this year.

But he added he has reminded the federal government that B.C. feels the program is so small as to be unworthy of this country.

Last stage will start at Our Lady of the Rosary Church in Langford Easter Sunday at 8 a.m. Pilgrims will arrive at the Cathedral here at 10:45 a.m. to be greeted by Most Rev. James M. Hill, Bishop of Victoria.

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsor of an Easter egg hunt in Beacon Hill Park, starting at 1 p.m. Boys and girls up to 12 years of age will seek out 3,000 colored and chocolate eggs, and will take part in a free drawing after the hunt, with a new bicycle as top prize. The Easter bunny and his helpers will arrive by helicopter.

Park Parade — Apart from the Easter egg hunt, Beacon Hill Park probably will be one of the most popular areas in Greater Victoria. Popular with pedestrians and motorists alike, it draws large crowds when Easter Sunday weather is fine, and forms an unofficial route for a similarly unofficial "Easter parade" here.

Colwood Trail Riders will sponsor an Easter Sunday trail ride through the Highland district, open to all horsemen and women riders in the area.

Assembly will be at Wilkinson and Interurban Roads at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, and riders will move out at 10:15. Lunch — everyone brings his or her own sandwiches — will be at the end of Thetis Lake road. Return trip will finish at about 4:30 p.m. at the starting point.

Mayor Knocks Secrecy Move

Aldermen Miffed About Bust Row?

By JOHN MIKA

Fate of a draft bylaw aimed at barring reporters from committee meetings of city council will be decided Thursday.

Strong opposition was voiced by several aldermen as well as Mayor Scurrah to the proposal today.

Mayor Scurrah said he would oppose any change to existing procedure, which was introduced only seven days after he took over as chief magistrate in 1956.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he would battle any move to shield committee discussions from the public gaze.

"If the press must be given a specific invitation to attend a committee meeting, there's liable to be an argument over the whole agenda before there is a decision on whether or not to admit them."

"I don't think that would be in the best interests of the public."

McEwen Against — Ald. Elmer McEwen said he did not agree with the proposed change.

"I've certainly never had any quarrel with the press. I would doubt very much that this will pass."

He said he was surprised that the amendment was being proposed because there had been no decision made by the informal meeting.

Ald. Millard Mooney said he would not reveal his opinion until the bylaw was under discussion at Thursday's council meeting.

"Why Now?" — "And I think any alderman who gives his opinion today is wrong in doing so," he added. "Anyway, why was this thing brought to light at this particular time? I won't give out my ideas until the council meeting."

As far as can be ascertained from shipping interests here, there is no world-wide shipping association of a similar nature, although there are smaller groups united in "conferences" (e.g., Atlantic Conference) to protect mutual interests.

IF BURMA RICE CRAP FAILED, CANADIAN WHEAT WOULD FILL GAP

He Wants Jet Age 'International Farming'

Farming on an international basis, making full use of fast transportation methods, was proposed Tuesday by Dr. William Newton, noted Canadian biologist, in a speech to the Sidney Kinsmen Club.

Dr. Newton, former pathologist at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanichton, envisaged a "single world farm unit."

Under such a system, he said, surplus farm products of one country would be shipped to nations short of food.

"If there is a rice failure in Burma, wheat from Canada could take its place," he explained. "And if the weather gives China a bumper rice crop and Burma a poor one, the surplus in China could become available to Burma."

The framework of such a management attempt is being developed by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, he said.

Dr. Newton warned that as long as the problem of famine existed in Asia there is a danger of war.

"No longer are millions of people in China, India and Indonesia content to die of starvation when weather, disease or pests destroy their crops," he said.

"Now, they know that if there is a surplus of food elsewhere death through starvation is not essential," he said.

"I believe the people of the East would prefer to die in battle rather than starve to death."

Dr. Newton criticized western countries for not officially supporting "birth control" when it was quite obvious that over-population is a serious world problem.

He noted that in the past, religions encouraged large families because it was essential to preserve the existence of the race after epidemics of disease.

But, he added, this is no longer necessary as man through biological research, has controlled life-taking diseases such as malaria, smallpox and yellow fever.

Circulation of clouds of radio-active particles through indiscriminate atom bomb tests could destroy mankind, Dr. Newton said.

A report from the University of British Columbia last week said there was an increase of the radiation fallout count in the province as the result of the French bomb test in the Sahara Desert.

An increase in fallout was also reported by scientists in Ottawa.

Dr. Newton said it is one of the duties of scientists to convince the world of this danger, as well as the danger of an atomic war which would unquestionably destroy mankind.

Lay Out Colorful Flower Beds With Cellulose Mats

By PENNY SAVER

How's your garden looking this year? If painting the family boat, golf, or just plain relaxin' has caused you to fall behind in gardening schedule, this is one easy way to catch up on flower bed planting. There are strips of cellulose mats on the market with seeds already planted. These mats can be laid to form a new flower border wherever you wish. Strips that measure eight inches by 15 feet can be cut to suit any garden layout, even on slopes.

Just rake top layer of soil, lay seeded mat and add a thin layer of soil to protect seeds. Plant food is included in prepared mat. Water at least once a day until plants are firmly established.

Cellulose mat discourages growth of weeds and gives protection from damage by birds. Two varieties of border plants are available in this line, one of cut flower varieties and another suitable for low borders. It is an easy way to catch up with those gardeners who got away to an early start!

Last week I mentioned novelty drinking mugs designed to encourage children to drink their milk with minimum of fuss. Today I saw another mug that will be of help to mothers faced with this problem.

About four inches high, mugs are miniature Jimmy Crickey. Children will be fascinated with eyes of famous Walt Disney character.

These mugs realistically when mug is in use and will have youngsters begging for another drink in order to watch them. Coming in either pink or blue plastic, mugs sell at 29-cents.

Femininity is keynote of women's fashions this year. Nothing could be more feminine or dainty than exquisitely-toned flower earrings, priced at 69 cents a pair. You can choose from delicate orchids or roses in shades of rose, mauve and yellow. Made of plastic, earrings give illusion of actual texture of flowers. To complete outfit there are matching brooches that sell for 79 cents.

For information on any of these items give Penny a ring at EV 2-3131.

DEAR ABBY

Reverse Your Attitude!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is making me ill and I can't find a solution. I have a terrible inferiority complex. At PTA meetings I perspire and tremble and get splitting headaches, because I'm afraid I might have to say something.

I have read tons of books and articles on how to overcome my complex but nothing helps. I know why I feel as I do, too. When I was little, we were so poor I was sent upstairs to hide because I was so thin and had no shoes.

I don't want our four children to suffer from an inferiority complex the way I do, but I can see them following in my footsteps. (They won't join this or go there because they feel they aren't wanted.)

Don't suggest prayer. I've had ten years of that. I am not stupid, I just feel stupid. INFERIORITY COMPLEX.

DEAR COMPLEX: Many people convince themselves that they are suffering from an "inferiority complex" when quite the opposite is true. What makes you think that the whole world is looking at you? No one expects you to be eloquent or brilliant at a PTA meeting. Relax. Make up your mind that you are what you are and it is good enough for anyone you meet. Forget about yourself and the impression you are making and you will probably discover a very acceptable and pleasant personality underneath.

DEAR ABBY: A man who does a lot of business with my husband comes to our home when he is in town. He always has a cigar stuck in his face and he keeps lighting it and lighting it. After he has gone, the odor of the cigar smoke clings to my draperies for days. Don't you think my husband ought to tell him how much it bothers me?

ANNOYED: Is the man buying or selling?

DEAR ABBY: Why does a girl have to choose between having boy friends and girl friends? Last year I was popular with the girls and the boys hated me. This year I am popular with the boys and the girls hate me. SEE SAW.

DEAR SEE SAW: The world is full of girls who have both boy friends and girl friends. Quit worrying about those who "hate" you and concentrate on making friends of both boys and girls.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do You Know Answers To These Food Questions?

There are more facts and fallacies in the world of food than almost any place else. Here are a few questions. See if you know the right answers.

1. Is there any one perfect food?

A. No. Milk comes closer than any other one food. It supplies protein, vitamins and minerals. It is especially important because of its calcium content.

2. I have heard that milk is constipating. Is this true?

A. Only because it is completely digested and provides no roughage.

3. Is margarine as good as a health food as butter?

A. Yes, since it has been reinforced with vitamin A.

4. Does a man doing hard physical labor require extra amounts of protein?

A. He requires more calories and a sufficient amount of protein but he needs, especially, more carbohydrates, the energy giving foods. And he may require more vitamin B which is closely correlated with management of carbohydrates.

5. Is fish a brain food? Does it promote better thinking?

A. No special food nourishes the brain.

6. I have heard that a person should not drink orange juice and milk at the same time. Is this true?

A. This belief probably grew because orange juice curdles milk, but milk curdles as soon as it comes in contact with the digestive juices.

7. Is it harmful to add soda to the water when cooking green vegetables?

A. Yes. Soda damages the vitamin content.

8. Does drinking vinegar make one slim?

A. This keeps coming over my desk. The only way vinegar can make you slim is to drink enough of it to give you indigestion and therefore rob you of your appetite.

Preview of Morocco Art Held for Gallery Members

By JUDY NICHOLSON

If you have a chance to see the latest exhibit at Greater Victoria Art Gallery, do. It's a collection of "Decorative Arts of Morocco," brought to Victoria for three weeks by Women's Committee of the gallery.

At the opening preview Tuesday evening, Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, wife of Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, officially opened the show.

"Victorians are singularly fortunate in having so stimulating and interesting an exhibit brought here," Mrs. Ross said. And it was easy to see that everyone there agreed with her.

For the occasion, Mrs. Ross wore a French blue satin and deep peach lace model gown with large portrait collar and sheath skirt. Her jewelry was pearls.

Mrs. Ross was accompanied by Miss Ruth McLean, who wore a Dior blue dress, fashioned on slim sheath lines.

SEATTLE ARTIST, TOO

Also in the Ker Gallery at present is a collection of paintings by Pehr (Pehr Halsten), Seattle artist, who was present at last night's opening.

Women's committee had decorated the gallery with beautiful arrangements of daffodils, tulips and spring flowers. Convener was Mrs. Charles S. Banks.

Receiving guests were the curator of the gallery, Mr. Colin Graham, and Mrs. R. C. Anderson, president of the women's committee.

Coffee and refreshments were served. Presiding at the head table were Mrs. W. F. Pinfold and Mrs. F. A. E. Manning.

Among gallery members at the preview were Mr. and Mrs.

Brenton Alley, Mr. Hugh Stephen, Prof. Tony Emery and Mrs. Emery, Mrs. George Straith, Barbara Burns (herself an artist of some note), Mrs. A. Henley, Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Turner, Mr. Robert Siddall, architect who designed Ker Gallery, and Mrs. Siddall, Prof. Wilfred Johns and Mrs. Johns and Dr. and Mrs. H. Jacks.

Also present were Mrs. Waldo Skillings, Miss Gail Manning, who is spending her Easter vacation in Victoria from the College of the Pacific in California; Mrs. R. A. Lort, the convener of refreshments; Mrs. S. Terry FitzPatrick, Mrs. W. A. Bayliss, Dr. and Mrs. David Boyd, Mrs. R. A. Hadfield, Mr. and Mrs. W. McIntyre and Mrs. Douglas Tuck. Chatting with Mrs. Richard Alexander. On her bright scarlet blazer was a pin reading "Decent". She explained that she is a graduate of a Montclair Williamson class.

"After taking required lessons, I am now qualified to show people through the gallery, answer their questions about exhibits and paintings," she explained.

So, if you're at the gallery and have a question to ask, look for the girls with "Decent" written on their lapels!

At B.C. House

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Lovatt, Mr. Bruce M. Leyden, Mrs. Monica Foyle Porter, Mrs. George Grant with Master Douglas, Master Kenneth and Miss Beverly Grant, have all been recent visitors at British Columbia House in London, Eng., and signed the register as from Victoria. Other Vancouver Island travellers signing the register there in the past 10 days are Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cross and Mr. H. L. Witherby, Sidney; Mrs. Muriel Boyd, Nanaimo, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Partridge, Qualicum.

Leaving here in mid-December, they spent Christmas and the New Year in Montreal visiting sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William H. German and Mr. and Mrs. John German. Early in January Mr. and Mrs. German boarded the Norwegian American line vessel, My Bergenfjord, in New York, for a world cruise which took them to such ports as Balboa, Galapagos, Tahiti, Bora Bora, Rora Tonga, Tongatabu, Auckland, Christchurch, Milford Sound and Sydney. Mr. and Mrs. German made return trip to Canada in the P and O liner Himalaya stopping off at Fiji and Hawaii where Mr. German made special broadcasts for the CBC.

May Wedding Foretold

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Lauder of Victoria wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Jo Anne Fano, to Flt. Cadet Robert Keith Bryden, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Bryden, of Dundas, Ont. Wedding will take place Monday, May 23, at 4 p.m., in St. James Anglican Church at Dundas. Bride-elect will have as her attendants her sister, Miss Sandra Lauder; maid of honor and bridesmaids, Miss Vivi Hansen and Miss Judy Bryden, groom-elect's sister. Best man will be PO Arthur Lane and ushers, PO Ken McKenzie and Mr. Trevor Bryden. Miss Lauder at present is on the staff at Queens University, Kingston, Ont. Groom-elect is a graduate of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, and will graduate from Royal Military College, Kingston, in May.

Heirloom Handkerchief Carried By Bride for Tuesday Wedding

An heirloom handkerchief, given to her by her great-aunt, was carried by Miss Patricia Ann Southern for her marriage, Tuesday evening, to Kenneth Ian McKinnon.

The dark haired bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She was wearing a gown of white Chantilly lace. Seed pearls outlined the scalloped neckline and bodice extended to a lowered waistline. Floor-length skirt was posed over wide hoops. A spray of seed pearls set on a bandeau, held the fingertip veil. She wore a strand of pearls and matching earrings. Pink roses and pink and white carnations were in the bridal bouquet.

Bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Southern of Balfour Avenue. Groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McKinnon of Topaz Avenue. Centennial United Church, decorated with daffodils and spring flowers, was setting for the marriage. Heather marked guest pews. Dr. S. Parsons conducted ceremony.

Maid of honor, Miss Avis Murrant, and bridesmaid, Miss Pat McKinnon, wore identically styled ballerina-length gowns in cornflower blue and cosmo pink. Tiny veils trimmed their small floral chapeaux and they carried bouquets of white and pink carnations.

Alan Johnson was best man and ushers were Jack Southern and J. Marshall.

Receiving guests at reception in Holyrood House, mother of bride wore a navy blue silk suit with accessories in navy and pink. Her corsage was of pink feather carnations. A turquoise wool suit was worn by groom's mother. Her floral hat and accessories were in tone and she had pink feather carnations on corsage. Heather and spring blooms decorated tables. E. Fancett proposed bridal toast.

New Mrs. McKinnon left on honeymoon to States of Washington and Oregon, wearing a printed sheath style dress in tones of beige, tan, green and orange. She topped it with a willow green spring coat. Her accessories were in beige and her corsage was of Talisman roses.

Special Easter Breakfast

Here's a gay beginning for Easter Sunday—an Easter egg breakfast.

The baskets are generous cereal bowls of colored plastic. Line with green cellophane "grass" and fill with special treats such as a baker's sweet roll, a hard-cooked Easter egg, crisp bacon strips (placed on a small piece of roll). The fruit course is an Easter special too—fruit juice float, made by adding sherbet to a glass of fruit juice.

FRUIT JUICE FLOAT (12 SERVINGS)

One can (46 ounces) pineapple juice, 1 pint orange sherbet.

Fill juice glasses two-thirds full with juice. Top with two tablespoons of sherbet.

BAKED EGG CASSEROLE

Chopped hard-cooked eggs, diced celery, ground ham and chopped pecans with a suggestion of minced onion and snipped parsley in salt and pepper-seasoned mayonnaise, are the ingredients.

Combine, toss together lightly and portion into buttered ramekins or large baking dish.

Sprinkle generously with crushed potato chips and grated cheddar cheese (very sharp-flavored).

Do It Yourself Tips On Rug Stain Removal

Perhaps you don't manage a night club or a restaurant. But as a housekeeper you may meet the same carpet-cleaning problems that crop up in such places.

Any of the home-cleaning procedures used on other good carpets work as well or better on nylon carpeting.

First, three general rules concerning spills and accidents:

—take prompt action; immediate care saves time and trouble;
—scrape, blot or soak up the spill using tissue, clean rag or a cellulose sponge;
—confine the area of the spill; work from the edges toward the centre.

All stains have a tendency to become more permanent the longer they stand. Also, colorless liquids like some drinks—or animal or baby accidents develop color on standing. So blot up the liquid as soon as you can.

Fruit juice, cola, egg, mud, glue, grass stain and similar stains are readily removed with a dilute solution of a detergent. Dissolve a teaspoonful of detergent (not soap) in a cup of lukewarm water and apply it sparingly to the spot. Sponge the stained area and rinse by wiping with a clean cloth or sponge dampened with lukewarm water. Dry up excess moisture with tissues or cloths.

Ink (both washable and permanent), mustard, mercuriochrome and similar antiseptics, coffee and blood, all contain materials that set like dyes. Nevertheless, prompt treatment with detergent and water will minimize any color change. For this type of stain the skills of a professional rug cleaner may be required.

Oily or greasy stains—wax, cosmetics, shoe polish, crayon, chewing gum and greasy foods—are best removed with a household spot remover or dry-cleaning solvent.

Nylon carpet fibres are tough and durable. They can be scrubbed with good detergents and spots can be removed with any of the available home-cleaning solvents without fear of damaging the fibres. This fact alone accounts for the increasing use of nylon carpeting in stores, night clubs, restaurants, hotels and homes.

One further point about all good carpets. Their backing is mainly of jute—a fibre that will shrink if exposed to excessive moisture. Nylon won't shrink. But it is important to guard against too much liquid in your cleaning solution to prevent any damage that might otherwise happen to the carpet backing through shrinkage.

Royal Slip Goes Over Absent-Minded Head

LONDON (UPI)—Prince Philip almost let the cat out of the bag about Princess Margaret's top secret engagement to Antony Armstrong-Jones.

Absent-minded artist Norman Hepple disclosed that Queen Elizabeth's husband made a royal slip of the tongue 24 hours before the engagement was announced to a startled world in February.

Philip was posing in Buckingham Palace for a portrait being done by Hepple. He apologized for making last minute changes in the times set for posing.

"It has been a tremendous month, with the baby, two funerals and my sister-in-law getting engaged," Prince Philip said.

Hepple said of course he knew about the birth of the Queen's baby and the funerals for Countess Mountbatten, Philip's aunt, and Lord Carisbrooke, Queen Victoria's last surviving grandson.

"But I was so busy painting that I really didn't take in what he said about a sister-in-law," Hepple said. Princess Margaret happens to be Philip's only sister-in-law.

Prince Philip may have gulped when he realized that he had let slip the secret engagement. But Hepple painted on.

"I didn't realize what Prince Philip had said until I heard the news the next evening," the artist said.

The shirtwaist dress is strong as ever for resort wear. Women who love it will find it in many fabrics ranging from linen to silk. The wise will buy a couple and put them away for summer even if they're not going cruising now.

United Nations Works to Civilize Marriage Rules Around the World

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—In its own slow and persistent way, the United Nations is trying to civilize one of human civilization's oldest institutions—marriage.

By the time the UN gets through overhauling marriage, provided the nations co-operate, it should not be so different among the Ubangis in the Belgian Congo from what it is in the United States, the United Kingdom or the U.S.S.R.

The saying goes that "marriages are made in heaven."

But the UN goes under the assumption that they are made on earth—very much so—and that the more it can do to assure that marriages be made fairly and according to some international standards, the better for husbands and wives and all concerned everywhere.

In Buenos Aires, the commission on the status of women recently held its fourteenth session. It considered a draft convention and recommendation which seeks to set a desirable minimum age of marriage, requires the free consent of both parties, and provides for the compulsory registration of marriage.

TALL ORDER

Like many of the UN's other ventures into the realm of social and religious custom, this is a tall order. It will not be easy to persuade Asian, African, and Middle Eastern peoples of the West.

In a recent survey covering most of the world, the UN found 22 and 12 years to be the highest and lowest legal minimum ages at which men and women can marry. In at least 13 countries, the law permits women of twelve to wed, and in Hungary both men and women are legally eligible for marriage at 12.

Muslim law has no minimum marriageable age, but in practice young people are not married until they reach the age of puberty, between 13 and 15 for girls and at about 16 for boys.

The same is true in many parts of Africa where ages are not usually reckoned by calendar years. There, marriage is regarded as a union of tribes or families rather than of individuals, and boys and girls are often betrothed to each other early, even before birth.

Among numerous African tribes, girls are forced to live with their husbands before puberty as a result of which, a UN report said, many "die in childbirth or before it because of being taken too young."

CHILD VOWS

Other African tribes, however, take a strict view of child marriage.

Gradually, as education and modern culture spread throughout the Dark Continent, the pattern of African marriage is changing.

Thirty-five countries which the UN studied have set 21 as the age up to which children must obtain the consent of parents, guardians or other authorities if they wish to marry. In South Korea, men require consent until they are 27 and women 23; in Jamaica the age for both sexes is only 16.

In some countries like Iran, women of any age need parental permission to wed, and in many quarters of the world they can still be given in marriage without their own consent.

According to the UN study, "the majority of marriages in India are still arranged by parents who take into consideration the family background, the character of the parties, as well as their economic stability; in most cases the young people acquiesce in the choice of their parents."

This brief review does not begin to suggest the tremendous diversity in the traditions of marriage throughout the world. The UN cannot hope, nor would it want, to standardize marriage in all countries. But it does seek to have governments establish reasonable laws so that men and women everywhere can marry of their own free choice, at an age when they are physically and mentally ready to do so.

Juliette Presents Musical Variety Hour at 8 on Channel 6, 2

Headliners

Channel 7: Project 7's special documentary covers "Alcoholism—the Road Back." This is the second part of a series dealing with alcoholism.

Channel 5: Noah Beery, Jr., stars in "Wagon Train: The Jonas Murdock Story." The rabbit hunter gets the train into trouble with the Indians.

Channel 7, 12: Keefe Brascelle hosts Jonathan Winters, the Brothers Four, Father Bernard and Fran Warren.

Channel 6, 2: Juliette forsakes her customary 20-minute musical format for a full-hour variety show. Her guests include George Murray, Jan Rubes, the Ukrainian Children Hopak group and young Hayward Morse who made such a name for himself with Ingrid Bergman in "Turn of the Screw."

Channel 4: Music for a "Spring Night" offers the music of "The Holy Days"—Easter and Passover. Guests include Frances Wyatt, the U.S. Military Academy choir, Bill Hayes, Israel's soprano Shoshana Shoshan and cantor Herbert Strauss. It lasts one hour.

Channel 6, 2, 5: Perry Como presents an Easter show with Dorothy Collins, the Baird marionettes, the Lennon Sisters and harmonicaist Johnny Puelo.

Channel 7, 12: Gary Moore's "I've Got a Secret."

Channel 5: Ralph Edwards sketches in the life of an American Indian artist.

Channel 11: Circle Theatre's hour-long documentary covers "The Numbers Racket."

Channel 6, 2: Explorations present the third part of "The Renaissance: The Last Judgment," which describes Savonarola's influence on the period.

Tonight's Movies

6:30: Channel 6: Ruth Roman and Edmund O'Brien in 1954's "Shanghai Story."

8:30: Channel 11: Humphrey Bogart and Sylvia Sydney in 1941's "The Wagons Roll at Night." About a carnival troupe.

Channel 13: Laraine Day and Robert Ryan in "The Woman on Pier 13."

11:00: Channel 7: Bing Crosby and Rhonda Fleming in the 1949 version of "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court."

Channel 11: Craig Stevens and Elisabeth Fraser in the mystery, "The Hidden Hand." The lunatic escapes.

11:15: Channel 12: Charles Coburn and Joan Bennett in 1945's "Colonel Effingham's Raid."

11:30: Channel 6: Lily Pons and Jack Oakie in 1937's "Hitting a New High."

11:30: Channel 4: Esmond Knight and Nora Swinburne in 1951's "The River."

11:35: Channel 2: Olson and Johnson in 1945's comedy "See My Lawyer."

Phil Lee's Two for the Show

A (Don't Miss) B (For Daily Daze) AA (Once Class) C (To put in time)

(A) "THE WRECK OF THE MARY DEARE" (Royal): MGM's adaptation of Hammond Innes' novel, "The Wreck of the Mary Deare," makes for first class suspense. For which scripter Eric Ambler can take his full share of the credit.

What's more, the film allows Gary Cooper excellent opportunity to prove that he can play a role that demands more mobility than a plain "Yup."

When the film opens Charlton Heston is aboard his sturdy salvage boat that is wallowing through the uppy chop of the English Channel. Suddenly the ghostly outlines of a ship loom in the night and before avoiding action can be taken the salvage boat smashes into it broadside without, however, any damage. A spotlight on the craft reveals that it is the "Mary Deare—Hong Kong."

It also shows that it is on fire, that it is abandoned and, therefore, by rules of the sea, a derelict.

In spite of the freshening winds and the high seas Heston manages to skin aboard. He discovers the Mary Deare's cargo to be kapole and that the fire is negligible. Then he is confronted by an apparition with the ghastly face of torment. It is Cooper who claims that he is the captain and orders Heston off. However, the seas by now are in such a state that it is impossible to leave and the two men are left aboard the sinking vessel.

Before the May proceeds much further the patron is offered a raft of "puzzlements." For instance, if Cooper was the first officer what has happened to the Mary Deare's real captain? If Cooper is telling the truth, why was he slugged and why has the crew deserted the ship? Why is Cooper so insistent that only a formal court of inquiry shall investigate the strange case of the Mary Deare?

'A Clean Approach to Sex' In Lady Chatterley's Lover

MONTREAL (CP)—Two of Canada's foremost authors and a prominent professor of English from the United States defended D. H. Lawrence's "Lady Chatterley's Lover" Tuesday, before a Montreal court.

After testimony by Morley Callaghan, of Toronto; Hugh MacLennan, of Montreal, and Harry T. Moore, professor of English at Southern Illinois University, the hearing on the book was adjourned until May 5 to let the prosecution prepare rebuttal testimony.

Mr. MacLennan said college students see Lawrence's famous novel of an English woman who turns from a loveless life with her impotent, cynical husband to an affair with her gardener as a "clean reply to the negative force of much contemporary literature."

BASIC DIGNITY
Mr. Callaghan said the novel's dominant characteristic is to provide "fundamental dignity to the relationship between man and woman."

Both Mr. Callaghan and Mr. MacLennan defended the book as fit reading for adolescents. Mr. Callaghan, father of two, said the book would allow young people to see "a clean, simple and direct approach to sex."

Mr. MacLennan, who has no children but has taught English to McGill University students for many years, said he would not trust the book on 15- and 16-year-old children but would not prevent them from reading it.

The hearing before Judge T. A. Fontaine stemmed from raids by juvenile squad police on three city newsdealers last November.

FAR FROM OBSCENE

Professor Moore, a leading authority on Lawrence, said the novel is a great one and far from obscene.

"When he first wrote the book he was asked to delete the four-letter words but he refused because they were organic to the book," he said.

Asked if he would recommend the novel as reading for 15-year-olds, Professor Moore replied:

"If more youngsters read it a lot of bugaboos about sex might be eliminated. I find the book tends to give rather a good impression rather than a smutty one."

Sixteen copies of the novel were seized under a revamped provision of the Criminal Code that grants a judge authority to order confiscation of a publication deemed obscene.

Margaret Promises To Obey

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Margaret will promise to obey her commoner husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, at their Westminster Abbey wedding May 6, it was announced Tuesday.

She will be following the example of the Queen, whose pledge of obedience to the Duke of Edinburgh in 1947 provoked protests from British feminist leaders.

The princess and her fiancé decided to use the central part of the traditional Anglican service dating from 1662 in preference to a form dating from 1928.

In the 1928 version of the Common Prayer Book, the woman promises to honor, love and cherish her husband.

Dr. E. S. Abbott, Dean of Westminster, said the bride and the bridegroom "feel the language of the 1662 vows is in every way deeper and richer."

But he said the wedding will depart from tradition in that there will be no sermon. Instead the Beatitudes from the Sermon on the Mount will be read.

Another innovation will be the use of closed-circuit television. The installation was requested by the princess because it is difficult to see the chancel from some parts of the abbey.

ENDS TONIGHT "Paris Holiday"

(It's Real Fun)

A wonderful comedy in Technicolor and Technicolor, filmed entirely in Paris and environs, and starring Bob Hope and the funniest man in France—Fernandel. The film is a story of a young girl (led by Anna Ekberg) who is sent to Paris to live with her aunt and uncle. This is fun all the way through and a good chance to see Paris without having to be vaccinated.

He'll Get Chance To Straighten Out

Only youth to escape imprisonment out of eight sentenced for a wave of burglary and theft in Greater Victoria. David Donald Glen Morton, 19, was put on probation Tuesday in Saanich police court.

Morton pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking, entering and theft committed with David Bleasdale, 18, who was sentenced in city police court for breaking and entering with intent to steal.

"Your participation was minor compared with the others and was more of a passive rature," Magistrate William Ostler told Morton.

"DRIFTING"

He remarked, however, that Morton had "been gradually drifting" in his responsible behavior.

Mr. Ostler noted Morton had come from a broken home, but his previous record was good. "I have decided to give you a chance and put you on probation. One of the conditions will be that you take this job and remain with it." (An employer offered to find the boy work out of the city.)

$500 BOND

He suspended sentence and imposed a $500 bond for 18 months' good behavior.

Bleasdale, who pleaded guilty to a total of three burglary and theft charges in Saanich court, was given one year definite and six months indeterminate—all concurrent—in young offenders' unit, at Oakalla Prison.

William Pugh, 16, was given the same sentence, also concurrent, for four city burglaries and one in Saanich.

Ninth and last of the youths to appear was John York, 19, of 2620 Killarney, who elected trial by higher court and was scheduled for preliminary hearing.

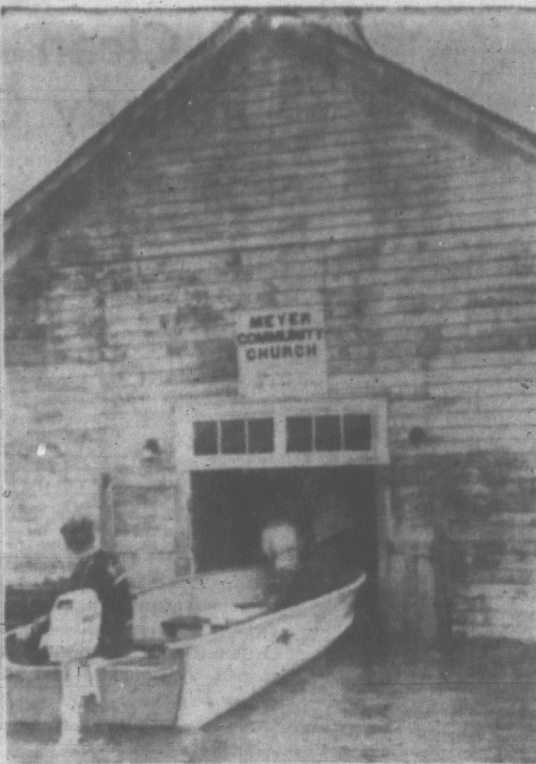

The charge, that he broke into Braefoot Grocery, 3970 Braefoot, March 9, and stole certain property, was amended to read Palmer's Grocery, and Confectionery and the date was changed to March 8.

March Contracts For New Schools Over $1½ Million

B.C. Education Department announced Tuesday contracts totalling $1,530,000 for school construction throughout the province were let during March.

These included a $577,562 contract for a new Junior high school at G. Gordon Head which was awarded to Cloverdale Construction Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

New school buildings under construction will offer an aggregate of 53 classrooms and four gymnasiums and provide accommodation for about 1,750 students.

OLD-TIME RELIGION—Mayor Harold Hemming of Meyer, Ill., checks some of the flood damage at the community church. The town became virtually submerged when a nearby levee broke, allowing the swollen waters to escape.

Union Contract Near With B.C. Electric

VANCOUVER (CP)—Union officials said settlement may be reached within one week in contract negotiations between 1,500 employees and B.C. Electric.

An official of the Office Employees' Union (OEU) said Tuesday a basis for settlement had been reached on all matters except wages.

The union seeks a 22-per-cent increase on wage scales now ranging from $162.50 to $600 a month. The old contract expired Jan. 31 and negotiations have been under way since.

The Shoe Didn't Fit And It Got Him Pinched

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was a Cinderella story in reverse. This time, the shoe didn't fit.

Two detectives saw the 12-year-old boy in a Brooklyn subway station Tuesday with two companions. He was limping.

The limp was so bad, in fact, that the detectives were moved to ask what was wrong with his right foot.

"It doesn't hurt," the boy said.

The detectives then started wondering why the youths weren't in school, and why they seemed so anxious to leave.

Maybe there's something in your shoe, they suggested to the limper.

"It's nothing," he said. "It doesn't hurt."

Take off the shoe, the detectives said.

The boy unlaced the shoe and took it off. Wadded inside was $440 in $20 bills, which police identified as part of the loot from a Bronx burglary Monday night.

The detectives took the boy and his two companions along to the police station.

That's when it started hurting.

WARSAW (Reuters)—Stanislaw Gucwa, vice-minister of agriculture, said Monday night that half of Poland's sprouting winter grain crops had been ruined by the worst weather conditions in living memory. He said the ruined crops, chiefly wheat and rye, will have to be plowed back into the earth and the fields re-sown.

Going to the Dogs?

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A move has been started by the Flagler Kennel Club to put dog racing on a financial level with horse racing, planning two races during the 1960-61 season with purses of at least $50,000 each.

EPSTEIN'S BRONZE 'MAKES MARGARET LOOK SCRAWNY'

By RICHARD GROWALD

LONDON (UPI) — A bronze likeness of Princess Margaret by the late New York-born sculptor Sir Jacob Epstein today pitted Englishman against Englishman in battle over beauty and the bust.

Not many persons were willing to admit that the Epstein work — completed just before the artist's death last August — was a likeness at all. Those who defended it admitted it might be somewhat "controversial."

Commissioned by a college in North Staffordshire, the bust depicts the princess with a slight smile, her arms slightly raised in front, the sash of a Commander of the Victorian Order draped over her off-the-shoulder gown.

"It makes her look very scrawny—as though she needs a good meal," said one woman who saw pictures of the bust in the London press. It will not make its official public debut until April 29 in the Royal Academy show.

Another lay critic protested: "She is a really charming and beautiful woman, but you would not think so to look at a picture of the bust."

Pierre Jeannerat, sculpture critic of the Daily

Mail, said the work "resembles a badly groomed suburban young woman, her hands roughened at the kitchen sink."

Other newspaper seemed to be in agreement. The Daily Herald captioned its picture: "Guess who?"

Although first majority reaction was that the "likeness" was a dirty trick to play on Margaret just before her wedding to commoner Antony-Armstrong Jones next month, a vocal minority held that art and beauty are not necessarily synonymous.

Campbell Stewart, an official of the University College of North Staffordshire, said, "I think it a most remarkable piece of Epsteinery." He admitted, however, that "an awful lot of people are going to say 'that is not our princess.'"

"It's not a bit like her and does not do her justice," said Len Barber, vice-president of the university board of governors.

Speaking for the bust was Margaret herself. Epstein's widow said shortly after his death that the princess "came to see her likeness the other day and loved it."

PEARSON VS. FLEMING

Sharp Clash In Commons On Recession

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson accused the government Tuesday of refusing to heed warnings that a serious economic recession may be around the corner.

Finance Minister Fleming retorted that the Liberals are trying to make political hay out of the recession spectre. The Liberal party, he said, "now is a party with a definite recession complex."

It was quite clear that the leader of the opposition "just cannot wait for the next recession to come." He has exaggerated unemployment, just as honorable members opposite have been doing this long time, and he has created gloom so thick that he has lost his own way now.

The finance minister said there is a sound basis for confidence in Canada. Inflation had been contained, though vigilance was still necessary. His balanced budget had stimulated renewed confidence.

Mr. Pearson was supporting a Liberal non-confidence motion forecasting an over-all budget deficit and charging the Conservative government with offering no solution to pressing economic problems.

Mr. Fleming has budgeted for a small $12,000,000 surplus. The Liberal motion was defeated 176 to 45, with the massive Conservative majority swamping the combined Liberal-CCF opposition.

'Experts See It Coming This Year'

Mr. Pearson cited a number of economic experts, including Dr. O. J. Firestone of the federal trade department, who he said have forecast an economic recession in the coming months. Some experts, he said, see recession toward the end of this year or early in 1961.

"These expert, objective forecasts do not support the rosy picture painted by the government," he said.

The recessions of 1953-54 and 1957-58 came on the heels of budget surpluses that left the government in a better position to combat their effects. If another recession came this year or next, it would follow three years of huge deficits.

Mr. Pearson said for this reason the government is in a poor position to battle the economic recession forecast by the economists.

Mr. Fleming replied that Mr. Pearson and his followers are wallowing in gloom, digging their own grave with despondency and damaging Canada in the eyes of other nations by distorting the facts to serve partisan purposes.

The Liberal leader spoke on the second to last day of the budget debate. His party's non-confidence motion charged that the government offers no solution to unemployment, rising prices, the high premium on the Canadian dollar and increased pressure on provinces and municipalities to borrow abroad.

He wondered whether the Progressive Conservative administration, in the event of recession, would fall back on a system of unplanned deficits. The government's position seemed to be, "we'll jump off that bridge when we come to it."

'Lost in Gloom of Their Own'

No government need fear deficit financing provided it was planned to achieve a definite purpose. The budget deficits of the last two years did not fit that category.

Mr. Fleming replied the Opposition's contributions to the budget debate in the last seven days clearly showed it has no alternative to offer and Opposition members "are lost in gloom of their own creation."

All Mr. Pearson had been able to come up with was a statement that he would put into effect the Liberal policies of three years ago. He had talked of Liberal policies but hadn't said what they were.

'Sowing Idea in Minds of Public'

"The Liberal party now has chosen as its tactic the hope of improving its political fortunes either by creating or sowing in the minds of the public the idea that a recession is coming or that a recession has come," Mr. Fleming said.

He warned that some effects of an actual recession can be created by leaving the impression—even though it is false—that actually there is one. The approach to the Canadian economic scene by the Liberals was not "realistic or responsible."

Mr. Fleming recalled that in his 1958 budget speech he forecast a deficit of $640,000,000 and the Liberals immediately began saying Canada "would have" a billion-dollar deficit, "if saying that could have done harm to Canada, the Liberals would have said it anyway."

Mr. Pearson Tuesday had given "a harrowing tale of an imminent recession." He had made it clear that the Liberal party "just can't wait for a recession to come."

During his remarks, Mr. Pearson said the budget is "shakily balanced." If Mr. Fleming's forecast increase in the gross national product

IT WORKS! Bomarc Missile Test 'Complete Success'

Pearkes Stops House for News

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bomarc anti-aircraft missile has been fired "completely successful," Defence Minister Pearkes said today in the Commons.

He interrupted regular Commons business to make the announcement.

A few minutes earlier, he had told the Commons that he had no further report on the Bomarc since March 28.

He said later he had no information on the test when he had made this statement.

Commenting on the successful test, Paul Hellyer (Toronto-Trinity), former associate defence minister, said the announcement does not increase the Liberal party's confidence in the missile, "one iota."

The Liberals consider money spent on the Bomarc-B "makes no sense whatsoever and is a flagrant waste of the taxpayers' money." He urged the government to reconsider its position on the Bomarc and cancel plans to acquire it on the ground that the weapon is of no military value whatever.

Earlier, when asked to comment on a statement of U.S. Senator Dennis Chavez implying that Canada is getting an "inferior weapon" from the U.S. in the Bomarc, Mr. Pearkes said this was a private opinion of the New Mexico Democratic senator not dissimilar to the views expressed by Mr. Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer said he agrees with Senator Chavez, chairman of the U.S. Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Did Mr. Pearkes still have confidence that the Bomarc alone would provide the best defence for Canada?

Mr. Pearkes said he has never claimed that the Bomarc alone would be the best defence for Canada.

ERIC PEUGEOT ... missing

Child, 4, Snatched At Play

PARIS (Reuters) — The distraught son of a French automobile tycoon offered to pay the $98,000 demanded for the return of his kidnapped four-year-old child to anyone who could help find the boy.

Roland Peugeot, son of Jean Pierre Peugeot, head of the vast French Peugeot car-making firm, made the offer after two telephone ransom demands Tuesday night and early today.

Peugeot's son Eric was snatched from the playground of a golf course near here Tuesday as he played with his brother, 7, and a girl playmate.

A slim, young man leaped a fence and row of bushes separating the playground from the golf course at St. Cloud, snatched up young Eric, and leaped with him back over the bushes and fence.

The child's playmates and a gardener said the man drove off with the boy in a black car driven by a second man.

The family did not notify the police of the kidnapping until three hours after Eric disappeared because the kidnapper left a note in the sand pile in the playground threatening to kill the youngster if police were told.

170-Mile Flip Down the Gulf

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—The first completely successful launching of the controversial Bomarc-B interceptors missile was made over the Eglin Gulf test range today.

The 47-foot missile soared from the Santa Rosa Island launch site and streaked more than 170 miles downrange before landing in the gulf. It was not fired at a target.

A series of seven failures had resulted in test launchings of the Bomarc-B at Cape Canaveral and the air force announced March 25 that it was cutting the program in favor of an expansion of the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

The sergeants were tougher to talk to. Reporters had to jog alongside them as they strode at 75 paces to the minute toward Cordelia, Calif., where they spent the night.

RAF Flight Sgt. Patrick Maloney and army Staff Sgt. Mervyn Evans wore khaki field uniforms and berets as they swung through the California countryside.

They said they hoped to reach New York within 70 days. The record for the stroll, set 34 years ago, is 79 days, 10 hours and 10 minutes.

And how long will it take Dr. Moore? "I'm not certain," she said, "but it'll be faster than those two sergeants."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department disclosed today that the United States will sell the projected new U.S. nuclear rocket Skybolt to Britain as soon as it comes into production.

The announcement confirmed reported assurance given Prime Minister Macmillan that Britain would be able to buy the planned new weapon promptly.

The assurance, growing out of discussions when Eisenhower and Macmillan met at Camp David, Md., two weeks ago, apparently is behind the British government's decision, announced today to abandon its fixed base Blue Streak, a 2,500-mile range rocket.

Officials emphasized that

Sea Limit Extension Headed for Defeat

GENEVA (CP)—The main committee of the world maritime conference today approved a Canadian-American proposal for extending the world's territorial waters to six miles from the present three-mile limit.

The proposal would give coastal states exclusive fishing rights up to 12 miles offshore, after 1970.

The vote was far short of the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption at a subsequent plenary session.

The committee approved the proposal 43 to 33, with 12 abstentions. The vote automatically places the proposal before a plenary session, but its chances of obtaining a two-thirds majority there appeared slim.

U.K. Scraps Blue Streak Nuclear Defence Rockets

LONDON (CP)—Britain is abandoning her program to build fixed-site rockets capable of delivering nuclear weapons to an aggressor's soil.

Defence Minister Harold Watkinson told the House of Commons today the military is discontinuing development of the Blue Streak, a 2,500-mile range missile which so far has cost $65,000,000 ($173,000,000).

Watkinson said the money thus far invested in Blue Streak will not be wasted "if it is decided to go ahead with it as a launcher for a space satellite."

It thus appeared possible that Britain might still try to stay in the world space race.

Watkinson made clear that Britain's strategic bomber force will remain effective for several years as the vehicle for possible delivery of nuclear weapons.

NEW YORK HERE WE COME

Fast-stepping British sergeants Mervyn Evans, 33, of the army, and Patrick Maloney, 34, of the RAF, didn't break stride for an interview with the press as they headed out of San Francisco Tuesday bound for New York on a trans-continental hike. (AP Wirephoto.)

THEY'RE OFF AND WALKING AT 75 PACES PER MINUTE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — These Britons! They're walking all over the United States.

Two snappy-striding sergeants started it Tuesday, on a 3,032-mile hike from San Francisco to New York.

Today Dr. Barbara Moore, 56, the Russian-born wife of a British sculptor, follows them down the pike, "and I'll pass them, too," she says.

The reporters and photographers who met Mrs. Moore at San Francisco Airport Tuesday night had few doubts that the sturdy vegetarian would do it.

She was indignant that there was no one but reporters and photographers to meet her.

She said the Hotel Corporation of America promised to furnish a truck to accompany her on the transcontinental hike.

"I need the truck to carry my juices and my extra shoes," Dr. Moore said, "and I don't even know where I'm to spend the night."

She was standing next to five cases of juices—fruit, beet, carrot and tomato.

A young woman reporter, Nan Riley of the San Francisco Examiner, invited Dr. Moore to spend the night at her apartment. "Thank you, young lady. That's very nice," said Dr. Moore in a thick Russian accent. She accepted.

The sergeants were tougher to talk to. Reporters had to jog alongside them as they strode at 75 paces to the minute toward Cordelia, Calif., where they spent the night.

RAF Flight Sgt. Patrick Maloney and army Staff Sgt. Mervyn Evans wore khaki field uniforms and berets as they swung through the California countryside.

They said they hoped to reach New York within 70 days. The record for the stroll, set 34 years ago, is 79 days, 10 hours and 10 minutes.

And how long will it take Dr. Moore? "I'm not certain," she said, "but it'll be faster than those two sergeants."

New U.S. Satellite Boon to Navigation

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States launched a navigation aid satellite into successful orbit today.

The space messenger, a device with highly important military possibilities, was fired from this missile testing center at 4:03 a.m. PST. Then in Washington the navy announced that a tracking station at Las Cruces, N.M., had reported the transit satellite passed over that point at 5:36 a.m. PST in its swing around the earth.

While the rocket engines were still pushing the satellite into the sky, tracking stations in the United States, Newfoundland, England and Germany began reporting strong radio signals from the satellite. It was the third major American space achievement in little more than a month. On March 11, Pioneer V, carrying man's first interplanetary communication system, winged into orbit about the sun. Tirois I, the weather-eye satellite that photographs clouds, followed.

Officials emphasized that

Easter Bonnet May Be Rain Hat

By DON INGHAM

The coming holiday weekend will be one for ducks rather than peacocks, according to visiting weatherman Jack Kermode.

A weather disturbance will pass over the city tonight in a flurry of wind, rain and clouds, and will be followed by sunny periods Thursday. Temperatures will range between 38 and 52 degrees.

SERIES OF STORMS

"The outlook for the weekend is for much the same type of weather," Mr. Kermode said. "There is a series of weather disturbances to the west that likely will hit us, and they will mean a few days of moderate temperatures, showers, wind and some sunny periods."

The holiday will start at 3 p.m. Thursday when all Greater Victoria school children will begin their 10-day Easter vacation.

MANY FLIGHTS

At the same time Trans-Canada Air Lines will start five days of feverish activity, during which it expects to carry 7,700 passengers in and out of Victoria.

They will be transported on 276 flights. Usual number is 17 round trips per day between here, Vancouver and Seattle. All available equipment and crews will be at work to handle the heavy traffic.

A four-day holiday weekend is in store for most civil servants, to include Good Friday, Saturday, Easter Sunday and Easter Monday.

Postmen will make a delivery Monday, banks will be open Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m., and the Public Library and liquor stores will be closed both Friday and Monday.

CROSS PILGRIMAGE

One of the outstanding events of the weekend will be the Pacific Cross Pilgrimage, which started today at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Nanaimo, and will finish Sunday morning at St. Andrew's Cathedral here.

Sponsored by the Victoria Newman Alumni Association, it will see men of each Roman Catholic parish carrying the cross in relays, with overnight stops at Ladysmith, Duncan and the Malahat.

Unlike the pilgrimage of last year, no group will march the whole distance. The men of one parish will hand the cross on to men of the next, until it reaches Victoria.

Last stage will start at Our Lady of the Rosary Church in Langford Easter Sunday at 8 a.m. Pilgrims will arrive at the Cathedral here at 10:45 a.m. to be greeted by Most Rev. James M. Hill, Bishop of Victoria.

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsor of an Easter egg hunt in Beacon Hill Park, starting at 1 p.m. Boys and girls up to 12 years of age will seek out 3,000 colored and chocolate eggs, and will take part in a free drawing after the hunt, with a new bicycle as top prize. The Easter bunny and his helpers will arrive by helicopter.

PARK PARADE

Apart from the Easter egg hunt, Beacon Hill Park probably will be one of the most popular areas in Greater Victoria. Popular with pedestrians and motorists alike, it draws large crowds when Easter Sunday weather is fine, and forms an unofficial route for a similarly unofficial "Easter parade" here.

Colwood Trail Riders will sponsor an Easter Sunday trail ride through the Highland district, open to all horsemen and women riders in the area.

Assembly will be at Wilkinson and Interurban Roads at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, and riders will move out at 10:15. Lunch—everyone brings his or her own sandwiches—will be at the end of Thetis Lake road. Return trip will finish at about 4:30 p.m. at the starting point.

Mayor Knocks Secrecy Move

B.C. to Match Food Gifts Up To $475,000

Aldermen Miffed About Bust Row?

By JOHN MIKA

Fate of a draft bylaw aimed at barring reporters from committee meetings of city council will be decided Thursday.

Strong opposition was voiced by several aldermen as well as Mayor Scurrah to the proposal today.

Mayor Scurrah said he would oppose any change to existing procedure which was introduced only seven days after he took over as chief magistrate in 1956.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he would battle any move to shield committee discussions from the public gaze.

WHO STARTED IT?

Intended mover and second of the bylaw amendment, which would exclude reporters from committee meetings except on the invitation of the committee, were not revealed.

But it was reported that Ald. J. L. W. McLean and Ald. Hugh Ramsay were strong advocates of closing committee doors during an informal discussion by aldermen.

The issue arose openly among council members after the Queen's bust episode when council passed a vehement resolution criticizing The Times for publishing an appeal to the public to donate money for the artist's fee or landscaping of the statue.

COUNCIL KNOWS

Neither Ald. McLean nor Ald. Ramsay could be contacted for comment before press time but here's what some of their colleagues had to say:

"I'm opposed to any change in the procedure 'bylaw' period," said Mayor Scurrah. "Council knows that."

The mayor added that the present bylaw enables committees to bar the press if they have any objection to reporters.

Ald. Arthur Dowell supported the mayor and said the present system was sufficient for withholding information when necessary.

IN EARLY STAGES

Said Ald. Edgelow: "I would oppose this bylaw because I feel that it is in the public's interest to know what is being done about its affairs and how its elected officials feel about them even in the preliminary stages."

"On many occasions, press coverage of committee meetings gives the public a period of grace in which to contact their representatives in matters of vital concern to them. Otherwise, the public might not find out what has been done until it was too late to make a change."

Ald. Edgelow also added that he felt the present powers of committees were wide enough.

"If the press must be given a specific invitation to attend a committee meeting, there's liable to be an argument over the whole agenda before there is a decision on whether or not to admit them."

"I don't think that would be in the best interests of the public."

MCLEWEN AGAINST
Ald. Elmer McEwen said he did not agree with the proposed change.

"I've certainly never had any quarrel with the press. I would doubt very much that this will pass."

He said he was surprised that the amendment was being proposed because there had been no decision made by the informal meeting.

Ald. Millard Mooney said he would not reveal his opinion until the bylaw was under discussion at Thursday's council meeting.

"WHY NOW?"

"And I think any alderman who gives his opinion today is wrong in doing so," he added. "Anyway, why was this thing brought to light at this particular time? I won't give out my ideas until the council meeting."

ASK The TIMES

Q: Could you please tell me where to write to the International Air Transport Association, their headquarters and address. Also, is there an association of this nature for steamship (passenger) and their headquarters, with their address. R.S.J.

A: IATA head office is in the Terminal Centre Building, 1060 University Street, Montreal 3, P.Q.

As far as can be ascertained from shipping interests here, there is no world-wide shipping association of a similar nature, although there are smaller groups united in "conferences" (e.g., Atlantic Conference) to protect mutual interests.

MONTE ROBERTS

For many generations, Victoria has been able to look snugly across the Gulf of Georgia, and pity Vancouver for its off-recurring waves of crime.

True, Victoria has not been entirely free from law-breaking. The occasional pedestrian crosses against a red light. Yours truly is apprehended parking in Fiddler's Green. A dog wanders unattended in Oak Bay. A litterbug drops a candy wrapper in Thetis Lake Park. A bank or two is robbed of a few thousand dollars.

Nothing serious, though, nothing up to the shady standards of That City over on the mainland.

Thus, as I said, Victoria has been rather snug over the question of crime.

But no longer.

As witness this news item:

"Shrubbery valued at $40 was pulled up and stolen at the weekend from a new fountain garden planted by the provincial public works department at the rear of the legislative buildings."

"City police were told that four heather plants and five Oriental cedars were missing this morning."

Citizens of Victoria, be aware of the peril in your midst.

This kind of dastardly crime must be stamped out before it is truly started.

There is no lower form of thief than the man who steals another man's Oriental cedars.

As for a pilferer of heather plants, there is no opprobrium strong enough to describe him.

If, in this city of gardens, a man cannot be sure his petunias are safe from attack, we may as well all pack up and move to Vancouver.

I say it is time to form a citizens' committee and call out the vigilantes.

If the police force cannot protect our heather plants and our Oriental cedars, it is time drastic steps were taken.

Mill Closed Week After Kiln Blaze

Fire that whipped through a drying kiln containing 5,000 bundles of shingles shut down Smith Cedar Products Ltd., 651 Harbor, early today.

Firemen battled the hard-to-get-at blaze seven and a half hours, preventing fire from spreading beyond the roofs of adjoining kilns on either side.

Some wore masks in the heavy smoke.

It was thought the fire may have started from over-heating and once underway in the heart of the kiln resisted both automatic sprinkler system and efforts of firemen until a quantity of the shingles could be removed.

It was estimated the plant would be shut for about a week while repairs to the kiln are made.

5 Motorists Injured; One Charged

Five motorists were hurt in traffic accidents in Victoria Tuesday and one was faced in city court today with charges of driving while under suspension.

The accused, Robert J. A. Thomson, 23, of 1467 Bay, was treated at Jubilee Hospital for a mild concussion and released with Albert Davidson, 45, of 2643 Fifth, who was treated for a wrist injury and bruises.

Davidson had to jump on top of the car from which he was alighting to avoid collision with an oncoming auto involved in a three-car crash at Hillside and Quadra at 8:40 p.m.

Police identified Thomson as driver of a westbound car in collision with a car, property of Morrison Motors, that was parked just east of Quadra, in turn in collision with a car property of Walter Mathersole, 821 Burdett, parked ahead of it.

HEAVY DAMAGE

There was heavy damage to all vehicles.

Thomson was remanded for plea to Tuesday and bail was set at $250.

Jack Unwin, 727 Front, refused medical attention for a bump on the head after the car in which he was a passenger was in collision with a steel stanchion protruding from a manhole cover at Johnson and Government at 11:05 p.m.

Driver of the car was identified as Orland Ziegler, 1417 Douglas.

Robert Mabey, 42, of 1760 Kisher, was released from Jubilee Hospital after treatment for scalp cuts received when his car was in collision with an auto driven by Dalores Cass, 1938 Trans-Canada Highway, on Johnson, near Vancouver.

Queen's Color Consecrated Here Next Month

Consecration of Queen Elizabeth II's color by the Royal Canadian Navy Pacific Command will be held at 3 p.m., May 4, on the HMCS Naden parade ground.

The color was presented to the navy at Halifax during the royal tour last year.

The ceremony combines religious significance and military tradition. Due to lack of space, it will not be open to the general public.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

University of Victoria building fund campaign chairman R. B. Wilson said at least $1,800,000 should be in the kitty by the end of May if volunteers come forward to help the residential canvass.

He said there was a "desperate" need for canvassers to give an hour of their time April 25 or 26 for the door-to-door drive.

Volunteers should phone EV 5-3455 or EV 3-5078.

Test firings of Bofors and rockets will be carried out from Christopher Point, Metchosin, by RCN units for the next two weeks. Starting today, firings will take place between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. until April 29.

Danger area for shipping is 5,000 yards seaward of the point.

Annual banquet of the C.F.R. Veterans' Association will be held at 5 p.m. next Tuesday in the Crystal Garden. Reservations are being taken by G. F. Simmonds at EV 5-7525.

Victoria Day parade salute will be taken by Lieutenant Governor Frank M. Ross, Greater Victoria Celebrations Association was told Tuesday night.

Billets are needed for about 150 high school students from Vancouver and the U.S. who will march in drill teams and bands entered in the May 23 parade.

Victorians willing to offer overnight accommodation to the visitors should phone EV 2-3912 or EV 3-6109.

Frank Ever, 18, of 3035 Earl Grey, was fined $20 when he pleaded guilty in Saanich police court Tuesday to having beer in his possession. When checked by police, Ever said he found the beer in roadside grass.

Victoria city council spent $8,163,863 during the 1959 calendar year, an annual financial statement revealed today.

That left $43,434 of 1959 revenues to be added to the current year's revenue.

The surplus was reduced considerably from the $126,139 that had been carried over from 1958.

Ronald Kolinski, 18, of 527 Hillside, was sentenced in city police court today to three months in jail for uttering what the court referred to as "about as bad a forgery as one could find."

The youth tendered a city welfare cheque (originally made out to him for $66) clumsily raised to $360 as payment for a car at a second hand lot.

R. A. Sanderson, president of the British Columbia Cancer Foundation, announces the appointment of Sister Superior Mary Ann Celesta of St. Joseph's Hospital as a member of the advisory committee to Victoria Cancer Clinic.

Other members of the committee are George Masters, secretary; Dr. Gordon H. Grant, Dr. H. M. Edmison, E. R. Rickinson, A. E. Walters and Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, chairman.

A 75-year-old Chinese survived a 15-20-foot fall down a scow loading at the city garbage wharf shortly after 11 a.m. today.

Police took Woo Song, New Jubilee Hotel, 575 Johnson, to Jubilee Hospital for a checkup—he suffered only bruises—then drove him home.

The man had been looking for useable items when he tumbled into the hole where trucks dump refuse and was carried in a wave of garbage onto the scow below.

City second-hand store operator W. A. Scott today asked City Hall to hurry up and reply to his request for $1,570 as settlement of a claim of false arrest.

He noted a previous request to city police commission for the payment had not been answered.

He made his claim for compensation after being acquitted March 10 by an Assize Court jury of a charge of possession of a stolen mink stole.

The B.C. Maritime Museum, on Esquimalt Road at Signal Hill, will be open each day of the Easter weekend holiday, the curator, Lt. Cmdr. Ernie Cassels, announced today.

Doors will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Good Friday, Saturday, Easter Sunday, and Monday.

The museum has recently been enlarged, and new exhibits added.

IF BURMA RICE CROP FAILED, CANADIAN WHEAT WOULD FILL GAP

He Wants Jet Age 'International Farming'

Farming on an international basis, making full use of fast transportation methods, was proposed Tuesday by Dr. William Newton, noted Canadian biologist, in a speech to the Sidney Kinsmen Club.

Dr. Newton, former pathologist at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Sannichton, envisaged a "single world farm unit."

"Under such a system, he said, surplus farm products of one country would be shipped to nations short of food."

"If there is a rice failure in Burma, wheat from Canada could 'take its place,'" he explained. "And if the weather gives China a bumper rice crop and Burma a poor one, the surplus in China could become available to Burma."

The framework of such a management attempt is being developed by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, he said.

Dr. Newton warned that as long as the problem of famine existed in Asia there is a danger of war.

"No longer are millions of people in China, India and Indonesia content to die of starvation when weather, disease or pests destroy their crops," he said.

"Now they know that if there is a surplus of food elsewhere death through starvation is not essential," he said.

"I believe the people of the East would prefer to die in battle rather than starve to death."

Dr. Newton criticized western countries for not officially supporting "birth control" when it was quite obvious that over-population is a serious world problem.

He noted that in the past, religions encouraged large families because it was essential to preserve the existence of the race after epidemics of disease.

But, he added, this is no longer necessary as man through biological research, has controlled life-taking diseases, such as malaria, smallpox and yellow fever.

Circulation of clouds of radio-active particles through indiscriminate atom bomb tests could destroy mankind, Dr. Newton said.

A report from the University of British Columbia last week said there was an increase of the radiation fallout count in the province as the result of the French bomb test in the Sahara Desert.

An increase in fallout was also reported by scientists in Ottawa.

Dr. Newton said it is one of the duties of scientists to convince the world of this danger, as well as the danger of an atomic war which would unquestionably destroy mankind.

Dr. Moore Off and Walking On Long Jaunt to Gotham

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dr. Barbara Moore, 36, of England, left San Francisco today on a walking trip to New York. The vegetarian pedestrian left City Hall at 9:30 a.m. in a taxicab. She was carrying a rucksack with her, and a jar of celery juice. As she headed toward the Golden Gate bridge she said, "I will walk day and night."

PEARSON VS. FLEMING

Sharp Clash In Commons On Recession

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson accused the government Tuesday of refusing to heed warnings that a serious economic recession may be around the corner.

Finance Minister Fleming retorted that the Liberals are trying to make political hay out of the recession spectre. The Liberal party, he said, "now is a party with a definite recession complex."

It was quite clear that the leader of the opposition "just cannot wait for the next recession to come." He has exaggerated unemployment, just as honorable members opposite have been doing this long time, and he has created gloom so thick that he has lost his own way now.

The finance minister said there is a sound basis for confidence in Canada. Inflation had been contained, though vigilance was still necessary. His balanced budget had stimulated renewed confidence.

Mr. Pearson was supporting a Liberal non-confidence motion forecasting an over-all budget deficit and charging the Conservative government with offering no solution to pressing economic problems. Mr. Fleming has budgeted for a small $12,000,000 surplus.

The Liberal motion was defeated 176 to 45, with the massive Conservative majority swamping the opposition.

Mr. Pearson and his followers are wallowing in gloom, digging their own grave of dependency and damaging Canada in the eyes of other nations by distorting the facts.

The Liberal leader spoke on the second to last day of the budget debate. His party's non-confidence motion charged that the government offers no solution to unemployment, rising prices, the high premium on the Canadian dollar and increased pressure on provinces and municipalities to borrow abroad.

He wondered whether the Progressive Conservative administration, in the event of a recession, would fall back on a system of unplanned deficits.

The government's position seemed to be "we'll jump off that bridge when we come to it."

Mr. Pearson said for this reason the government is in a poor position to battle the economic recession forecast by the economists.

Mr. Fleming replied that the government is in a position to handle any economic crisis.

PUC WILL RULE ON NORTHERN B.C. RAIL LINK

Missile Makes 170-Mile Flip

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—The first completely successful launching of the controversial Bomarc-B interceptor missile was made over the Englin Gulf test range today, cruising altitude of about 12 miles.

The 47-foot missile soared from the Santa Rosa Island launch site and streaked more than 170 miles downrange before landing in the gulf. It was not fired at a target. A series of seven failures resulted from test launchings of the Bomarc-B at Cape Canaveral and the air force announced March 25 that it was cutting the program in favor of an expansion of the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

The air force said today's flight was the longest made by the advanced Bomarc-B. The missile's solid propellant booster rocket took it to a

Commons Told

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bomarc anti-aircraft missile has been fired "completely successfully," Defence Minister Pearkes said today in the Commons.

He interrupted regular Commons business to make the announcement. A few minutes earlier, he had told the Commons that he had no further report on the Bomarc since March 28.

He said later he had no information on the test when he made this statement.

Commenting on the successful test, Paul Hellyer (L-Toronto-Trinity), former associate defence minister, said the announcement does not increase the Liberal party's confidence in the missile "one iota."

The Liberals consider money spent on the Bomarc-B "makes no sense whatsoever and is a flagrant waste of the taxpayers' money." He urged the government to reconsider its position on the Bomarc and cancel plans to acquire it on the ground that the weapon is of no military value whatever.

Earlier, when asked to comment on a statement of U.S. Senator Dennis Chavez implying that Canada is getting an "interior weapon" from the U.S. in the Bomarc, Mr. Pearkes said this was a private opinion of the New Mexico Democratic senator not dissimilar to the views expressed by Mr. Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer said he agrees with Senator Chavez, chairman of the U.S. Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Did Mr. Pearkes still have confidence that the Bomarc alone would provide the best defence for Canada?

Mr. Pearkes said he has never claimed that the Bomarc alone would be the best defence for Canada.

Headed for Defeat

GENEVA (CP)—The main committee of the world maritime conference today approved a Canadian-American proposal for extending the world's territorial waters to six miles from the present three-mile limit.

The proposal would give coastal states exclusive fishing rights up to 12 miles offshore, after 1970.

The vote was far short of the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption at a subsequent plenary session.

The committee approved the proposal 43 to 33, with 12 abstentions. The vote automatically places the proposal before a plenary session, but its chances of obtaining a two-thirds majority there appeared slim.

Meanwhile, back at the launch pad... Mebbe the Bomarc boys ought to quit now while they're ahead.

Lucky for Mister Verwoerd that medical science ain't back in the same stage of development his political science is.

ERIC PEUGEOT ... missing

Child, 4, Snatched At Play

PARIS (Reuters)—The distraught son of a French automobile tycoon offered to pay the 50,000,000 francs (about $98,000) demanded for the return of his kidnapped four-year-old child to anyone who could help find the boy.

Roland Peugeot, son of Jean Pierre Peugeot, head of the vast French Peugeot car-making firm, made the offer after two telephone ransom demands Tuesday night and early today.

Peugeot's son Eric was snatched from the playground of a golf course near Paris Tuesday as he played with his brother, 7, and a girl playmate.

A slim, young man leaped a fence and row of bushes separating the playground from the golf course at St. Cloud, snatched up young Eric, and leaped with him back over the bushes and fence.

The child's playmates and a gardener said the man drove off with the boy in a black car driven by a second man.

The family did not notify the police of the kidnapping until three hours after Eric disappeared because the kidnapper left a note in the sand pile in the playground threatening to kill the youngster if police were told.

While the rocket engines were still pushing the satellite into the sky, tracking stations in the United States, Newfoundland, England and Germany began reporting strong radio signals from the satellite.

It was the third major American space achievement in little more than a month.

On March 11, Pioneer V, carrying man's first interplanetary communication system, winged into orbit about the sun.

Tiros 2, the weather-eye satellite that photographs clouds, followed.

Officials emphasized that the satellite was still in the early stages of its mission.

New Company Being Set Up

VANCOUVER (CP)—Interests proposing to build a 700-mile railway through northern British Columbia to the Yukon boundary must receive permission from the Public Utilities Commission before they can start construction, Premier Bennett said today.

He told a press conference that a company now is being set up in compliance with the regulations of the Railway Act under the provincial department of railways and commercial transport.

When this step is completed, the company would go before the PUC for a certificate of public convenience. This would bring public hearings and release of engineering surveys of the proposed route.

The surveys have been carried out at a cost of $1,000,000 by the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Company, established to carry out various research in northern B.C. under an agreement between the province and interests of Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren.

The agreement provides that the railway construction be started during the second quarter of 1960—by the end of June.

"If they clear those hurdles (the commercial transport department and the PUC), then construction will start," the premier said. "I expect it to start this year."

Asked if the PUC could bring about changes in the original Wenner-Gren agreement—and the date set for start of construction—the premier replied: "Look at the act."

PROMINENT PEOPLE Mr. Bennett said the company being established to build the railway will involve prominent people.

Blast Rips Oil Plant, 2 Killed

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An explosion ripped a Houston ship channel oil refinery this afternoon, killing two men and critically injuring others. Sheriff's dispatches said they had reports of from eight to 10 workers injured in the Crown Central Petroleum Corp. plant explosion.

A nurse at the Southwest Hospital said one of the injured told her two workers were blown to pieces.

New U.S. Satellite Boon to Navigation

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States launched a navigation aid satellite into successful orbit today.

The space messenger, a device with highly important military possibilities, was fired from this missile testing center at 4:03 a.m. PST. Then in Washington the navy announced that a tracking station at Las Cruces, N.M., had reported the transit satellite passed over that point at 5:36 a.m. PST in its swing around the earth.

Woman's Warning Cry Saves Men in Twister

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—Caught most residents of a west Texas village in church Tuesday night and all but swept the place off the map. But for a woman's warning cry seconds before the twister struck, the toll probably would have been much greater in the crossroads community of Sunnyside.

Mrs. C. M. Rogers, wife of Sunnyside's Baptist pastor, spotted the dark and threatening cloud and sounded an alarm.

Nearly 40 men at a meeting in her husband's church scrambled for two storm cellars close by. Most of them made it. Several were too late.

HOLD UP RAFTERS

"The men had to put up their arms and hold up the rafters," said Muri Rogers, 10, son of the minister, in describing how they kept the roof on 30 odd persons.

"We were thought the roof was going to fall in," related the youngster, whose mother clutched him in her arms until the twister passed on.

Sunnyside residents emerged to find the farming community shattered. The whirling storm levelled their church, store, grain elevator, cotton gin and four or five homes. All the half-dozen other houses lost their roofs.

The dead and injured were strewn amid rubble piled up five feet high in an area 100 feet square.

Since the tornado swooped in past several farm homes, it was considered possible that other dead might be found today.

JUMPS OVER CITY

Thrusting on to the north-east the twister jumped over the city of Amarillo, about 70 miles distant. Another tornado dipped into the edge of the town of Friona, about 30 miles north of Sunnyside, and a third bounced through a farm near Muleshoe, about 30 miles southwest of the shattered village.

The Friona twister rolled a 50-foot house trailer 200 feet, trapping Mrs. Marie Carroll in the wreckage. She suffered a severe back injury. Half the size of pears pounded the farm country around, denting cars and breaking windows.

Czechoslovakia put three new television stations into operation in 1959, bringing the total to 12.

BLUE STREAK

The complete cost of the original missile program of Prime Minister Macmillan's government would have been between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000, he said. The government felt that only the United States and Russia have the economic and military resources for an independent rocket program.

Watkinson explained why the far-reaching decision was taken to prune the program: "Vulnerability of missiles launched from static sites and the practicability of launching missiles of considerable range from mobile platforms have now been established."

This clearly referred to the Soviet Union's recent rocket-firing achievements. Moscow said a Soviet missile was fired within 15 miles of a target in the Pacific from a launcher about 6,500 nautical miles away.

BRITAIN BUYING SKYBOLT

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department disclosed today that the United States will sell the projected new U.S. nuclear rocket Skybolt to Britain as soon as it comes into production.

The announcement confirmed reported assurances given Prime Minister Macmillan that Britain would be able to buy the planned new weapon promptly.

The assurance, growing out of discussions when Eisenhower and Macmillan met at Camp David, Md., two weeks ago, apparently is behind the British government's decision, announced today to abandon its fixed base Blue Streak, a 2,500-mile-range rocket.

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet has committed to life imprisonment the death sentence of Glen Pedersen, 40, of Grand Centre, Alta., convicted of the strangulation murder of 43-year-old Patricia Scullion.

BUT CANCER GROUP MEMBERSHIP TOO LOW

'Interest Rate' Runs High

The rejected president of the Victoria unit of Canadian Cancer Society appealed at its annual meeting Tuesday for more volunteer helpers.

Mrs. P. E. Corby told the meeting that although interest in work of the unit is great, actual membership is low.

She praised those volunteers who have assisted with the welfare work of the unit, driving cancer patients to and from Jubilee Hospital cancer clinic, for example.

Vice-president Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, Jubilee medical superintendent, told members that funds collected this year would help staff B.C. cancer research unit, now under construction at University of British Columbia.

A total of $625,000 is pledged toward this unit by the B.C. branch of the cancer society, to which the local campaign contributes.

HALF TO RESEARCH

Almost half of the moneys donated by the public are used for research financing, he said. Last year $117,000 was given by the provincial campaign.

Locally, well in excess of $2,000 was spent on welfare, secretary Miss Margaret Bradley told members.

Dr. H. M. Edmison was elected a vice-president; directors are Dr. F. G. Stuart, K. W. L. Scafe, Dugald Gillespie, G. A. Hadden, Miss Dorothy Watson, Miss Elizabeth Riddell, Col. J. Q. Gillan, W. C. Roberts, Frank Mulliner and Seth Halton.

Dutch Church Scored In S. Africa Racial Issue

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—The Dutch-Reformed Church today faced demands that it take a stand against segregation as the South African government mapped plans to make the country less dependent on Negro labor.

Meanwhile, Norman Phillips, foreign editor of the Toronto Star, who was freed Tuesday after having been jailed since last Saturday when a cable office employee sent his story to government officials instead of filing it, was preparing to leave the country.

Released after undergoing questioning and spending three nights on the concrete floor of a jail because his story was deemed "violently prejudiced", the Canadian reporter was ordered out of South Africa.

CHURCH QUARREL

Leaders of the Dutch Reformed Church, to which many Afrikaner members of the government belong, are considering criticisms by Most Rev. Joost de Blank, Anglican archbishop of Capetown, who said Monday that unless the Dutch Reformed Church repudiates compulsory racial segregation, other Christian churches should refuse to be associated with it in any council or federation.

Reports indicated that most of the country was quiet today.

Police, who raided 10 Negro townships and made 100 arrests in a "cleanup" drive Tuesday, said tension appeared to have abated.

VERWOERD IMPROVES

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, shot in the face in an assassination attempt Saturday, continued to make gradual progress. Reports said his only physical impairment is expected to be slight deafness in the right ear.

Two bullets lodged in his neck were only skin-deep and could be removed under local anaesthetic, the reports said.

There was no further news today on the whereabouts of David Pratt, wealthy white farmer who is alleged to have shot Verwoerd. Even his lawyer had not been told where he was Tuesday. Under emergency regulations he could be held for the duration of the state of emergency without being arraigned.

Interior Minister Tom Naudé announced Tuesday a major overhaul of immigration policies to encourage more white settlers, and urged white farmers to do without importation of Negro labor from nearby countries.

No government need fear deficit financing provided it was planned to achieve a definite purpose. The budget deficits of the last two years did not fit that category.

Mr. Fleming replied the Opposition's contributions to the budget debate in the last seven days clearly showed it has no alternative to offer and Opposition members "are lost in gloom of their own creation."

All Mr. Pearson had been able to come up with was a statement that he would put into effect the Liberal policies of three years ago. He had talked of Liberal policies but hadn't said what "they" were. The only conclusion that could be drawn was that the Liberals would use the policies that led the country into the 1957-58 recession and that were convincingly rejected at the polls in 1957 and 1958.

Mr. Fleming said it is a matter of "deep concern" to see the Liberals "wallowing in gloom concerning Canada." It was natural to be despondent about their election defeat but why try to transfer that to Canada as a whole?

Canadians earned, saved and spent more last year than ever before but the gloom engendered by Liberal statements made an impression abroad that did Canada harm.

"The Liberal party now has chosen as its tactic the hope of improving its political fortunes either by creating or sowing in the minds of the public the idea that a recession is coming or that a recession has come," Mr. Fleming said.

He warned that some effects of an actual recession can be created by leaving the impression—even though it is false—that actually there is one. The approach to the Canadian economic scene by the Liberals was not "realistic or responsible."

Mr. Fleming recalled that in his 1958 budget speech he forecast a deficit of $640,000,000 and the Liberals immediately began saying Canada would have "a billion-dollar deficit." If saying that could have done harm to Canada, the Liberals would have said it anyway.

Mr. Pearson Tuesday had given "a harrowing tale of an imminent recession." He had made it clear that the Liberal party "just can't wait for a recession to come."

During his remarks, Mr. Pearson said the budget is "shakily balanced." Mr. Fleming's forecast increase in the gross national product proved as far wrong as his prediction last year, "the expected $12,000,000 budget surplus would quickly be converted to a deficit."

The government had not done anything "really effective" to reduce mass unemployment. It had taken a "meteorological approach" to unemployment, hoping that it "will go with the snow."

He accused Mr. Fleming of misrepresenting facts when he said in the budget speech that the rise in unemployment was partly attributable to an "unusual increase" in the size of Canada's labor force. Mr. Pearson said statistical tables included in Mr. Fleming's own budget speech show that the increase was, in fact, "unusually low."

Last year, after the present government had produced another budgetary deficit, the Liberal opposition had been accused of "indulging in gloom."

Mr. Pearson said some of the Liberal predictions on the economy "turned out to be not pessimistic enough in the light of events."

Scout Hall Offer

An offer will be made to Saanich council by Prospect Lake and District Community Association to lease and renovate a house now being used as a community centre and Boy Scouts' meeting place.

Council is ready to have the building torn down since it feels cost of proper renovations would be too high.

Bailey Re-Elected

LAKE COWICHAN—Larry Bailey was re-elected trustee of the hospital improvement district here at an annual meeting this week.

He has been the village's representative and secretary of the district since it was formed a year ago.

It was suggested that the new hospital being planned for the Cowichan area be built by the present hospital association, but with a smaller board.

BENNETT

ment people from several areas and will not be dominated by the Wenner-Gren interests.

The road would serve to open up northern B.C. to great development, just as the CPR served to open western Canada.

He reiterated previous statements that the government has made no concessions, no guarantees and no giveaways to Wenner-Gren interests, and he said there is no question of the company being able to grab the only railway franchise in the north and sit on it until such time as it will become profitable to build it.

"There is no franchise," the premier said. "You can build another line parallel if you like."

Asked if he would estimate any completion date for the line, he said: "Right now I want to get it started—but I'm sure it won't take as long to complete as the Liberals and Conservatives look to complete the PGE."

The PGE is the provincially-owned Pacific Great Eastern begun 40 years and completed last year.

Two More Islanders Hit by Polio

Two new cases of polio on Vancouver Island have raised the B.C. total number this year to 35, Dr. G. F. Amyot, deputy provincial health officer, reported Tuesday.

A 16-year-old girl at Port Alberni and a 38-year-old man at Chemainus are the latest polio victims.

The only other 'island victim of polio this year was Tony Gardner of Happy Valley who was stricken last week.

"It is too early yet to forecast whether British Columbia is heading into another 'bad polio year,'" Dr. Amyot said. "It may be the cases we have had so far are a carry-over from last year's heavy incidence of polio."

Dr. Amyot said April is early in the year for polio to strike (it usually occurs in hot weather), but this has happened previously following a severe polio year.

None of the latest three victims have received Salk vaccine.
